KOREA SITUATION GRIM COMMISSION TOLD

PANMUNJOM (AP) — The United Nations command warned North Korea today that miscalculation of the situation in Korea may bring about serious consequences to both sides.

Maj.-Gen. Gilbert H. Woodward, of the United States Army, told the 270th meeting of the Joint Military Armistice Commission that there now "exists a grim possibility of miscalculation".

He made the statement after enumerating a series of border incidents that he said were initiated by North Korea

Kosygin In Prague For Talks

PRAGUE (UPI)—Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin arrived unexpectedly tonight by plane for talks with leaders of the reformist Czech regime "on questions interesting to both sides."

Kosygin was the latest in a series of Kremlin visitors to Prague where Communist Party chairman Alexander Dubcek was leading his country on an independent Communist path.

Soviet Defence Minister Andrei A. Grechko arrived today to see whether Czechoslovakia had any plans for pulling out of the Warsaw Pact alliance of Soviet bloc nations.

Grechko said merely that he wanted to "get acquainted with the new leadership," according to official Czech sources.

STUDENT UNREST

Delaware College Closed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Delaware State College was closed today after about 200 students Thursday seized control of the administration building—prompting Governor Charles L. Terry to order National Guard units onto the campus.

A committee of trustees, faculty and students was formed to hear grievances from the predominantly Negro student body of 900 who demanded the resignation of college President Dr. Luna I. Mishoe.

The latest, and most serious, of a series of protests at the state college in Dover prompted about 100 students at the university of Delaware in Newark to take over the student centre in a sympathy demonstration.

The Delaware student unrest was only a part of the continuing fever of student ferment which has gripped campuses across the U.S.

STUDENTS ARRESTED

Marquette University in Milwaukee was threatened with the resignations of three theologians if the 13,000-student Roman Catholic University did not meet student demands to hire a Negro administrator. Police arrested seven students of a total of about 100 who staged a sit-in at the student union building.

Dr. Henry King Stanford, president of the University of Miami, promised scholarships for Negroes and new courses on Negro history in an effort to cool distrurbances there. An activist group at the 16,159-student university staged a sit-in in Stanford's office Tuesday to back their demands.

Students at Florida State University in Tallahassee called a one-week halt to their sit-in to protest alleged censorship. The student action resulted in the resignation of President John Champion Tuesday. The board of regents rejected his resignation Thursday and ordered an administration investigation of the protest.

New Mexico State University agreed to meet with members of the campus civil rights action committee to discuss a list of demands and proposals including the hiring of six Negro professors.

COMPROMISE SOLUTION

Pact to Halt Bombing Expected at Paris Talks

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

PARIS (AP) — Informed French and U.S. diplomats expect a compromise deal between the United States and North Vietnam to end the bombing of the North in spite of the apparent stalemate in the Paris peace talks which resume Saturday.

The North Vietnamese appear at present to be trying to rally world opinion against the United States to pressure it into ending military action against North Vietám without any compensating move by the Communists.

The appeal for support has been sounded this week by Ambassador Xuan Thuy in Paris and by Hanoi Radio.

To counter this manoeuvre U.S. spokesman cite what they consider the unacceptably high military price the United States would have to pay to end the bombing under present conditions. They are driving for restoration of a buffer zone to cut off North Vietnamese troop movements across the North-South border.

Thousands of truck loads of men and supplies a month could pour into South Vietnam without interruption, they say, if attacks were stopped without North Vietnamese de-escalation.

Reconnaissance flights over the North would be stopped, cutting off vital information. Artillery shelling and aerial bombing of the southern border area of the North would be halted while North Vietnamese troops massed there could move South at any time.

U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman in an interview Thursday linked restoring a buffer zone between North and South with ending the rest of the bombing and "all other acts of war" against the North.

Harriman was asked in an ABC television interview whether he was encouraged by North Vietnams willingness so far to talk here about subjects other than ending the bombing of the North.

He said they had not talked about anything in such a way that "we can get at the subject and agree to it" but had thrown out ideas "in a propaganda way."

"They have criticized our violation of the demilitarized zone" Harriman continued, "when the facts are they are the ones that violated first."

"It is that sort of thing that they are doing, and they have got to indicate specifically they are ready to re-establish the zone before we can negotiate

BABY'S SURVIVAL AT STAKE

Mothers Answer Appeal for Milk

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Messages have been pouring in from women across North America offering breast milk to a Spokane baby whose life depends on it. "It's all just so wonderful," said 20-year-old Betty Madson, whose three-month-old son Richard can survive only on human milk.

Mrs. Madson, unable to provide the milk, and her husband Lawrence Madson Jr., 21, issued the appeal for breast milk earlier this week. An adequate temporary supply now appears available.

"You never think people like this are around until something like this happens to you," Mrs. Madson said.

Richard, who weighs eight pounds nine ounces has, since shortly after birth, rejected all nourishment but human milk. Nothing else will work, said Mrs. Madson.

Richard has been in hospital here and in Seattle for most of his young life, but now is at home. Mrs. Madson said Richard consumes 36 ounces daily and likely will continue to improve as long as the milk supply lasts.

Student Unity Bid Rebuffed

PARIS (UPI) — Forty thousand Communist - led workers today struck and seized the huge state-owned Renault automobile factory in the Paris suburbs.

But they rejected efforts by rebellious Paris students to link their own revolution with that of the workers.

The students had wanted to move their revolt of the universities into a joint effort with workers in the factories and they appeared stunned by the union's cautious attitude.

The communist-led General Labor Confederation appeared fearful that student entry into the sprawling plant would result in police retaliation.

The government called up thousands of police today and 10,000 gendarme reservists — French equivalent of the national guard.

SIX PLANTS

So far striking workers have occupied the Renault plant, Sud-Aviation aircraft plants and half a dozen other factories throughout the country, but the strikes have been peaceful.

The CGT decision to rebuff the students emphasized the Communist party's careful handling of the great student and labor crisis shaking France.

It was the first break of solidarity between students and workers since student protest rallies against obsolete teaching methods served as the fuse for a massive explosion of pentup anti-government discontent.

The massive Renault plant straddling the Seine River in suburban Billancourt is considered the barometer for labor peace. A strike at the nationalized works usually spreads rapidly into other industrial sectors.

Other militant workers struck two factories in Lyon, struck Paris newspapers and virtually closed the nation's largest airport in Paris in sympathy with agitating students who have struck and occupied universities throughout France.

The students, elated by successful seizures of the Sorbonne University and the national Odeon Theatre in Paris, organized a sympathy parade to the Renault factory to join with the striking workers. It was to be the first formal link-up of the revolting students with the labor force of France.

DEFY WARNING

Students and workers defied a grave warning by Premier George Pompidou Thursday night that the agitators aimed at "destroying the nation" and that the government would crush any attempt to spread "anarchy" in France.

Pompidou notified President Charles de Gaulle, on an official visit to Romania, of the worsening situation that began with student unrest over archaic conditions at the University of Paris and snowballed into a torrent of discontent against the 10-year-old de Gaulle regime and the "establishment" in general.

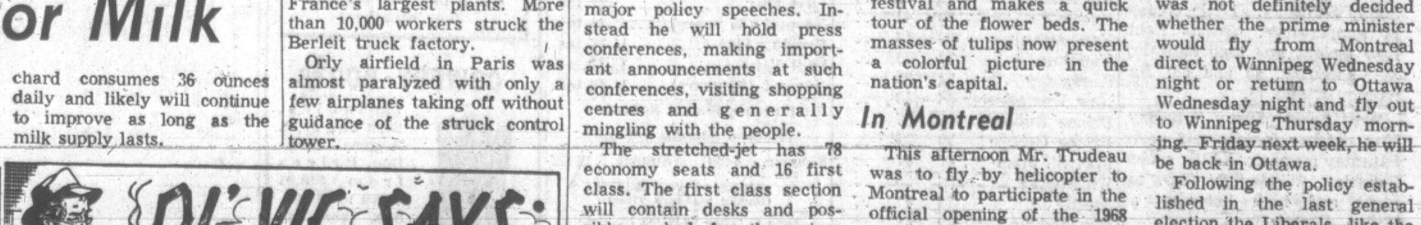
Underlining the seriousness of the crisis, Pompidou called an emergency meeting at his Matignon Palace office with Defence Minister Pierre Messmer, Interior Minister Christian Fouchet and top commanders of the police and gendarmerie, France's national guard.

EXPLOIT UNREST

Labor unions attempted to exploit the unrest that erupted in the Sorbonne University with street demonstrations for educational reforms.

In Lyon, workers struck and occupied the Rhodiaceta synthetic textile factories, one of France's largest plants. More than 10,000 workers struck the Berleit truck factory.

Orly airfield in Paris was almost paralyzed with only a few airplanes taking off without guidance of the struck control tower.



Th' French people seem t' be workin' on th' basis that th' way t' solve th' country's problems is t' make 'em worse.

POOR POUR IN AT RAPID RATE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the Poor People's Campaign by the hundreds are pouring into the U.S. capital once again, setting the stage for a hectic weekend that promises to give campaign officials enormous housing headaches before Monday.

The caravans that the field staff of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference organized around the U.S. weeks ago are converging on Resurrection City, U.S.A., which at this stage of construction hasn't room for them all.

Officials estimate they have housing ready for 700 persons in the plywood and plastic shantytown.

Five hundred campaigners, mostly from Mississippi and Alabama, are living there now. The SCLC temporarily placed 340 more who arrived Thursday from Chicago in Washington churches.

Another 700 due to arrive today from a caravan that began in Boston will be housed in suburban Maryland churches, officials said.

They aren't yet sure where to send the 1,000 persons set to arrive Saturday from a midwestern caravan that was halted for two days in Pittsburgh to gain construction time.

And there is a group due in Sunday from the South.

Month-Long Drive On Reds Base Ends

PHY BAI (AP) — The month-long drive by U.S. and South Vietnamese troops through the A Shau Valley of South Vietnam officially ended today. North Vietnamese troops are believed moving back into the area, their biggest supply and staging base in South Vietnam.

Lt.-Gen. William L. Rosson, the U.S. commander of the big invasion into the North Vietnamese stronghold southwest of Hue, said his forces turned up a fourth of the Communist supplies stockpiled inside the 25-mile-long valley.

Meet-the-People Campaign By Trudeau Starts Saturday

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

SEE STORIES PAGES 8, 18, 38

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau starts out to "meet the people" in his election campaign Saturday with a flying visit to Toronto, and goes to Winnipeg next week.

The Liberal party has chartered a stretched-out DC-9 jet from Air Canada for between $40,000 and $45,000 for the duration of the five-week campaign.

The word from his campaign organizers to date is that the prime minister plans few if any mass rallies or major policy speeches. Instead he will hold press conferences, making important announcements at such conferences, visiting shopping centres and generally mingling with the people.

The stretched-jet has 78 economy seats and 16 first class. The first class section will contain desks and possibly a bed for the prime minister. Liberal aides and the press will occupy the economy section.

Informal Chats

Mr. Trudeau goes west to Winnipeg next Thursday. He plans to hold a major press conference in Winnipeg in the morning and "tour the area" in the afternoon. No key speeches are scheduled for Winnipeg but he will be "mainstreeting" as John Diefenbaker described his campaign technique of dropping into specific areas in a city to walk a city block shaking hands and chatting informally. Thursday night Mr. Trudeau takes his campaign jet back to Ottawa.

Today the prime minister opens the annual Ottawa tulip festival and makes a quick tour of the flower beds. The masses of tulips now present a colorful picture in the nation's capital.

In Montreal

This afternoon Mr. Trudeau was to fly by helicopter to Montreal to participate in the official opening of the 1968 version of man and his world with Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson and Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau.

The prime minister, after two hours on the grounds at Expo, flies back to Ottawa.

Sunday and Monday Mr. Trudeau will spend in Ottawa on official business and working on his campaign plans.

Tuesday of next week he'll fly to Wiarton in the DC-9 campaign plane and then tour southern Ontario by car and bus. That night he makes a "non-political" speech to the Kitchener chamber of commerce on the state of the economy. He jets back to Ottawa to spend the night.

Wednesday the prime minister will attend the cabinet and later his own nomination meeting in the Montreal riding of Mount Royal.

Press Charged

Thursday he flies to Winnipeg. A spokesman for the prime minister said today it was not definitely decided whether the prime minister would fly from Montreal direct to Winnipeg Wednesday night or return to Ottawa Wednesday night and fly out to Winnipeg Thursday morning. Friday next week, he will be back in Ottawa.

Following the policy established in the last general election the Liberals—like the Conservatives — are charging the press $1,000 to have a seat on the campaign plane throughout the election tour. Commercial rates will be charged for those taking flights on segments of the campaign tour.

Mr. Trudeau plans to spend at least one day each week back in Ottawa during the next five weeks, an aide said.

ROUND-A-BOUT

By DOUGLAS HILLSIDE

Have you heard the rumor that Canada's top cowboy Lorne Greene was buying the Grouse Nest? If so, forget it.

Solicitor for the posh Sooke resort, Louis Lindholm, reports he's been asked several times. And last week he saw Lorne Greene and they laughed and laughed.

Mr. Lindholm says the resort which was given a $500,000 renovation in 1950 and then fell into hard times, is unchanged in ownership status, but is subject to more rumors than Cadborosaurus. Incidentally, what ever happened to Caddy?

* * *

Wendy Baker, daughter of Times city editor Lloyd Baker, took a year off studies to see the world. Last week she got too close to the picture. She and a friend from England were spectators to the student riots in Paris from a doorway when suddenly the action moved their way. They were sickened, Wendy reported, by the brutality, then frightened when they realized they were next on the police hit parade. The friend got thumped on the back, but both fled to safety, running, said Wendy, with the feeling that they were running for their lives.

A reader protests against our recent item concerning the hippie-type kids Spider and Cat, suggesting we should ignore them in the hope they will go away. Why waste this space in your column, we are asked.

Well it's this way. We think Spider and Cat and hundreds of others like them represent a social problem which will only be cured when everyone recognizes the problem exists. We think there must be something wrong with our education system when it spawns so many drop outs. We think that when so many youngsters spurn our churches, our political systems and the material things we value, we have failed in our objectives. We told about Spider and Cat hoping parents of other children might see a warning here.

We've just received a press release from the Canadian Forces Bast at Chibougamau, P.Q. containing a formal announcement, a related memo and a covering letter, all of them copies of originals which no doubt have been carefully filed in three pigeon holes. The whole bit must have taken the lieutenant who mailed it to us considerable amounts of taxpayer's time not to mention stationery and mailing costs.

Oh yes, it was announcement of the promotion of a private to corporal.

Buying another used car? B.C. Automobile Association lists things to check before signing a cheque:

Sagging seat springs, loose door handles, worn treads on brake pedals all indicate heavy wear and long mileage regardless of mileage recorded. Paint and body wrinkles indicate accident repairs which could mean hidden defects. Beware of sagging hard-to-close doors and stubborn windows. Uneven tire wear indicates wheel mis-alignment.

Brakes that "give" under pressure will require costly repair. Steering wheel "play" shouldn't exceed two inches, same for clutch. Excessive exhaust also may mean repairs ahead. Oil or water leaks on the garage floor are other warnings.

And we would add, spend a couple of dollars having your own service station check the car before purchase. If the seller won't permit it, go to another car lot.

Finally, ask for the name of the previous owner, or obtain it from the motor vehicles branch and ask him what expenses you may expect. Bear in mind your car soon will be required to pass a safety test in Victoria.

"When's the election?"

New Expo: On Parle Francais Ici

Special to the Times

OTTAWA — With the present strained state of the dialogue between Quebec and English speaking Canada due to the general election, perhaps it was inevitable.

But it came as a bit of a shock to the female member of the Times Ottawa Bureau. Assigned to travel with Prime Minister Trudeau when his press party visited Expo today she wondered if the newsmen would require special credentials to get into Expo.

Call the Expo administration office in Montreal, was the suggestion. Good idea.

She called the long distance operator and got the number for the Expo administration office. She put through the call to the office in Montreal.

A charming female voice answered and in French identified it as the expo administration office.

The English speaking reporter from western Canada enquired if when travelling with Mr. Trudeau today would she require special passes to get onto the Expo site?

"Do you speak French?" came back the query in French.

"No, I'm sorry," said the news woman.

"Click"—the line went dead as the expo staff worker hung up the telephone.

'Girls Can't Boil, An Egg'

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario schoolgirls should be paid by the province to take cooking courses during their summer holidays, says a Liberal member of the Legislature.

Eddie Sargent (Grey - Bruce) made the suggestion during debate on the labor department estimates.

Ruled out of order, he protested: "This is very serious. Girls are going out in life today not even able to boil an egg."

BENNETT PLANNING

Three July Elections, New Labor Post

(Special to The Times)

VANCOUVER — Premier Bennett Thursday indicated that he will call three byelections for late July and split the education and labor portfolios afterwards in a major shakeup of cabinet.

Mr. Bennett would not disclose the date but the byelections probably will be held July 22 or 29 in Oak Bay, North Vancouver-Capilano and Revelstoke to fill vacancies caused by resignations of two Liberals and an NDP MLA.

Asked why he did not intend to follow tradition by avoiding a poll during the summer vacation period, Mr. Bennett told reporters:

"What's more important, democracy or a holiday?

"It only takes a couple of minutes to vote."

He disclosed his plan during the question period at a wind-up rally, attended by an estimated 500 persons, on behalf of Social Credit candidate George Wainborn in the May 21 Vancouver South provincial byelection.

SURPRISES PETERSEN

His indication he will split the education and labor portfolios now held by Leslie Peterson reverses eight years of stoutly defending the dual responsibilities and caught most persons by surprise — apparently including Mr. Peterson.

A questioner at the rally asked Mr. Bennett when Mr. Peterson's portfolios would be split and the premier replied "sooner than you think."

He later told reporters it was a "planned announcement" but declined to elaborate, except to remind them that he had not said Mr. Peterson would retain the education portfolio after the split.

NO INKLING, HE SAID

Mr. Peterson, who was on the platform at the time and Tuesday had told another rally that there was no rift within cabinet, told reporters he had no inkling of the premier's intentions beforehand.

He was appointed to the prestigious education portfolio in 1956 and the important labor portfolio was added in 1960.

Mr. Bennett told the rally that next year "for the first time, we will have a budget — all on a pay-as-you-go basis — of over $1 billion."

He charged the opposition candidates in the byelection didn't hold public meetings during the campaign because they were afraid of facing the electorate.

He said voters were entitled to be critical of the government because Socreds too were only human but he appealed to them to ignore "little prejudices or the poison someone is putting in your mind" and support the government on polling day.

"Our critics have been the newspaper barons, the boys on the radio, the industrial leaders, the labor bosses," he said.

"They have been everyone but the people — but when the ordinary people speak on the ballot, that is what counts."

how to achieve the de-escalation."

The more hopeful U.S. and French diplomats believe a compromise would probably take the form of a secret understanding that if Johnson would "unconditionally" stop the bombing and "all other acts of war" North Vietnam would then scale down military operations.

Behind this hopeful view is the belief, especially among French authorities, that the North Vietnamese made a basic decision before coming here to investigate the possibilities for peace.

On the North Vietnamese side, Nguyen Van Saon, a press officer for Thuy, rejected a statement made by Harriman in the last meeting Wednesday that there are several areas of agreement between the United States and North Vietnam which should be built upon. Sao said the agreement was only "an agreement of words, not of content."

Harriman and Thuy had no further formal meetings until Saturday.

U.S. authorities say they assume that the North Vietnamese need time to consult with the Hanoi government. Such gaps between formal meetings may have a additional use in future, officials privately admit, since they could provide time for secret diplomacy to explore possible agreements.

Two Rebels Agree To Abstain

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The split in Liberal government ranks reached a climax date Thursday night when two cabinet defectors abstained on a divisional vote which approved a contentious piece of industrial development legislation.

The vote came after Premier Joseph Smallwood stunned the legislature by rising to withdraw charges or improper use of office levelled Tuesday after former health minister John C. Crosbie.

The bill was the immediate reason why Mr. Crosbie and Clyde Wells, former minister-without-portfolio, broke with the government Tuesday to become independent Liberals.

A few minutes before the vote, the premier advised them not to go on record as opposing the bill.

History woud soon forget their reasons but not their opposition to development of a big oil refinery complex at Come-By-Chance, 90 miles west of here, he said.

The eventual count was 26 Liberals against four Conservatives. When Mr. Crosbie and Mr. Wells remained seated, the premier led an enthusiastic round of desk-thumping. He leaned toward them and shouted: "Thank you, Thank you. Thank you very much."

The two Liberal defectors have said they agree with the principle of the bill. They object to a clause in it which gives the cabinet power to provide up to $5,000,000 interim financing to the American developers without security. They will oppose this clause in committee study.

Earlier Thursday Mr. Smallwood made a dramatic retraction of charges levelled Tuesday against Mr. Crosbie that he tried to use his cabinet office for the monetary gain of businesses operated by his family.

The premier alleged Mr. Crosbie tried to get contracts for them on construction of an apartment building here and on the Come-By-Chance project.

He said Bill Crosbie, uncle of the former minister, demanded the Come-By-Chance contracts from the New York promoters of the project, on the threat that John Crosbie would resign and bring down the government.

Mr. Crosbie denied the charges Tuesday.

Mr. Smallwood said Thursday these denials had to be accepted and he withdrew all the charges. He expressed regret at naming Bill Crosbie "during the heat of debate" and apologized for any possible character damage.

Apparently shocked cby the surprise retraction, Mr. Crosbie thanked the preoier, csaying such a reversal "takes some doing."

'PAY FOR MISTAKES OF PAST'

Moderate Tax Increases Needed, Says Kennedy

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Senator Robert F. Kennedy today accused the Johnson administration of being slow to react to danger signals in the U.S. economy and said some form of income tax increase is needed "to pay for the mistakes of the past."

Campaigning in Portland, Ore., for Oregon's May 28 presidential primary, the New York Democrat said the Vietnam war "has taken its economic toll" and a moderate increase in corporate and individual income taxes is necessary.

But the 10-per-cent income tax surcharge advocated by the president coupled with $6,000,000,000 in spending cuts, "would be strong medicine indeed for our economy," he said. "As many as 750,000 people might be thrown out of work, with a 30 per cent rise in unemployment."

One of Kennedy's rivals for the Democratic nomination, Senator Eugene J. McCarthy of Minnesota, was at the opposite corner of the U.S. today, trying to win support for a Florida slate pledged to support him at the Democratic national convention.

The pro-McCarthy slate will be up against two others in a Florida primary, also May 28. One is uncommitted, the other pledged to Senator George Smathers.

McCarthy bore down on the Vietnam issue as he swung through the state Thursday, accusing the administration of adopting, then dropping, one explanation after another to justify U.S participation in the war.

Vice-President Hubert H. Humphrey, the third contender for the nomination, had words of support and approval Thursday for the Poor People's Campaign.

Humphrey told leaders of the campaign, "your work is going to produce results."

Richard M. Nixon, seeking the Republican nomination, described in a radio address Thursday night a new "alliance of ideas" that he said is reshaping American thought.

Stanfield's Silent Treatment

IT IS UNFORTUNATE FOR CONservative Leader Stanfield that in recruiting a very able Quebec spokesman and possible future French-language lieutenant in the person of Mr. Marcel Faribault, he has added him to the Tory campaign in the full light of Mr. Faribault's opinions on provincial sovereign rights in dealing with foreign countries. Mr. Faribault's sentiments on this point are those of Quebec Premier Johnson, but they are not those of Mr. Stanfield's English-speaking party. In seeking to gain a badly needed foothold in Quebec, Mr. Stanfield has seriously embarrassed and compromised a great many members of his party.

In an effort to smooth this over, the Tory leader urges that the whole matter of provincial rights abroad—and particularly those of Quebec which are at issue—be kept out of the election campaign and reserved for the forthcoming constitutional talks between the federal government and the provinces. But there is little chance of that at this stage in the campaign, for Prime Minister Trudeau has rightly seen the point as a vital one in regard to Canada's viability as a federation—and it is, moreover, one which cannot be shelved until Canadians can conveniently get around to meeting on it.

Incidents which are not challenged by the federal government would inevitably be built into precedents, as Mr. Trudeau has pointed out; and it is fatuous for Mr. Stanfield to pretend, as he has in various speeches, that the present controversy with Quebec over the status of delegations abroad is in the same category with other relationships which some provinces have had from time to time with foreign authorities. The main difference is that the Quebec incidents have been designed by General de Gaulle and Mr. Johnson with the definite idea of creating precedents. Quebec participation in the educational conference in Gabon and Paris had a second purpose as a means to a constitutional end.

The federal White Paper on Federalism and International Conferences on Education makes it very plain that Ottawa welcomes provincial participation in conferences abroad so long as the delegations are under federal auspices and "speak, act and vote on behalf of Canada". Very wide provincial powers are envisaged in such delegations, but as Mr. Trudeau told 1,300 applauding French-speaking Chamber of Commerce members in Montreal this week: when foreign countries want to approach Canada "there is one address—Ottawa." The functions of nationhood cannot be splintered among a number of provinces, he said, if the nation is to survive. "In international law there are great countries and there are small countries but there are no half-countries."

It is this approach which Mr. Stanfield has chosen to denigrate as conjuring up visions, speaking nonsense and assuming a ridiculous position. He fears that with public discussion of the issue "the gulf will become wider, the attitudes on both sides more rigid, and the climate inflamed," as he told a Halifax audience Thursday night.

But the Conservative Leader, through such arguments, cannot stem public discussion of a vital national question, still less prevent it becoming a major campaign issue. He cannot hide the embarrassment of Mr. Faribault's unacceptable policies behind a cloak of silence. Even his own supporters across the country must have heard—and be wondering.

Turbulence on the Weather Map

GRANTED THAT THE SOVIET Union's leaders face a difficult and touchy task in attempting to manage the changed situation resulting from the wave of liberalization washing over East European countries, one should have thought they would have refrained from a vicious attack on the late Thomas Masaryk, first president of Czechoslovakia and generally regarded as the father of his country.

The attack in the newspaper Sovietskaya Rossiya charged that Masaryk subsidized murderers and spies in Russia during and after the civil war and accused him of "bloody crimes against the Soviet and Czechoslovak people." Despite the fact that he died in 1935, the newspaper claimed that Masaryk was responsible for loss of Czech independence in the Munich Pact of 1938 because he had earlier refused a treaty with Russia which would have permitted free passage of Soviet troops through Czechoslovakia to Poland—a troop movement route still of some significance 30 years later.

The attack on Masaryk seems to be part and parcel of the Soviet technique for dealing with the Czechs: apparent acceptance of their right to manage their own affairs, coupled with bitter criticism. The end result may well be to deepen the estrangement between the two countries as well as to provoke greater independence by Romania and Yugoslavia. Reports from Romania, where French President de Gaulle has been visiting, state that already there is talk of reviving the pre-war "Little Entente" of France, Czechoslovakia, Romania and Yugoslavia.

The enthusiastic reception given President de Gaulle by the Romanians may be taken as further evidence not only of the rising spirit of independence in the Soviet bloc, but also the very considerable danger which exists that there may be a point at which Russia will feel it must react with force in order to retain credibility as the leader of the Communist world. The French president is probably the only leader of a major Western country who could get away with urging a Soviet bloc country to look westward for trade and cultural ties. But although the Russians certainly do not want to antagonize France, they cannot much appreciate what they must regard as unwarranted interference in their sphere of influence.

So Little Time, So Much To Do

PRESIDENT JOHNSON, WITH others who have studied the matter, consider the job of president in the United States too big for one man to handle. He has suggested, as one means of freeing the chief of state from his multitudinous duties, allocation of at least some ceremonial functions to an "executive vice-president".

The idea has merit not only in the United States but wherever chief elected officials are subjected to so many calls on their time that there are not sufficient hours in the day to meet them and anyone who tries invites physical collapse. The problem reaches down to heads of councils at the municipal level where invitations from organizations deserving consideration can usurp the time and energy a public servant should conserve to meet the pressing responsibilities of his office—as Victoria's own conscientious mayor well knows.

As the situation now stands, an invitation declined may be an affront to the prospective host. But surely the time has arrived when an official stand-in should be an acceptable replacement for the original guest of honor.

"... Mr. Ho? ... I've told them your demands and the session will continue as soon as the laughter dies down. ..."

Control of Schools

Many Humanists and other loyal citizens, in this area, think it is about time that an un-Canadian Activities Commission should be set up to investigate, not only the interference of a certain foreign power in the affairs of the province of Quebec, but also the control of schooling in a large segment of the population of British Columbia, by the ruler of another foreign state, the potentate of the Vatican in Italy.

It is quite evident that such control exists over the welfare of many Canadian children, when we see by the Times of the 14th instant that a disagreement among the officials of a local school, St. Louis College, can only be solved by a decision of the Pope after petition sent to him by a group of Canadian parents.—Harold V. O'Reilly.

Why Not Ignore Them?

The heading in your newspaper "HIPPIE GATHERING IGNORED", why don't you do the same?

They are not really news you know.

Why not tell us about the other kinds of youth — in the same sized headlines; in the same prominent position in your newspaper; and (dare I say it) in the same admiring terms so often used by your reporters in describing the element called "Hippie" — F. G. Cope, 1677 Hollywood Cres.

MR. BALL'S OVERSIGHT

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

A Prevailing Canadian Desire to Remain Canadian

Hutchison

ANYONE who knows George W. Ball not only as an American statesman but as a great citizen of the world would expect his written credo to be an important book. So it is. "The Discipline of Power" inspects the state of humanity perhaps more profoundly than any book published since the last war. But ignoring his fast survey of mankind at large, I venture to think that the author is mistaken in assuming that eventually Canada will join the United States because the whole economic and political logic of the continent must compel this union.

Some angry Canadians are saying that Mr. Ball does not understand their country, or else that he and other powerful Americans are secretly plotting to seduce it where their ancestors failed, in two invasions, to conquer it. Actually, as I can testify after many talks with him, Mr. Ball understands the facts of Canada much better than most natives do and our country has no stronger champion in Washington. Nor has the United States any more candid critic than its newly-appointed ambassador to the United Nations.

Yet a Canadian friend is bound to remind him that while he understands all the facts, and can project them ahead to inevitable conclusions, only the imponderables, or non-facts, will count in the end. The conclusions are by no means inevitable because they depend mainly on the developing Canadian character which no native or foreigner can calculate.

Not By Economics Alone

Mr. Ball is too wise to suppose that economic forces alone decide the course of human events. He is not an upside-down Marxist like many businessmen who hate Communism and accept its basic premise. He argues, however, that Canadians will not always be satisfied with a living standard somewhat lower than that of their neighbors. Therefore, they will seek entry into the United States at some point to get their full share of its riches.

Mr. Ball will forgive a Canadian who believes that he has misinterpreted both the facts and the non-facts.

Factually it is obvious that Canadians, on average, are not as rich as Americans and cannot be until they produce an equal volume of goods per man-hour. The figures show the gap plainly enough but are they the true measurement of a living standard?

Surely the true measurement is the average happiness not the income of the human being and by that measurement would Mr. Ball claim that his own people are more fortunate and live better than Canadians? His book, with its frank and almost brutal summary of the American crisis on many fronts, gives a negative answer to that question. So, every day, does the news of American civilization, at home and abroad.

Silent Feelings

All the vital facts, or non-facts, of life are forever immeasurable, of course, except by the silent feelings of individual men, the only reliable measurement of anything important. By the measurement of the mind and heart instead of the stomach the Canadian must conclude that he is the most fortunate creature on this pitiable planet. And if a secret poll of Canadians could be taken undoubtedly fewer of them than in any former time would wish to become Americans.

There is nothing particularly heroic in this attitude. For the most part Canadians are thinking and acting out of sheer selfishness and a horror of inheriting their neighbors' grievous problems. Yet neither the magnitude of the United States' responsibilities, nor Canada's dependence on its markets, capital and defensive system prevents some Canadians from damning the nation most essential and most friendly to them. A few Canadian politicians have made a career of anti-Americanism, though not much of a career.

In strict truth Canadians say that their nation was built in defiance of continental geography, economics and the historic imperatives of power to establish certain indefinable values. On the whole their improbable experiment has succeeded but we often forget that it could not have succeeded if the United States had acted like all the great powers of the past and absorbed Canada long ago peacefully or by war.

The two decisive factors still govern the continent. Canada wishes to remain independent. The United States has no wish to possess Canada against it will. But the balance of the old equation has changed. The Canadians' will to be Canadian has greatly increased.

Not Very Clear

This may not be clear to Americans, since it is not very clear yet to many troubled Canadians. When the affairs of Canada appear to be in confusion, when we have grossly mismanaged our economy, above all, when we have not solved our primary, inescapable problem of race and culture, any foreigner is likely to think that we are in a bad mess, as bad a mess, indeed, as that of our neighbors. He is likely to think, too, that we must be eager to escape it by abandoning our experiment (as if that were an escape).

The non-fact, on the contrary, is that all the commotion in Canada, the brawl of politics and, most vividly, the emergence of a new phenomenon named Trudeau, mean precisely the opposite. They mean that the thing we call Canadianism, for lack of a better word, is more vigorous than it ever was before now and more determined to survive.

Here, as Mr. Ball will observe, we encounter an apparent paradox.

Most thoughtful Canadians realize that the world cannot go on long the way it is going now with new and prickly nationalities springing up every fortnight from the wilds of Africa to the civilized banks of the St. Lawrence. The doctrine of unrestricted nationalism, the absence of any effective world authority and international law, will finally demoralize if it does not destroy the human species.

Nevertheless, the Canadians who most ardently deplore nationalism and advocate some kind of world government usually are the most ardent nationalists, the strongest opponents of union with the United States. But this is not a real paradox after all.

No Unbalanced Marriage

Such Canadians would be prepared to accept a world authority or, short of that, to enter some multilateral grouping of like-minded nations but they oppose a bilateral marriage to the United States simply because a one-sided bargain between unequal partners would smother Canada altogether.

Well, an American may reply, why not? What is the use of defying logic and fighting geography when the struggle must be hopeless? To that legitimate question there are four good answers.

First, the struggle is not hopeless since it has succeeded better than we had any reason to hope or expect in earlier times. Second Canadians enjoy their separate way of life and that alone is the best possible reason to maintain it. Third, with their long experience, they can give their half of the continent better management than any inexperienced foreigners can provide. Fourth, and most valid of all reasons, Canada has a lesson to teach North America and the world, provided that the supreme Canadian problem is solved.

Could Be A Model

If we can fairly govern a dual society Canada will be a model for mankind. If we can ensure a good life for people of all racial origins it will not matter if our living standard, so-called, is a little lower statistically than the American standard. And if we can succeed in our primary task the American people will not discount and disparage Canada, they will envy and even try to imitate us.

We have this chance, unique in the contemporary world, but Mr. Ball thinks that we shall surrender it out of greed and appetite. I believe he is wrong in his prophecy but he is certainly right in believing that the non-facts which must settle Canada's future are no stronger than the ordinary Canadian's will to enforce and master them. Where is the future to be decided — in the stomach, or in the mind and heart? A good neighbour, Mr. Ball has done us a useful service in posing the final question.

SPECIAL REPORT FROM PARIS

By WILLIAM R. FRYE

American Gains in the Propaganda War

Frye

THERE is one war which, it is widely agreed, the United States is winning handily. It is the propaganda war which encompasses and profoundly influences the Vietnam peace talks here. The contrast between the effectiveness of American propaganda blockbusters and North Vietnamese firecrackers is so vivid as to be almost embarrassing. Over the long run, some observers think, it could backfire and stir sympathy for Hanoi.

W. Averell Harriman, the American negotiator, and his astute staff have adopted a posture of serious, constructive interest in peace, responding to North Vietnamese criticism — if at all — in a more-in-sorrow-than-in-anger tone, sometimes almost apologizing for digressing into the area of invective.

Xuan Thuy, Hanoi's representative, by contrast, does not apologize for invective. He marches into it with flags flying and trumpets blaring. His adjectives are lurid and his verbs explosive.

Observers here think Harriman has much more accurately judged the temper of world opinion. The world is deathly tired of name-calling over Vietnam, they believe, and eager for progress toward peace.

The contrast was illustrated Wednesday when Harriman urged Thuy to agree now on restoration of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) to its original and proper status. Thuy replied by charging that the United States was the only party violating it — a falsehood so blatant and obvious that observers were astonished he had thought it might be persuasive.

Western observers assume Thuy is stonewalling until the United States agrees to halt all its bombings and "other acts of war" against North Vietnam. If so, he is taking a licking in the process.

He has not succeded in focussing attention on the bombing halt. By simply talking, with an air of serious intent, about other subjects Harriman has broadened the agenda — and Thuy has followed him down many of the paths he has mapped out. Thus if Thuy came to Paris, as he presumably did, thinking he could muster overwhelming world pressure for a total bombing halt, he is being disillusioned. And this fact could significantly affect the course of the negotiations.

The respective press spokesmen are also unevenly matched. Nguyen Thanh Le, a deputy editor of the Hanoi paper Nhan Dan, holds his briefings almost stimultaneously with those of William J. Jorden, a New York Times alumnus.

Le was told this schedule would lose him much of his most influential audience, but he has stuck rigidly to it, apparently too proud to set a later hour and thus admit he had less drawing power. North Vietnam could not appear second best in anything.

Jorden simply had to make his sessions informative enough so correspondents could not afford to miss them, and Le was dead. Papers with one-man bureaus are getting Le's ideas filtered through second-hand fill-ins.

Candid Persuasiveness

Jorden has a colorless, matter-of-fact, sometimes disarmingly candid manner that is persuasive. His remarks, delivered in a tone reminiscent of the late Senator Joseph McCarthy (whom he does not resemble in any other respect), are skilfully nuanced.

Le is mercurial, emotional, an obvious propagandist working hard at his job. The rigidities, the aggressiveness and the habit of overstatement that the Russians began to shed in the 1950s, and which the Chinese still manifest, undercut his credibility.

Members of the American delegation have been available informally to the press. Harriman relaxes in the Crillon hotel press centre, has meals with newsmen, invites some to cocktail parties for backgrounding, and gives impromptu interviews.

The North Vietnamese have shut themselves up in the Lutitia hotel and, except for a handful of selected correspondents whom they know, rarely see anyone.

Looking Back

From the Times, May 17, 1908.

It is a long time since Oak Bay has put on such gala attire as that assembled on the opening of the newly formed Oak Bay Boating Club yesterday.

Over one hundred craft, sailing, power and rowing, were in the bay near Turkey Head and many of them were flying the colors of the new club. The scene was a striking one and it marks the return of Oak Bay to her old-time popularity as a resort for those on pleasure bent.

Opposing Quebec Views of Federalism

By CLAUDE RYAN

(An editorial in the influential Montreal daily, Le Devoir, written shortly before Marcel Faribault, policy adviser to Premier Johnson, announced that he would be a Conservative candidate in the federal election.)

Among French-Canadian public figures who have taken the trouble of setting out ideas favorable to federalism in somewhat detailed texts, two distinguish themselves from all the others by the strength of their reflection and by the shades of opinion that separate them.

The first one is Pierre Elliott Trudeau, whose main articles were published in a book called Federalism and the French Canadians.

The second is Marcel Faribault, whose book entitled Vers une nouvelle constitution was published a few months ago. (An English version on similar themes is entitled Unfinished Businesss: Some Thoughts on the Mounting Crisis in Quebec.)

Many studies and articles on the same subjects have appeared under other signatures. We do not know of any, however, that form a body of thought as coherent as those we find in these two books.

Always Alert

Mr. Faribault, whose mind is constantly alert despite the administrative and political tasks that take up most of his time, never delivers the same speech twice. Each time, he tries to advance his reflection further, to sharpen this or that observation, to discuss an aspect he has not mentioned before.

From one address to the next, he expresses the same approach, but an approach that evolves to apply to new situations, even though he has reached a respectable age . . .

His concept, without being a heresy in relation to the essential elements of federalism, is all the more interesting since it offers a counterweight to the concept championed by Mr. Trudeau.

We all know that the Prime Minister of Canada is quite fiercely opposed to nationalism. Strongly attached to individual rights, rooted equally in two of the greatest cultures in history, he fears a certain kind of French-Canadian nationalism.

What am I saying? He rejects and condemns it. It is not with this nationalism that he wants to build a federal society; rather, it is despite of or against this nationalism.

Suspicions

Mr. Trudeau is primarily suspicious of most forms of French-Canadian nationalism in Quebec. The reason is that he blames it for much of our backward position, he sees it as the potential source of serious political wrongs.

Mr. Faribault, a federalist just as sincere as Mr. Trudeau, takes a completely different approach. Mr. Trudeau does not like to talk about a "French-Canadian nation." He fears that if he uses this expression, he will tie himself to a school of thought that he dislikes.

He avoids like the plague any political expressions that would tend to imply that the state of Quebec is the "national state of the French Candians."

Mr. Faribault does not share these fears of the Prime Minister.

Having studied many works on philosophy and political science and all sorts of dictionaries, he has no qualms about references to the "French-Canadian nation." He has even written that Quebec is in fact "the national state of the French Canadians."

He has also written, in the same vein, that federalism is the system of government that corresponds most accurately to the reality of Quebec and of Canada.

Mr. Trudeau was very cautious about constitutional revision, until recently. Even after he accepted the idea of a general revision, he stressed that he would be very surprised if the forthcoming negotiations result in a radical shift in the division of powers between the two levels of government.

Mr. Faribault, on the other hand, has been advocating for years that the constitution of 1867 be dropped and replaced with a document that would be clearer, more modern, more coherent and more Canadian. Without tying himself to any particular formula, he has given frequent indications that under a new constitution, Quebec should dispose of broader powers than at present.

Starting Points

Where the two men differ most sharply is undoubtedly on the place that Quebec will occupy in the future constitutional order. Or more precisely, the starting positions of the two men on this issue.

Mr. Trudeau's position is well known. He opposes any degree of special status for Quebec. To any formula of this kind, he would much prefer a further decentralization of powers that would apply equally to all provinces.

Mr. Trudeau is, above all, the champion of the rights of the individual. It is in the perspective of human rights that he seeks to solve the problem of the two communities. Any attempt to formulate this problem in terms of political entities displeases him.

In the strict legal sense Mr. Faribault would not seek a special status for Quebec either, as an end in itself, if we have correctly understood the evolution of his thought in the past 10 years. When he published his book Ten to One (with Robert M. Fowler as co-author) we even criticized him for being too reticent in this connection.

But while Mr. Faribault the notary remains cautious and reserved, Mr. Faribault the politician knows how to express with vigor a reality that is self-evident and to which we feel, on hearing him, he is deeply attached. This reality is Quebec's undeniably original and distinctive character within the Canadian entity.

In his speech before the St. Jean Baptiste Society of Sherbrooke last weekend, Mr. Faribault came back to this familiar theme. Perhaps never before was the distance between him and a man like Mr. Trudeau revealed so clearly.

The mere mention of certain demands or slightly unusual initiatives by Quebec tends to displease or annoy Mr. Trudeau. The Prime Minister has chosen to wage his main battle for French Canadians in the field of linguistic equality. Any tendency by Quebec to claim different or exclusive powers for itself conflicts, in his mind, with the goal of equal language rights from coast to coast.

Quebec As Is

Mr. Faribault, on the contrary, favors a Canadian federalism that would recognize Quebec as it is, no more, no less.

He said in Sherbrooke, "Quebec can only proceed in constitutional talks from its own nature, and thus from its twin nationalism. One aspect of this nationalism, almost biological and at the same time spiritual, is the historical and sociological existence of Quebec, its language, its feelings, its aspirations and its drive. There is also the material and rational aspect of Quebec's climate, its environment, its civilization, its compromises, laws, advantages and instruments.

"The rest of Canada will also start from its nature, obviously, but because this other Canada is pluralist rather than homogeneous, a deep fear of separatism will exist in certain minds and this will tend to preserve the status quo.

"This fear seems pointless to me because I believe in the continued existence of Canada. I believe in Canada just as much as I believe in Quebec and as I believe in a Quebec role within Canada that will make both greater, stronger, more prosperous, more spiritual, more exemplary and both mine all the more, at the same time."

Inevitable

Once this approach has been adopted, one quickly reaches the conclusion that a certain form of special status for Quebec will become inevitable in the Canadian federation of tomorrow.

Logical with himself and his premises, Mr. Faribault does not seek this special status as an ultimate end in itself. He even avoids specifying in detail what this status will involve. He merely predicts, on the basis of the sociological evidence, that this special status will have to exist.

And he adds in carefully chosen words, "If there is no particular virtue in claiming to be different from others, at the same time there is no vice in pointing to undeniably real differences and in saying how we wish to change the present system and status."

American Catholics Face 'Unthinkable' On Separate Schools

By SUSAN JACOBY

WASHINGTON — Parochial schools, a bulwark of Roman Catholicism in the United States for nearly a century, have now become entangled in the issue of how much money and effort the church should devote to fighting poverty in the nation's urban ghettos.

Leading liberal figures in the church are beginning to talk about what was once unthinkable to American Catholics — abandoning or radically altering the traditional parochial school system. They want the church to use a large share of the money it has been spending on parish schools for educational projects to serve the poor of all faiths.

The Very Rev. Msgr. James C. Donohue, head of the education department of the U.S. Catholic Conference, has urged that each diocese establish an "urban educational foundation" that would channel money to community groups in much the same manner as the Ford Foundation.

Writing in the April issue of the Jesuit-published magazine "America," Msgr. Donohue argued that such a foundation would "enable the church to retain its independence and avoid making a public and irrevocable alliance with local political and school authorities, who are often at odds with Negroes over the determination of needs. Such an alliance in these days of black power and frequent conflict between politicians and black voters would be both dangerous and unnecessary . . ."

Phasing Out

Msgr. Donohue indicated that many parish schools would have to be "phased out" to finance extensive educational programs in the ghetto. He noted that Catholic schools absorb at least half of the total expenditures of 153 archdioceses in the nation.

Parishes traditionally finance their own schools, a practice which has created educational disparities between Catholic schools in the suburbs and the inner city similar to those in the public schools. The more affluent Catholics have fled to the suburbs, leaving the city schools with inadequate financial resources to serve a student population that is increasingly poor and, in many cities, increasingly Negro.

Says one Catholic educator: "I think we have to face the fact that spending the church's money on poor black people might well drive some Catholics to leave the church. We remember to our shame that many of the people who threw rocks at Martin Luther King two years ago in Chicago were Catholic."

The educator was referring to an open housing march led by Dr. King in the summer of 1966 through the Chicago suburb of Cicero. The march was broken up by jeering, rock-throwing whites, most of them from heavily Catholic neighborhoods of Eastern European ethnic origin.

Msgr. Donohue emphasizes he is speaking as an individual and not in his official capacity at the U.S. Catholic Conference, which represents all American bishops.

"If the church's only purpose is to serve the comfortable middle class, I don't believe it has much of a future in America," he says.

The urban crisis, however, is only one factor in the minds of those who propose major changes in the parochial school system.

Heavy Burden

Catholics who pay high taxes to live in the suburbs are under an increasingly severe financial burden as a result of being asked to support two school systems.

The anti-Catholicism of 19th century America, directed most strongly at Irish and Italian immigrants, provided the major impetus for the founding of the parochial school system. Now that the public schools are non-sectarian in practice as well as theory and anti-Catholicism is no longer an important force in life, many Catholic parents no longer see why they should make the financial sacrifice to send their children to parochial schools.

Statistics No Consolation

COMMONWEAL

((U.S. Catholic Weekly)

For those still playing the numbers game, the new edition of Kennedy's Official Catholic Directory doesn't offer much consolation on the state of the American Church.

Infant baptisms, down 84,096 in last year's Directory, are off another 51,594 this year to 1,139,248. (Catholic marriages, on the other hand, went up 10,226 to 371,155.)

Converts, down 5,671 a year ago, have dropped another 6,761 to 110,717, the lowest total since 1953.

Ordained priests, up 699 a year ago, are down 89 this year. (The number of diocesan clergy increased 582; religious order priests dropped 671.)

Also, there are 278 fewer Brothers, 330 fewer seminarians; 204,341 fewer students in Catholic elementary schools; 14,489 fewer students in Catholic high schools, and 250 fewer Catholic educational institutions.

Meanwhile, the Catholic population of the U.S. rose to a high of 47,468,333.

Canadians Need Freedom From Language of Hate

By DOUGLAS FISHER and HARRY S. CROWE

Fisher

Before this incident recedes from mind to be supplanted by another similar one, we wish to comment upon the latest sordid affair at Toronto's Allan Gardens.

It was a demeaning sight to see the pictures of 200 or more Toronto policemen protecting a squalid little Nazi from the retribution which he was calculating would fall upon him for his conduct. A public park, set up and cared for at public expense for the enjoyment of the public denied to the citizens of the city, and the horde of policemen needed for a wide range of pressing duties—and all for what?

Crowe

So that someone could spew forth some venom which, if uttered at Hyde Park Corner in London would result in his arrest under the Race Relations Act, and his being tossed in the clink.

There are moments when it seems that we have utterly lost our perspective in this country.

It has to be said again and again—so here goes—this has nothing whatever to do with free speech. Nowhere in the world has fair comment greater latitude for expression than in Canada, and no one is suggesting that it should be abridged. No one that is except those who violate its canons to disseminate racial hatred. They would not merely abridge it. They would end it for good.

Not only do we permit someone to propagate the destruction of our freedoms; we subsidize him.

* * *

Could we not begin with the proposition that public parks are for the public? Could we not get it across to those in authority that as taxpayers we do not wish our tax dollars to be used to provide guards for someone who is dedicated to overthrow of the kind of civilization we have so slowly built up over the centuries, for which we have fought, and if need be will fight again?

Where in the British North America Act, the statutes of the Province of Ontario, or the bylaws of the City of Metro, do our civic functionaries find the authority to subsidize Nazism?

In the first instance, therefore, those who seek to destroy us should be required to do their dirty work at their own expense. Let them pay for their own platforms.

But that is just the beginning.

There are numerous types of utterances which are not lawful in our society. Shouting "Fire!" in a crowded theatre, seditious libel, obscenity and scurrility among them. There are very many others which will lay one open to private recourse through the courts.

* * *

In civilized communities, or at least more civilized and more sensible of the horrors of the recent history of mankind, there are other utterances which are not lawful. Specifically, the preaching and propagating of hate of a race and the promotion of genocide are illegal. This must be made so in Canada.

When Mr. Trudeau dissolved Parliament, Bill S-5 died on the order paper. This was a bill to amend the Criminal Code to make it an offence to promote genocide, to incite hatred or contempt against a defined identifiable group where such incitement is likely to lead to a breach of the peace, and further to make it an offence wilfully to communicate untrue statements, knowing them to be false and not for the public benefit, which promote hatred against an identifiable group.

* * *

There are persistent rumors that Bill S-5 will have a hard time being re-born. Certainly Liberal Senator Dan Lang and a small group of other Liberals, taking a mistaken civil libertarian line, are hotly opposed to the measure.

Despite these reports we are certain that it will be back on the order paper, if not as a government bill then as a private member's with very wide support from all parties.

Back in the 1930s one of the great books of that formative decade which made a lasting impression on us was Marvin Lowenthal's The Jews of Germany. We have quoted from it a number of times, as when we implored the CBC not to bring neo-Nazi von Thadden to Toronto.

We go back to it again: "As the German Jew sinks from the stage of history, he leaves in the very process of this demise a heritage richer perhaps than anything his genius or days of vigor achieved. He leaves a lesson for every minority . . .

"No land can remain half-bigot and half-tolerant. The fight against fanaticism is one fight; no matter who the victims are . . . The liberty of no individual can rise higher than its source; and this source is the general liberty of man."

* * *

A condition of liberty is freedom from the literature and language of hate. The proposed Bill S-5 was hedged in with a number of restricting and limiting devices which the British did not include in their Act. But we have gone through it carefully, discussed it with lawyers, and are ready to take it as it is. (Although we would like to have "religious group" added to the identifiable goups.)

If this legislation is enacted, let it be emphasized, the police cannot interfere with a speech or a publication, nor can the courts, before it has been uttered or communicated. But after the event, if someone has preached genocide or as a premeditated act incited hatred against a group, then society can act.

Group protection, group liberty, are marks of a civilized community which is conscious of the wretched pages of the history of this century.

Rhodesians Live in Dream World

By JOHN COLE
The Manchester Guardian

LIVINGSTONE, Zambia — We sit, this Frenchman and I, in the Sunday sunshine on the terrace of the Victoria Falls Hotel, just on the Rhodesian side of the Zambezi.

Half a mile away we can see the handsome bridge which spans one of the river's contorted gorges and carries the railway and road and most of the traffic, human and freight, between Zambia and Rhodesia now that direct flights between Salisbury and Lusaka have been stopped. In the air is the huge floating mass of spray from the falls which create their own clouds in the bluest sky.

The Frenchman, an electronics expert who is touring his country's embassies in Africa, clearly feels that politics are far away. The scene is very English (Colonial — age of the RAF). Sitting under our jacaranda trees we watch waiters in spotless white drill suits and blue sashes weaving between the colored umbrellas on the grass below, serving the pre-lunch drinks to guests who are, of course, all white.

Bronzed young men in shorts and girls in miniskirts saunter down to the swimming pool. Their elders sit sleepily on the terrace. Canned music on the loudspeakers is "Won't You Come Home, Bill Bailey" and "Tipperary."

●

The Frenchman blinks at this. "Mille neuf quatorze," he says in surprise. "Fin de siecle," I reply. "Plus Anglais que les Anglais," he concludes and — the demands of conversation satisfied for a time — we return to our cold beer.

Victoria Falls, as well as being a holiday centre is a staging post for those making the now difficult journey between Salisbury and Lusaka. It used to take an hour by plane but now a visitor in Lusaka who decided to spend a weekend in Salisbury must fly to Livingstone, cross the Zambezi and the two border posts in bus, and fly on from Victoria Falls airport to Salisbury.

It is the two long sides of a triangle and can take 11 hours, particularly on the way north. The journey is easy or difficult as the mood takes those unpredictable people who man frontiers.

●

I crossed southwards with comparatively little pain. An emergency treasure chest of a few dollars worried the young Zambian customs but when I produced a membership card of the British National Union of Journalists he took it as a licence for eccentric habits. A re-entry visa was necessary that week but it was painlessly obtained. Then across the Zambezi to rebel territory.

The aggressively white young officers in equally white uniform shorts were brisk and efficient. The form to be filled in on the bus had presented a minor moral dilemma. There was one space for nationality and a separate one for race. I balked at writing "European" and compromised with "Nationality — British: Race — Irish."

This was accepted without a flicker of the eye as was the copy of President Kenneth Kaunda's autobiography "Zambia Shall Be Free" in my bag.

But no one was asleep and the form entry opposite employer produced a sharp stroke of the red pencil under "Guardian" and a volley of questions.

Why was I going? Where was I staying? And if I couldn't get there? And if I friends was I seeing? Was I on business? The addresses, he said, were just in case they wanted to "contact me."

On from Victoria Falls to Kariba, where there were elephants on the airport runway and a poster saying "Guard Against Gossip: Rhodesia Is Fighting an Economic War." And so to Salisbury and never-ceasing talk about UDI (Unilateral Declaration of Independence).

As elsewhere there are as many opinions as there are people but their eccentricity is magnified by the fact, freely acknowledged even by supporters of the regime, that local sources of information are unreliable.

My own kinsman put it more bluntly: The newspapers, radio and television are doctored. He responds to this by erecting an aerial which allows him to get the BBC direct from London.

My friend goes further. He organizes inter-racial football matches with the help of other churchmen. They are mostly too old for football but it is not points in a league standing they are after. He signs the governor's book on the Queen's birthday and the anniversary of UDI. He has even been known to shout "Up Harold Wilson" at public meetings.

Other acquaintances are less certain. Some would have welcomed military action by Britain at the time of UDI but feel that the opportunity has passed, accept Rhodesian Front control as inevitable, and think that sanctions are only holding up the economic development of the country.

Yet the shops are bustling with business; and the Whites lead a pleasant if socially restricted life in what one friend said was now the most privileged society in the world not excluding South Africa.

African servants, treated with paternalistic kindness and permitted to live in European areas in their little houses, smooth the rigors of life in a glorious climate. All the people one meets (by which, of course, is meant all whites, for Africans are not called people but Africans) seem to have one or more cars. These are necessary, for public transport is poor and most Africans have to get around by walking, thumbing lifts or saving up to buy bicycles, as the servants living far from their families often do.

Though less obviously than in the dream world of Victoria Falls, people in Salisbury also have the air of inhabiting an isolated staging post of history.

Some tell you of right-wing breakaways from the Rhodesia Front who regard Ian Smith as a long-haired liberal, likely to let the blacks in within ten years. Everyone asks you nervous questions about conditions in Zambia, their nearest test tube for African rule.

The more thoughtful realize that their real choice is between South Africa and Apartheid on the one hand, and a remarriage with the world on the other. But no one I met had any idea how that remarriage would come about.

BURNABY

Perrault, Maclean Nominated

BURNABY, B.C. (CP) — Ray Perrault, declaring himself no sacrificial lamb, won the Liberal Party nomination Thursday night to run in Burnaby-Seymour in the June 25 federal election.

Mr. Perrault, Liberal MLA for North Vancouver and provincial party leader, was described by opponent T. C. Douglas, national New Democratic Party leader, as a sacrificial lamb.

"It will be the NDP that gets skinned June 25," said Mr. Perrault.

Mr. Douglas was MP for the now redistributed Burnaby constituency in the last House.

Mr. Perrault won the nomination over R. H. Davidson, director of special education in the nearby municipality of Coquitlam. The vote was not disclosed.

He said a fight to unseat Mr. Douglas will be tough—"we're going into the election the underdog" but it will not be a token campaign.

At a Progressive Conservative nomination convention, Charles Maclean, 35-year-old lawyer, was named candidate by acclamation.

He said the candidacy of Mr. Perrault and Mr. Douglas offered voters "the dismal choice between creeping socialists and socialist creeps."

Mr. Perrault, 42-year-old public relations man, became the youngest political leader in the province in 1959 when he was elected party leader—but without a seat. He won a seat the following year and saw Liberal membership in the legislature increase to six seats from two.

MUST RESIGN

He must resign his provincial seat before he files his nomination papers.

Meanwhile, in Vancouver South, Northern Affairs Minister Arthur Laing was nominated and told 200 supporters Ottawa is leaning over backwards to co-operate with a reluctant British Columbia government.

Referring to an Ottawa-Victoria argument over which is to control a planned port at Roberts Bank 16 miles south of Vancouver, Mr. Laing said:

"We must pay attention to the premiers of Alberta and Saskatchewan when they say seaports should be operated by the federal government.

"It is important that Ottawa and the provinces co-operate fully, that they do not step on each other's toes and that they do not multiply or duplicate services."

GORST NOT ON BALLOT

Esquimalt-Saanich Grits Name Anderson

Esquimalt-Saanich Liberals Thursday named David Anderson, a lean former Olympic rower, as their candidate for the June federal elections.

Mr. Anderson, 31, a specialist in the external affairs department and lawyer, was a member of the UBC rowing team that represented Canada at the Olympics in 1960.

He won the candidacy with a clear majority, receiving a total of 44 votes on the first ballot.

Two others, William Haley, a Saanich high school teacher, and James Campbell, Saturna Island sheep rancher and vice-president of the B.C. School Trustees Association, received 20 and 10 votes respectively.

A total of 87 members were entitled to vote, but 13 did not cast ballots.

ANDERSON

WITHDRAWS

The surprise of the meeting was the decision of James Gorst, whose April 22 nomination was invalidated by provincial Liberal directors, to withdraw his candidacy after he had been nominated at the meeting.

Mr. Gorst, a taxi driver and Liberal candidate in the last federal election, said he could not allow his name to go to a vote and condone the action of the provincial body.

The April meeting, he said, was properly called and regulations followed.

He charged the provincial body with upsetting his nomination on a "transparent technicality"—a technicality which had not been applied to similar Liberal nomination meetings held in the province.

Esquimalt Mayor Ray Bryant, who nominated Mr. Anderson, said he wished to dismiss the suggestion that the candidate was an outsider.

"He was born in Victoria and not only did I know him for many years but my wife attended Victoria High School with him," he said. "His only absence from Victoria has been to serve his country for six years in the department of external affairs."

He noted that Mr. Anderson had served as an assistant Canadian government trade commissioner in Hong Kong, as a legal adviser to the Canadian Commissioner in Vietnam, and was the desk officer responsible for Chinese affairs.

"The reason I'm nominating him this evening is because I sincerely feel that he is the best possible candidate to beat Conservative George Chatterton and to allow the people of Esquimalt-Saanich to have a voice in the government."

Mr. Anderson said he believes he can win the election against the Progressive Conservative candidate.

'WON'T BE EASY'

"But it won't be easy," he said. "This riding hasn't elected a Liberal since 1940."

But, he added, the Liberals could win if they remained united under the leadership of Mr. Trudeau.

Mr. Anderson said he was interested in obtaining federally owned land—in particular unused military reserve land—for parks, as well as in the improvement of harbors and marine facilities to attract a greater number of tourists to the area.

Both Mr. Haley and Mr. Campbell spoke strongly of economic policies which would make Canada independent of foreign control.

The meeting was attended by more than 200 people, many representing the Victoria riding.

Guidance training for girls at the school this year has featured field trips to local institutions, speakers and discussion periods.

'Heigh Ho, Silver!' Ringing Over Waves

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

Sounding his celebrated war whoop, "Heigh Ho, Silver," Victoria's most famous cowboy is off again to ride herd upon the waves, his favorite year-round "range."

Ned Ashe no longer whimsically lassoos mooring posts with a skilful twirl of the rope. These days, he confines his rope handling to "Sheeting In" the mainsail of whatever sailboat he happens to be skippering.

But he is entitled to be called a cowboy.

Hewett

Born in southern Alberta on his father's ranch, the Lazy YL, Ned spent his boyhood years around Milk River, close to the Montana border.

By age five, he was riding. By his teens, he was adept at handling a horse, a rope—and a revolver. A cowhand in those days needed a gun for protection against wild stallions and equally wild cattle rustlers. (Lazy YL had 1,000 head of cattle, and 600 head of horses.)

Then, Gilbert Percy Ashe, Ned's father, came west and settled at Albert Head. He acquired, in rapid order more than 100 acres of farmland and a 65-foot yawl. Ned followed in 1911, and busied himself with the chores of tending crops, Jersey cows, silver foxes, and the farm's "Holiday Cottages."

At this point in his young manhood. Ned Ashe took to an alien element, the water, in his father's yacht. And ever since, his life has been interwoven with the sea, except for a brief spell in France during the First World War.

•

The maritime tradition in the Ashe family extends back several generations.

Ned's grandfather was a retired rear-admiral of the Royal Navy, who at one time was in charge of the Royal Observatory at Quebec City. In his younger days, he visited Victoria as fourth officer of a sailing ship which made one of the first surveys of Esquimalt Harbor.

Nicknamed "Paddy," Grandfather Ashe was honored twice on local navigational charts with Ashe's Point and Paddy's Pass. Following in "Paddy's" footsteps, Ned also served with the Royal Navy. During the Second World War, Ned was "on loan," along with 60 other yachtsmen from across Canada. This group filled in during the early days of the war while the British Navy trained more of their own men in coastal navigation.

Ned was based in Granton (near Edinburgh), where he served on the small trawlers which cleared the channels of mines in the pre-dawn hours so the big ships could get through.

His "career" as Victoria's most durable—and outstanding—yachtsman spans six decades. He has challenged, and won, in every division from 9-foot dinghy through large keelboat. (In the early days, he thought nothing of sailing his 14 foot dinghy Vera over from Albert Head, competing in a race and sailing back again.)

One of his first boats, a sloop with a bowsprit and very deep keel, was built in 1911 for Lieutenant Governor H. J. S. Muskett. Ned called her the Idle Hour, and Jack Gann, the present owner, has renamed her the Sea Time.

One of the more recent highlights was the 1965 victory for Ned at the helm of May D II, when he was first boat home and also winner on corrected time in the Juan de Fuca Race.

But you couldn't call it the climax. Ned and May D II are still chalking up a string of first and second places in the Victoria Thunderbird fleet, which is one of the largest and most competitive one design classes in the area.

Ned will be at the helm of May D II in this weekend's Victoria Regatta. And for the 1968 Juan de Fuca Race, he will skipper Tsonoqua, a 26 foot Haida boat owned by longtime friend Dr. Ron Scott-Moncreiff. Over the years, as a helmsman, yachtsman, and mariner, Ned Ashe has acquitted himself with honor and distinction.

And as far as sailing is concerned, he will forever remain, Victoria's "Favorite Scn."

•

SHORT TACKS: Ned Ashe this year was made Honorary Commodore of Royal Victoria Yacht Club, which he joined in 1913 . . . Monday will see the RVYC club eliminations for the Mallory Cup team sailed off in Cadboro Bay in flying juniors. Five crews will contest, entered by Geoff Arndt, Doug Beer, Robert Grundison, Ron Love, and Norman Marcus . . . Ernie Higgs, a Thunderbird skipper during the summer, will round out Concubine's Swiftsure crew. Ernie races the winter series and Bedwell races with Frank Bush, and will be going on his third lightship race . . . Among those who graduated in the Power Squadron basic piloting course were Colonel Denis and Hiliary Swinburne, the original owners of the sailboat Tsu Hang, made famous by the Smeetons. (Tsu Hang was built for Col. Swinburne in Hong Kong, while he was stationed there.)

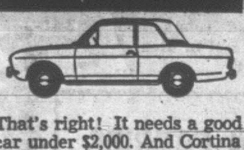
WHAT THIS COUNTRY NEEDS IT HAS . . .



That's right! It needs a good car under $2,000. And Cortina is it. Ford Cortina costs $1995. We admit it's not far under $2,000, but then it really can't be. It just offers so much!

FIRSTLY—It's not a small car. It's big and roomy.

SECONDLY—It has lots of power and economy.

THIRDLY—Its solid unit body construction makes it durable and quiet.

FOURTHLY—It is safety engineered to conform to all North American safety standards.

We could go on and on about Cortina features, but to keep the price down, we keep these ads small.

'Lord Elliott' Irks Quebec PM

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Quebec Bureau

QUEBEC CITY — Since 1960 it has been fashionable in Quebec to yawn at federal elections. What counted was provincial politics. Ottawa was remote and irrelevant.

This time yawns will be few. The campaign, as manpower minister Jean Marchand told his nomination convention Tuesday, threatens to be something of a brawl. And the focus of the conflict is Pierre Elliott Trudeau and all he stands for.

Marcel Faribault made it clear, when he became Robert Stanfield's leading Quebec supporter, that it was primarily to combat Mr. Trudeau that he was getting into the campaign. His chief target was Mr. Trudeau's constitutional policies but he also attacked the prime minister's social and economic policies as "unduly socialistic."

Premier Daniel Johnson, whether he enters the campaign in Mr. Stanfield's favor or not, is already in it in opposition to Mr. Trudeau. He accused Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Marchand of "racist" campaigning, but did not make it clear which "race" was their victim.

The man who had done most to get Mr. Johnson's irish up on this occasion was not "Lord Elliott", as he likes to call Mr. Trudeau, but Mr. Marchand, who in a speech in Vancouver had called the Johnson government "artificial", and then returned to Quebec to accuse Mr. Johnson, in thinly veiled terms, of demogogism.

Although, in principle, the main bout is between two federal parties, nobody has really attacked Mr. Stanfield yet. The Liberals sound as if they were running against the Union Nationale, which in great measure they are, since Mr. Stanfield had not had time to build an autonomous conservation organization in the province before the election was called.

Non-Political

Mr. Trudeau criticized Mr. Faribault's constitutional views in his "non-political" speech to the Montreal French-language chamber of commerce Tuesday. But he linked Mr. Faribault's name to that of Mr. Johnson, not Mr. Stanfield.

The best Conservative hopes for modest gains are based on recruiting good local candidates, men whose names are well known in their ridings although they may mean nothing elsewhere in the province.

It was this strategy that enabled Daniel Johnson to upset all predictions and put together a majority seat by seat in 1966. Conservatives could also have some help at the riding level if disappointed contenders for the Liberal candidacy run as independents and split the Liberal vote. This is an old failing of Quebec Liberals in some areas where the party has come close to having a monopoly of voter support.

BEARS BRUNT OF CUTBACK

Army Faces Big Problem With Manpower Shortage

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's army, particularly the infantry, has borne the brunt of a manpower cutback in the unified forces.

The reduction in army strength has already led to a shuffle reducing the number of battalions and could lead to more. It has made it even more likely that Canada soon will reduce the army component of her North Atlantic Treaty Organization force in Europe.

Total army strength at the end of February was 40,430, down from 42,580 at the end of May, 1967.

The army loss of 2,150 personnel in this nine-month period was more than triple that of the air component and almost triple the net loss in naval ranks.

The latest defence department figures are the ones up to the end of February.

They show total forces manpower of 102,386—44,368 for the air component and 17,588 for the naval component plus that 40,430 for the army.

TOTAL NOW LOWER

But a defence official says "it is safe to assume" that, in the almost three months since the official count, the over-all forces total has dropped close to the 100,000 mark.

During the nine months in which the army suffered a net loss of 2,150 personnel, the air component was reduced by only 657 men and the naval component by 779.

Early this month, the defence department announced the disbanding of the 2nd Battalion of the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada. The Calgary-based battalion of this famous infantry regiment is down to about 350 men. Normal battalion strength is about 900.

The regiment's 1st Battalion is based at Victoria and there is a reserve militia battalion of the regiment in Toronto.

Men from the disbanded battalion are expected to be posted to other units but this will not solve the manpower shortage. Informants say other battalions have been running well under strength for more than a year.

RECRUITING BRISK

Recruiting for the forces was running at a brisk pace last year in the wake of a late-1966 pay increase of about 14 per cent for servicemen.

But the army, and particularly the infantry, did not get enough new men to replace those retiring after fulfilling their period of enlistment.

One informant said recently that infantry enlistments had dropped to about 15 a month. Youngsters entering the service were lured by other branches where they could concentrate on a trade that would be useful once they returned to civilian life.

Old Style beer in easy-open cans, Light, compact, quick cooling cans that you don't have to store or return. And they can't break. The beer hasn't changed. It's the same good old fashioned flavor you've been buying in bottles . . . with the same zany characters on the label. All we've added is the clank.

Canada Eyes New York Gold Market

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is eyeing the obvious advantages of the New York market for the subsidized gold now piling up at the Mint, a finance department spokesman said this week.

The stockpiling of the gold has been going on since March when Canada went along with a decision of the gold-pool countries to cease trading in gold between central banks and the public.

The Mint continues to buy gold at a subsidized price from Canadian mines whose production costs exceed $26.50 an ounce. To get the subsidy, the mines must sell their gold to the Mint.

The finance department spokesman said the New York market buys gold at the London market price and adds about 35 cents an ounce as the cost of shipping from Europe to the United States. Canada's cost of shipping gold to the U.S. obviously would be much lower.

Before Canada can start selling itss gold in the private market, however, it must improve its refining methods.

Gold is refined at the Mint now but its purity of 99½ per cent is below that required by industry.

A question still to be settled is whether the Mint will continue in its refining or whether the work will be done elsewhere.

Treasury Bills

OTTAWA (CP)—New 91-day Government of Canada treasury bills auctioned Thursday: $105,000,000 at an average price and yield of 98.301 and 6.93 per cent. $ EXCHANGE

Big Wage Hikes Hit

VANCOUVER (CP) — A surge of wage increases in B.C. may force government to impose economic restraints, the B.C. division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association was told Thursday.

William Hamilton, retiring chairman, said "it is obvious that wage settlements in the order of nine per cent a year ... indicate that the surge of wage increases has gone right through the roof."

Mr. Hamilton, postmaster general in the last Conservative government, said imposition of compulsory restraints on an arbitrary basis is not in the interests of labor or management.

Growers Wine Studying Expansion

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Directors of Growers Wine Co. are pondering methods of financing proposed expansion of Victoria operations before deciding how far to go this year.

Kent

New warehousing facilities and bottling capacity are needed at the 46-year-old winery, on Quadra, a company spokesman said. Sufficient land is held to enable suitable additions, provided Saanich and the government agree to closing a short side street flanked by Growers property.

The company has reserves and assets to cover the cost of expansion, but tne question is whether it would be wiser to finance by borrowing or through equities.

Growers has been expanding steadily for about the last 10 of the 41 years it has been situated in the Lake Hill district.

Within the last four years a high-speed bottling line was installed for some of the new wines being vinted. Now, it is proposed to remove the older bottling line and install a second high-speed line.

If this is done Growers will ship the old equipment to its Saskatchewan winery at Moose Jaw.

In its 1967 report, Growers shows net earnings of $106,000 for the year ended Dec. 31. Due to a change in procedures, the previous period covers only eight months, in which net earnings came to $21,000.

There was no comparison of per share earnings given, although a spokesman said the number of shares outstanding was about the same for both periods.

He said it would be difficult to translate last year's figures to show a comparison with the eight months of 1966.

Other comparisons, with the eight-month figures appearing in brackets, were: sales before excise taxes, $3,895 million ($2.534 million); net sales $3.053 million ($2.001 million); costs including depreciation, administration and taxes $2.977 million ($1.998 million); net earnings $106,000, including about $30,000 of other income ($21,000).

A national acceptance company that has financed Canadians for 46 years is offering yields of up to 7.67 per cent on short term notes of 120 to 365 days. Bank lending rates have been going up, despite a changing climate in Canada's reserve position that should enable a drop in the central bank rate.

Playboy Magazine and Business Week have a few things in common. Both are read by many a young (perhaps older types, too) executive, they are turned out on slick paper, heft the same, are both colorful.

But last week's edition of the business mag brings the comparison a lot closer to Playboy's stock in trade — the centre fold nude.

An ad by Allied Chemical spreads a titian-haired lovely in interesting pose all the way down to her haunches, which may do something for Business Week if not Allied Chemical.

The B.C. attorney-general's department is taking an active part in policing the Consumer Protection Act, which pleases Better Business Bureau manager William Tindall.

When the legislation first came out it was feared that enforcement might be up to individuals to launch civil suits. But Mr. Tindall reports that complaints forwarded by him have been acted upon, and two of three recent ones have produced results.

The department has indicated it does not look with favor upon sellers attempting to hide behind technicalities, he said, referring to some cases where vendors have maintained the purchase of goods took place off domestic premises.

Amendment of the act, effective June 1, does away with the loophole.

TAKEOVER COMPLETED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Jim Pattison, Neon Products of Canada, Ltd., president, said Thursday acquisition of Overwaitea, Ltd., has been completed with issuance of 501,910 Neon common shares.

Mr. Pattison said the transfer represents 100 per cent of Overwaitea's common shares, which were exchanged on a one-for-one basis.

The transaction was valued at about $12,500,000 at current market prices for the shares, up from the $8,000,000 evaluation at the time the deal was first announced in February.

It's the Modern Way!

WE TOOK THE ENGINE OUT OF THE LOADSPACE
(IT STARTED A WHOLE CHAIN OF BETTER IDEAS)

New! 302 cu. in. V-8 available. Choice of two economy Sixes — 170 cu. in. or 240 cu. in. — or big new Ford 302 V-8. Manual or Cruise-O-Matic transmissions.

New! Engine clear of loadspace. Engine's shifted 22 inches forward, complely out of load area. New "sandwich" insulation in cover blocks heat and noise.

We moved the engine forward to give you 23% more floor area

New! Driver "walk-thru." Step back into the cargo area from the driver's seat. You no longer have to walk around the van and open side doors to reach forward part of load.

New! Biggest loadspace. 23% more clear floor area than in other vans. Ford Vans now offer over 8½ ft. load length; SuperVans over 10 ft.

New! Payloads up to 3540 lbs. Only Ford offers three series to choose from... 600 lbs. more top payload than other vans!

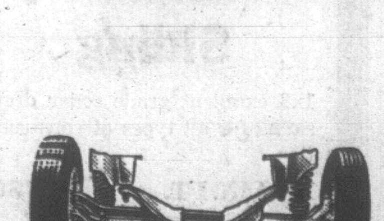
New! Long-wheelbase stability. Forward location of front axles stretches wheelbases to 105.5" for Van, 123.5" for SuperVan. Helps make Econolines the steadiest vans on the road.

New! Wide-stance handling ease. New 7-inches-wider track for new stability. Quicker, easier maneuverability too!

ALL-NEW FORD ECONOLINE VANS

So many better ideas they make all other vans obsolete.

Moving the engine forward began it all. Load length increased. Clear floor area became 23% greater than in other vans. And with the engine out of the way, the driver gained new access to the rear load area; engine servicing became possible from outside the van. Next, we boosted payloads — up to 3540 lbs. And when we added Twin-I-Beam front suspension for easy ride, plus an optional 302 cu. in. V-8 for powerful performance, the sum of Ford's better ideas was a better van...all around!



New! Twin-I-Beam ride. The front suspension made famous in Ford pickups... two front axles for strength and stability, coil springs for easy ride.

New! Outside service center. Just lift the chest-high hood to check oil, water, battery, voltage regulator, brake master cylinder and more. Everything is easy to reach.

How Sterling Is Pound?

LONDON (AP) — Full confidence in the pound has not returned because the British know their currency is still at the mercy of international financial storms.

Last week the pound trembled in the world's money markets for many reasons ranging from reported Russian troop movements to the distrust, and even hatred, of Prime Minister Wilson and his Labor government felt by British and foreign businessmen.

They woke up last Friday to find the Labor government politically isolated after a disastrous set of local election results.

Then they read that Cecil King, a powerful publisher, former friend of Wilson, and, most important, then part-time director of the Bank of England, was demanding that Wilson get out.

Little of this had anything to do with the underlying strength or weakness of the British economy, but it was enough to keep buyers away from British pounds. The rate fell, then recovered somewhat, partly because of huge international currency swap agreements designed to protect the pound against just such short-term flows of confidence.

When the British cut the value of their currency Nov. 18, experts warned that the U.S. dollar would go into the front line in the speculators' war against the world monetary system. The subsequent gold rush against the dollar proved these warnings correct.

FEAR BACKLASH

Now the United States is proposing to raise taxes and is restricting foreign investment to protect the dollar just as the British have done to protect the pound. The British fear they may be caught in the backlash.

British officials are also concerned lest U.S. efforts to halt the dollar drain could affect Britain's export drive.

The six months after devaluation have not put Britain's trade into the black, but no one here expected that it would. On the contrary, the trade gap has grown wider.

The British also have been on a record buying spree since devaluation.

SLITHERS TO NEW LOW

LONDON (Reuters) — The pound slithered to a new low on London's foreign exchange market today as gold prices continued their upward trend.

The pound's rate dropped to $2.38595 U.S., a fall of about one-tenth of a cent from Thursday night's level.

The currency is allowed to fluctuate between $2.38 to $2.42. The official parity is $2.40.

On London't bullion market, the price of gold reached an all-time high of $41.60 an ounce.

EXPANSION STUDIED BY TORONTO EXCHANGE

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto Stock Exchange announced Thursday it is considering the possibility of increasing the number of seats on the exchange.

An official said the aim would be to make membership more representative of the country as a whole.

There have been 113 seats since 1934, when the TSE and Standard Stock and Mining Exchange were merged.

Ont. Updates Corporation Laws

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts today introduced legislation which he said involves "a complete revision and updating complete revision and updating" of corporation laws in Ontario.

The proposed Business Corporations Act and Corporations Information Act, given first reading by the legislature, deal with incorporation, operation, management and dissolution of corporations with share capital.

Mr. Robarts said the basic philosophy underlying the new legislation "is to allow simplified methods of incorporation and to raise the standards of protection for shareholders and creditors."

He said the two bills implement many of the recommendations of a report last year by the legislature's select committee on company law "and reflect the suggestions and advice" received since a draft bill implementing some of the recommendations was tabled last June.

Yesteryear's Simple Pleasures

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

"It's the 24th of May, Queen Victoria's birthday, if you don't give us a holiday, we'll all run away!"

There was a time when that bit of doggerel was approved singing on public school grounds just before the holiday, held then on the date intended for it and not on the nearest Monday as is our custom now.

Girls shouted the words as they played follow the leader. Boys tuned in as they kicked their footballs. It rose shrill and clear to classroom windows and to the ears of teachers preparing the day's lessons.

The chant had its own touch of bravado and insurrection. No holiday ... then we'll all run away. Yet, I don't suppose there was one in that generation of school children who ever thought of the words as a statement of intent.

If the principal of a school had called his pupils together and told them "no holiday" and they could run away if they wished, every youngster would probably have gone into a state of shock.

Not because of the cancellation, mind you, but rather because they had been offered the privilege of leaving familiar things they knew and setting off into the unknown.

* * *

Playing hookey (skipping classes it's called today) might be indulged from time to time by some of the boys, but running away ... that was different. Even the most venturesome would hesitate. And I doubt if any one would have taken advantage of the offer.

Life was made up of simple pleasures in those days. There was not television. Crystal set radios were new. Automobiles were owned by the rich and not by the poor.

Streetcars were main means of transportation. And on the 24th of May they were crowded from early morning until late at night.

That particular holiday heralded beginning of the summer season. So it was customary to don whites for the first time in the year.

Mothers washed and starched and ironed for days ahead. They cooked, too, for it was traditionally the first picnic day as well.

There was always an early start in order to stake a strategic spot for the morning parade.

After it was over, parents, children and picnic baskets jammed aboard streetcars bound for the Gorge and the afternoon boat races.

* * *

Families joined together on the grassy slopes. Tablecloths were spread. Food appeared. Someone was sure to uncover a freezer of homemade ice-cream as a surprise for the young.

Then it was time for the races and before long the day was nearly over. Picnic baskets were re-packed and the streetcars were homeward bound with tired but happy throngs.

A few years later, these same boys and girls were in their teens. They still went to the big parade. They might still join their parents for a picnic up the Gorge. But after it was over they wandered off by twos, and fours and sixes.

And you'd find them at the old boathouse above the bridge, renting canoes and starting off for Portage Inlet. Perhaps to paddle their way up the Colquitz or along little Deadman's River.

If the day was very hot, as so many 24th of May holidays were in those years, canoes might be grounded at Christie Point—then a natural beauty place of arbutus trees, mossy rocks and wild flowers.

* * *

Someone would bring out a mouth organ. Or it could be a mandolin. There would be singing that echoed over the water to other young people in other canoes, who joined in.

When it was time to turn back to the boathouse, a follow the leader line would be formed. And single file in the gathering twilight, paddles flashed in time to one last tune.

"Drifting and Dreaming" was a favorite. But it might also be a bit of doggerel those teen-agers remembered from public school days—"It's the 24 of May, Queen Victoria's birthday, if you don't give us a holiday, we'll all run away!" But they never did!

Driver Rescues Baby

SOUTH CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Taxi driver Donnie Beckett saw a 15-month-old baby crawling down the median strip of a heavily-travelled highway. He pulled his cab across the highway, blocked rush-hour traffic and took the child to the sidewalk. After knocking on several doors he returned the baby to the mother.

LOOK AT RIGHT

Tax Figures Bit Confusing

By JIM HUME

If you own property in Victoria you may be confused by this year's tax bill.

Don't, there's only one side of the tax notice you need to worry about—and that's the right hand side.

The first Victorians received their tax notices during the past few days. Many of them have already telephoned city hall to ask what's going on.

The answer is simple: this year's tax notice was designed by a team of Premier W. A. C. Bennett appointed experts who were told to reveal all to the taxpayer in the form of simple messages on the annual tax form.

As a result Victoria taxpayers this year are not told what the mill rate is. They are not told what their assessments are. And they are not told the due date for their taxes.

SCHOOL COSTS

They are told, whether they receive the tax bill for a home, a vacant lot, a service station or a factory, that the home owner grant this year is $130.

And they are told that the provincial government contributes to school costs.

"We are getting complaints from confused taxpayers," says city assessor Alfred Joyce. "Every tax bill, it doesn't matter what kind of property it's for, has to deduct the $130 home owner grant. Then if the property isn't eligible for the home owner grant we have to put the $130 back on."

City treasurer James Bramley is cautious in expressing his opinion of the government inspired tax form.

"I think we have done an excellent job in expressing the wishes of the premier," is the only answer he'll give.

But he does have this advice for the bewildered. "On the right hand side of the sheet the taxpayer will find the 'statement of taxes.' That's the figure he wants, that's the figure he owes."

As for the due date which isn't on this year's form, the taxpayer should look for a little item giving the date the tax penalty comes into being.

The due date is 24 hours before that.

In the meantime, remember, never mind the razzle-dazzle on the bulk of the sheet. It's the statement of taxes you owe.

MONTREAL (CP) — About 50 persons demonstrated outside the headquarters of the Quebec College of Physicians and Surgeons Tuesday to protest recent actions taken against Dr. Robert Liefmann, who claims to have invented a drug useful in treating arthritis.

Dr. Liefmann pleaded not guilty last Friday to 16 counts of violating the Food and Drugs Act. Earlier, the College of Physicians and Surgeons had announced it had suspended him for five years for allowing two unauthorized persons to practise in his office.

UNABLE TO REACH AGREEMENT . . . / . . . HOCKEY CLUB SUBMITS APPLICATION NOTICE

Canucks Blocking Labatt Bid for Franchise

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labatt Breweries of Canada Ltd. said today it has reached an impasse in its attempt to have Oakland Seals of the National Hockey League moved to Vancouver.

N. E. (Peter) Hardy, Labatt president, said his company has not been able to reach any agreement with Vancouver Canucks of the Western Hockey League. Canucks hold professional hockey right in the Vancouver area.

In the meantime, Canucks sent a telegram to the NHL announcing the club's intention to apply for a franchise on its own behalf.

Hardy said directors of the Canucks rejected three Labatt proposals for Canuck participation in the operation of an NHL franchise in Vancouver.

He said Labatt would keep the door open for new negotiations with Canucks until the Labatt-Oakland agreement expires March 17 next year. Labatt would control 51 per cent of the proposed Vancouver franchise under its agreement with Oakland.

Hardy said Canuck directors advised him the Labatt offers were rejected because Canucks are committed to play in the Western League in the 1968-69 season and that Labatt offers were conditional upon NHL approval of the transfer of Oakland's franchise to Vancouver.

He said everything Labatt has done since starting its campaign to being NHL to Vancouver has been conditional upon the approval of NHL governors.

"All our agreements and negotiations to date have been conditional because our sole objective is to establish an NHL team in Vancouver," Hardy said.

"Labatt is not interested in running an NHL team in Oakland or in any other city or a WHL team anywhere."

Labatt advanced the financially-troubled Seals the money it needed this month to pay off a $680,000 debt to the NHL. In return, the Oakland franchise holders agreed to make application for transfer of its franchise to Vancouver, effective this year.

Oaklad Seals, financially troubled during their first year as an NHL expansion club, announced at an NHL governors' meeting in New York City they will make formal application for transfer of the franchise to Vancouver.

Vancouver Hockey Club, operators of the Canucks in the Western Hockey League, now contains the major elements of two groups which made competing and unsuccessful bids for a Vancouver franchise in the original expansion round which culminated in the league doubling its membership to 12 teams in the 1967-68 season.

The telegram, signed by Oscar F. Lundell, secretary and counsel for the Vancouver club, appeared to be a major roadblock in the path of a transfer to the Oakland franchise.

Lindell asked that the telegram be regarded as notice of intention to apply for a franchise and said a formal application and supporting information would follow.

A requirement facing any NHL entry into Vacouver is that it clear the territorial rights of the Western Hockey League and its member team.

Barend van Gerbig, Oakland member of the NHL board of governors, and Frank Tatum, Oakland alternate and club lawyer, gave no indication at a Thursday press conference in New York that they were aware of any difficulties in negotiations with the Canucks.

"The Labatt money is in the form of an advance," said Tatum. "What it ends up being depends on where the franchise ends up.

"If in Vancouver, it becomes a Labatt equity. If it stays in Oakland, Labatt is a creditor, having given us a term loan."

Any transfer would require approval from nine of the 12 league governors, a tough hurdle even without a competing application from a group whose co-operation is needed.

Hockey observers all along have expressed belief that Toronto, Montreal and Los Angeles would oppose the transfer application scheduled to come before the owners at the annual meeting in Montreal starting June 10. One more negative vote would sink the application.

On the other hand the Vancouver club's application for a franchise is unlikely to bear fruit in a hurry.

President Campbell said Thursday the league has no expansion committee operating at present.

Pressed about expansion prospects, he said he felt the league could not add another division for some years, because of a shortage of players. But he "wouldn't exclude the possibility of expansion by two teams within the next two years."

Van Gerbig said there is no question of turning the Oakland franchise back to the league, regardless of the decision on the transfer application.

ALL-STAR BERTHS

Orr May Get Howe Habit

BOBBY ORR
. . . vote-collector

MONTREAL (CP) — Bobby Orr, Boston Bruins 20-year-old defence sensation, wasn't even born when Gordie Howe entered the National Hockey League, yet today they are on the league's first all-star team.

For Howe, 40, a veteran of 22 seasons at right wing for Detroit Red Wings winning an all-star berth has become a habit. And Orr appears destined to follow Howe's example.

In his first season one year ago Orr was chosen to the second team in addition to winning the Calder Trophy as the league's top rookie. This season, despite a painful knee operation that sidelined him for 28 games, Orr won the James Norris Trophy as the league's top defenceman.

Players from five teams of the NHL's Eastern Division were selected to the first team. With the exception of Orr, all are seasoned veterans.

New York Rangers failed to place a man on the first team, but had three players on the second team.

Lorne (Gump) Worsley of the Stanley Cup champion Montreal Canadiens took first team goaltending honors with 55 points, 14 more than Ed Giacomin of the Rangers, who moved from the first team last year to the second squad this season.

HORTON JOINS ORR

Tim Horton, 38, a defence stalwart with Toronto Maple Leafs for more than 12 years, joins Orr on the blue line for the first team. Horton polled 53 points compared to Orr's 77.

Montreal's J. C. Tremblay and New York's Jim Neilson made the second team with 52 and 44 points respectively.

Howe and Chicago Black Hawks left winger Bobby Hull became all-star team-mates when both polled 118 points. The Chicago left winger outclassed Boston's Johnny Bucyk, who drew 59 to make the second team.

Howe was ahead of his nearest opposition Rod Gilbert of New York, by an even wider margin—118 to 36.

Stan Mikita, the Czech-born centre on Chicago's famed Scooter Line, earned the first centre spot with 96 points, while Boston's Phil Esposito was second.

STRIKE THREAT

Owners Keep Plans Secret

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—National Football League owners are keeping under wraps the strategy they plan to use to counter demands by the NFL Players Associatioin for a bigger share of receipts.

Worried about the possibility of a players' strike, NFL owners closed out a four-day meeting Thursday without revealing whether they will compromise on the players' demands or reject them.

A committee headed by Art Modell, owner of Cleveland Browns and president of the NFL, was empowered to negotiate with the association at a meeting in New York next week.

The association is seeking a minimum salary of $15,000 a year, $500 for each player for exhibition games, and a $5,000,000 payment to the players' pension fund.

Not much opposition to the minimum salary was expressed by NFL owners at the joint meeting with owners of American Football League teams. But the pension fund payment and the pay for exhibition games drew sharp criticism.

Main action disclosed during the meeting which started last Monday was awarding of the 1969 Super Bowl to Miami for the second straight year. The owners also served notice that Boston must be in the process of building at least a 50,000-seat stadium by 1970 or lose the Patriots' AFL franchise.

Eagle, Briefly, Could Be a Lion

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions have announced the signing of Maurice Bates, 27, a former All-American from Northern State College in Aberdeen, S.D.

Bates, a 250-pound offensive guard, was drafted by the Philadelphia Eagles last season and was a late cut of the National Football League team. Bates is the Canadian club's 21st rookie signed for the coming season.

It is still early in the National Lacrosse Association season, but Detroit Olympics are beginning to look as if they are the team to beat.

Charlie Marlowe scored four goals Thursday night to pace Detroit to its fourth consecutive victory, a 12-11 decision over Peterborough Lakers.

The triumph gave the undefeated Olympics eight points and secured their hold on first place in the Eastern Division.

In a Western Division game, New Westminster Salmonbellies took a 12-11 overtime decision from Vancouver Carlings. The win moved New Westminster into a second-place tie with Vancouver and Portland Adanacs.

SCORE TWO EACH

A crowd of 1,700 at Peterborough saw Grant Heffernan and Glen Lotton score two goals for Detroit. Single goals went to Gaylor Powless, Tom Conlin, Gary Hind and Bob Brown.

Cy Coombes paced Peterborough with three goals.

Scoring two goals each for New Westminster were Larry Henry, Ken Quinzoski, Wayne Goss and Al Lewthwaite. Single goals were scored by Paul Parnell, Dave Tory, Ian Bull and Wayne Shuttleworth.

Bob Salt and Sid Warick scored three goals apiece for Vancouver.

Away from the floors Thursday, it was reported that John Ferguson has been denied permission to coach Montreal's entry.

JOHN FERGUSON
. . . permission denied

The fiery left winger with Montreal Canadiens has been ordered "not to get involved" with lacrosse by his National Hockey League bosses. Ferguson has been signed in February to serve as non-playing coach of the Montreal team.

In Toronto, meanwhile, the Maple Leafs are pleased with the acquisition of Butch Keegan. Signed to beef up Toronto's defence, Keegan scored three goals Wednesday night in a game against Peterborough. The Leafs lost, 14-9, but Keegan's play impressed.

Victoria's Bruce Twamley, voted "soccer boy of 1968" at the recent provincial tournament of minor soccer champions, is, at 16, the youngest player invited.

Completing the Victoria contingent are Brian Robinson, Ike MacKay and Marty Taylor, all members of Victoria O'Keefes, Pacific Coast League champions for the past two seasons.

HIGHLY REGARDED

Royals, searching for prospective professional stars, have indicated particular interest in MacKay and a pair of Vancouver Columbus players — high-scoring Bob Smith and Gino Vazzoler.

The B.C. Commission is required to submit a list of players to the Dominion Association as candidates for Canada's World Cup team.

Canada has home-and-away series scheduled this year with Bermuda and the U.S. Players from B.C., including MacKay, were in the majority on last year's Pan-American Games team.

Three slick Washington State clubs are included in the nine-team entry list for the Victoria Senior Men's Softball League's annual Victoria Day open tournament, which gets under way tonight at Central Park.

Seattle Whitestones, Tacoma Goldentide and Auburn are the U.S. clubs that will join O'Keefes and Tally-Ho from Nanaimo in struggles with four Victoria squads in the three-day tourney.

Red Lion Inn and Bate Construction launch the tourney tonight at 6:45 and five games are slated Saturday— Tally-Ho vs. O'Keefes (10 a.m.), Colony vs. Auburn (12 noon), Molsons vs. Goldentide (2 p.m.), Whitestones vs. the first-game winner (4 p.m.), and losers of the first two games (6:30 p.m.).

Molson's warmed up for their tourney chores Thursday night by taking a 2-0 thriller from Carlings behind the two-hit hurling of Larry Jay.

Wade Burns tossed a four-hitter in a losing effort for Carlings, who have now collected only three hits in four games.

City Athletes Making Good Use of Stadium

Applications for bookings at the new Centennial Stadium have been pouring in at a rate that has presented management officials with some scheduling problems.

Arranging times for use of the track is one of the larger problems. Many district secondary schools have been staging track and field meets at the University of Victoria campus, where the stadium sprouted last year with the aid of $500,000 in municipal centennial funds. Agencies outside the university have reserved facilities for 71 hours in May alone.

Major events this month are district track and field meets today and May 31. Today's annual inter-high school meet was expected to attract more than 3,000 spectators.

Among stadium "regulars" are members of the YM-YWCA squad, working out Monday and Wednesday evenings for regional track and field trials next month. Others are invited to use the track any week night from 6 to 9 p.m.

The university itself, already putting facilities to good use in its athletic program, has scheduled graduation ceremonies at the stadium on Saturday, May 25.

Details on track bookings are available from Floyd Fairclough, secretary of the Intermunicipal University Committee on Stadium Management, at 477-6911, local 370.

RICHEST EVER . . . / . . . IF 10 START PREAKNESS

Lou Joins the TV Watchers

BALTIMORE (AP) — Trainer Lou Cavalaris of Toronto was thrilled when he went to the Kentucky Derby winner's circle with Dancer's Image. Now, because of that race, he will be just a television spectator Saturday when the colt runs in the Preakness.

"I will watch the Preakness on television, but I don't know where yet," Cavalaris said Thursday. "I have confidence he will run a good race."

He and his assistant, Robert Barnard, are under suspension by the Churchill Downs stewards as a result of their horse's disqualification as Derby winner because of an illegal medication found in the colt's system by a post-race test.

Cavalaris, barred from any race track while under suspension until June 13, was at a motel near Pimlico when owner Peter Fuller entered Dancer's Image in the 93rd running of the Preakness.

Dancer's Image will do battle once again with Calumet Farm's Forward Pass, moved up to first in the Derby and given a shot at becoming the first Triple Crown winner since Citation won the Derby, Preakness and Belmont in 1948.

Seven other colts and a gelding also were entered, and if all 10 start it will become the richest Triple Crown race, with a gross purse of $195,200 and a winner's share of $142,700. The $194,000 Preakness in 1967 is the current gross purse record holder.

The gelding in the field is Mrs. Mildred Beall's Martins Jig. The other colts are Charles Engelhard's Jig Time, Gene Goff's Nodouble, Robert J. Kleberg's Out of the Way, Hubert Phipps' Ringmaster, Richard Dufour's and Joseph Richards' Sir Beau, John Nero's Wood-Pro and James L. Skinner's Yankee Lad.

Cavalaris may be barred from handling Dancer's Image personally, but Fuller leaves no doubt that the Native Dancer colt was entered in the Preakness because of the trainer.

"If it wasn't for Lou," Fuller said, "I don't think the horse would be running to be frank with you. I bowed to Lou's wishes. After all, he's the one who's brought the horse this far. He is the trainer."

Roberto's Rescued Bat Ignites Pirates' Fire

By The Associated Press

Roberto Clemente missed the recent bat burning held by his Pittsburgh Pirates team-mates, but now St. Louis Cardinals would like to hold a special one for him.

The idea must have occurred to the Cardinals after Clemente and his unburned bat cooled off St. Louis pitching Thursday night with a two-run triple that sparked the Pirates to a 3-0 victory.

"I got someone to save them (his bats) for me," Clemente said after the Pirates disgustedly burned about eight of their bats in Forbes Field following the second straight 1-0 loss to St. Louis Wednesday night.

The rest of the league did little with their bats Thursday.

ENDS PIRATE STREAK

Rich Ney hurled a six-hitter and Chicago Cubs edged Los Angeles Dodgers 1-0, Tom Seaver's six-hitter helped New York Mets past Cincinnati Reds 2-1 and Jaun Marichal twirled a five-hitter in San Francisco Giants 3-1 triumph over Houston Astros. Atlanta Braves were rained out at Philadelphia Phillies in the other scheduled game.

Clemente, who singled in the first inning, ended Pittsburgh's streak of 27 scoreless innings in the third inning with his triple after Matty Alou blooped a two-out single and Maury Wills got an infield hit off loser Ray Washburn's leg.

Nye's shutout was the sixth time the Dodgers have been blanked this season.

Marichal became the first six-game winner in the majors — he has lost twice — and only a two-out double by Rusty Staub in the ninth avoided a shutout.

In the American League, Frank Howard felt like he was in a dentist's chair and Ralph Houk, would've sworn he was in an electric one.

EQUALS RECORD

Howard, Washington's giant slugger, drilled his 13th and 14th home runs of the season — tying an American League record with seven homers in his last four games — and drove in all of Washington's runs as the Senators clipped Cleveland Indians 4-1.

Manager Houk, meanwhile, shuddered as his normally run-starved New York Yankees scored 10 times only to have Boston Red Sox rally for six runs in the eighth inning and an 11-10 victory.

In the only other American League game played, Minnesota Twins edged Oakland Athletics 4-3.

"Hitting aginst the Indians' pitching staff," said Howard before the game, "is like going to the dentist. You have to keep the appointment but you don't like it much."

But he bore up well against Sam McDowell, connecting after Sam Bowens singled in the third and again after Bowens walked in the fifth.

The two shots boosted Howard's batting average to .339 — tops in the American League.

Blacker the Fish — Better the Day for Fishing

OUTDOOR REPORT

Holiday Fishing Prospects Bright

By STEWART LANG

Thinking about unlimbering that casting arm soon? This holiday weekend might be just the time to do it with good fresh and saltwater fishing reported from many parts of Vancouver Island.

With that optimistic statement out of the way, there may be a dark spot in an otherwise happy picture. This is in the Nanaimo region, where a recent black ant hatch has made the trout full-bellied and slow-biting. Coupled with this, there is a slack in salt-water returns. Bluebacks are jumping but few are being taken.

Trout anglers have a range of choices. Any of the Highland lakes such as Durrance are good. Another good bet is Kemp Lake in Sooke, access off the end of Bligh Road. Some of the small lakes near Port Renfrew, such as Fairy and Lizard are producing.

Fly fishing is improving with warmer weather bringing on the spring hatches.

★ ★ ★

On the local salt-chuck scene the word is action with a capital "A." with Saanich Inlet waters holding the heaviest population of fish since the bumper chinook run about seven years ago.

Jim Gilbert came back at Brentwood Thursday morning with 13, 17 and 21-pounders. The bottom end of the inlet seems to be producing best in the morning with evening the prime time for the upper end.

May Hall reports the best fishing she's seen in the 22 years she has been at the Goldstream boathouse.

Alf Lohr came back Wednesday with four salmon, topped by a 19:02-pounder, caught on strip near Goldstream Island. Wayne Cue boated a 19-pounder and filled his limit with blues. Fish may be taken at any depth and with practically any lure.

Tod Inlet is a good bet for springs in the evening as well as Indian, Cole and Henderson Bays. Another possible hot spot is near the Boulder. Two good lures for bluebacks are flash-tails and Henry Smith Specials.

Dennis Tucker reeled in a 19:08-pound spring in Tod Inlet where Earl Gordon and his son John brought in 17:14, 14:01, 13:09, 13:11, 9 and 8:08-pound fish.

Mrs. Marie Sidaway won by the toss of a coin the Angler's Anchorage Mother's Day derby with a 11:12-pound fish. Dorothy Horel lost the coin toss after she entered a fish of the same weight.

Mike Gorick, the summer caretaker of Pedder Bay Marina, brought in a 12-pounder. Fishing in this area is good but has tapered off a bit from previous weeks. Around Bentinck Island, William Head and Race Rocks some of the biggest salmon may be found.

Centre Reef and Halibut Flats near Oak Bay are producing well.

★ ★ ★

UP-ISLAND ROUNDUP: Arnie Williams reports a hot turnout of browns on the upper reaches of the Cowichan River. Local lakes are getting past the prime that followed last week's ant hatch Quamichan Lake is still yielding some good trout.

Late steelhead runs are on in the Koksilah and Chemainus rivers and steelies are being taken on roe or worm.

Great Central and Sproat lakes are yielding trout in the Port Alberni area, and some are being taken out of the Somass River, where they are following salmon fry from the lakes. Many of the rivers in the Alberni area are having their summer run of steelhead.

Trout up to four pounds are being hooked in Cowichan Lake, where the RCN Anglers' Association and St. Louis Men's Club will be holding derbies this weekend.

The Campbell River Lions Club is also holding a trout derby, open to anyone fishing the Campbell River area. Fly fishing in Lower Campbell Lake was exceptionally good Wednesday and Upper Campbell is also producing well. Other lakes worth a try are John Hart, Buttle, and Little Quinsam.

In the Courtenay area, Comox Lake is spotty but Wolf Lake fish are active. Forbidden Plateau lakes are still too cold for consistent fishing, but small, lower lakes are good bets.

Harvey's Homer Powers Luckies

Harvey Stevenson put his muscles to work at Heywood Avenue Thursday night and powered Luckies to a 4-2 victory over Century Inn in a Stuffy McGinnis Softball League battle

Stevenson slammed a two-run homer to break a tie in the eighth inning and give Luckies a 4-2 triumph.

Century scored once in the third inning and made it 2-0 on Gordie Rutherford's circuit blast in the sixth. Ben Price cracked a two-run homer for Luckies in the bottom of the sixth to set the stage for Stevenson's heroics.

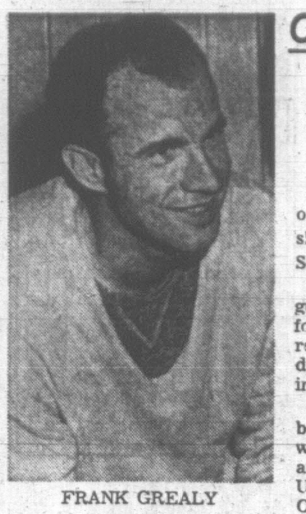
O'KEEFES IN MARKET . . . . . . FOR NEW PILOT

Grealy Steps Out



FRANK GREALY
. . . sstepping down

Victoria O'Keefes will be operating under new leadership in the next Pacific Coast Soccer League comapign.

Frank Grealy, who has guided O'Keefes for the past four seasons, submitted his resignation Thursday night during the club's annual meeting at McPherson Lounge.

Grealy said he stepped out because he felt the team would benefit from a different approach and new ideas. Under his leadership, O'Keefes won the league and Kennedy Cup championships in 1967 and retained the league crown in 1968.

During Thursday's session, Wiif Sadler was elected to a two-year term as vice-president, Jack Evans was named secretary-treasurer and George Brice was elected as a director. Other members of the executive have a year remaining on two-year terms.

President Ron Southern said he would be pleased to hear from candidates for the positions of coach and manager. Southern can be reached at 384-6098.

GORDON HEAD

Sivertson, Jack Track Sparklers

Lindsay Jack and Pete Siverton were outstanding performers in the annual Gordon Head Junior High School track and field meet, held Wednesday and Thursday at Centennial Stadium.

Competing in events for junior boys, Sivertson displayed versatility as he took both sprint events, setting a record in the 220, and also won the shot put.

Miss Jack chalked up new meet records while winning the high and long jumps for intermediate girls and she automatically set another standard while taking a new event—the 220-yard dash.

Contestants cracked a total of 12 records as Cormorant House won the team title with 209½ points. The Cormorants were followed by Finnerty (184½), Arbutus (163) and Douglas (153½).

English Team Cancels Tour

LEICESTER (Reuters) — English League First Division club Leicester City has had to cancel a proposed North American soccer tour because of pressure of time.

A club official said: "It was unavoidable. We leave for a three-week tour in Zambia on Saturday and we do not get back until June 6. With the off-season getting shorter the players would not have any time for holidays."

The tour, scheduled for July 26 to Aug. 4, would have included games in Toronto and Vancouver.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

"No single man or government can make a nation great"
Robert Stanfield, May 1st, 1968.

Bob Stanfield is asking us all — every Canadian who cares about his country — to help him make Canada great.

No single man or government can do the job without the support of the people. Bob Stanfield wants us to participate by giving him our time, thought, work and money. Let's help him.

Bob Stanfield does not pretend to have all the answers. But he does have successful, practical experience. He does have the courage, discipline and strength required to get the answers.

All of us must work together to create a Canada that "will not be governed by a little group in Ottawa".

Participate with Bob Stanfield. Support Stanfield now.

Discriminating Mink Prefers Lobster Meal

FATTY BASIN, B.C. (CP) — While their domesticated brethren subsist on fish heads and other gastronomic abominations, some wild British Columbia mink are dining first class on lobsters imported all the way from the eastern seaboard.

The gourmet meals are begrudgingly provided by the federal fisheries department's lobster experimental station here. Fatty Basin is at the head of Useless Inlet on the west coast of Vancouver Island.

The cuisine available for the discerning mink was improved considerably two years ago when the department launched an experiment to see if lobsters from the East Coast could survive in West Coast waters.

Since then, about 4,000 lobsters have been turned loose on the West Coast, and the minks couldn't be happier about it.

"We have definitely found new lobster predators," said Dr. R. J. Ghelardi, in charge of the experiment. "Mink, raccoon and others are eating them—the mink are probably the worst nuisance."

Dr. Ghelardi said that other than the mink, the experiment is going well, though it could be 10 years before results of the experiment are known.

'Quit Booze, Get Job' Laing Tells Indians

OTTAWA (CP) — About a third of Canada's Indian population feel "they have been cheated all through history by the white man," Indian Affairs Minister Laing said Tuesday night.

"They have a cold, latent distrust of the white man," Mr. Laing told a Liberal nominating convention in Ottawa Centre which named Works Minister George McIlraith as its candidate.

Mr. Laing said he has been criticized for his outspoken comments about Indians. But he would continue to urge them to stop living on welfare and to try to accomplish something in life.

"I tell them 'life is a personal challenge. You should quit the booze and get to work'."

Mr. Laing said Indians should develop the 6,000,000 acres of reserve land they hold in southern Canada. It should not be sold but income from it would help the Indian adjust to the white man's world.

Conditions of Indians in the northern parts of the provinces and in the territories are Canada's most serious social problem, he said.

NEWS BLACKOUT ON LUNG TRANSPLANT RESULTS

Youngster Swallowed Weed Killer

EDINBURGH (Reuters) — Secrecy surrounds Europe's first lung transplant operation, performed on a 15-year-old high school student in this Scottish capital.

Surgeons at Edinburgh Royal Infirmary Wednesday replaced the diseased lung of Alex Smith from the Hebridean isle of Lewis, off northwest Scotland.

The hospital maintained an almost complete clampdown on news about the three-hour operation, apart from revealing that the boy was in 'satisfactory' condition.

Medical sources said Thursday night Alex was taken from a hospital on the remote island to Edinburgh Friday after swallowing some weed killer. It was not known whether the weed killer precipitated the operation.

FACE CRITICAL TIME

One of the surgical team said that Alex, youngest boy in a family of nine, will face the critical period when his body may reject the new lung in about a week's time.

Unconfirmed reports said the long—only one was grafted — was taken from the body of an 18-year-old girl. But doctors refused to comment, saying they promised relatives not to disclose any information.

The 10-man surgical team was led by Andrew Logan, consultant chest surgeon at the 1,000-bed hospital which pioneered kidney transplants here eight years ago.

Lung transplants are conssidered extremely rare operations. Two were carried out in the United States in 1963. Canada and Japan have also performed one each.

Schools May Get Recognition

VANCOUVER (CP)—A spokesman for British Columbia's independent schools says Education Minister Leslie Peterson has agreed to have his department study official government recognition of the independents.

Gerald Ensign, secretary of the Federation of Independent Schools Associations, said Mr. Peterson gave no hint any recognition would include financial assistance.

The association represents 120 independent schools throughout the province.

Mr. Peterson said in an interview later he promised to study feasibility of recognition which could mean education department inspectors handling private school teachers without cost and government recognition of certificates of independent school teachers.

He said association spokesmen argued three months ago for financial aid but now are asking only for recognition.

Mr. Peterson said government aid is out because "there is a long-standing tradition in B.C., supported by all parties, of tax support to only one school system."

Ontario Liberals Mapping Strategy

Federal Campaign Started In Series of Weekend Meets

Special to The Times

TORONTO—Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau and his Ontario candidates are mapping their provincial strategy for the June 25 election this week-end.

The meeting of candidates and their advisers in Toronto launches the Liberal campaign which so far has been confined to nomination meetings. But the meetings this week of all three parties were anything but dull.

For instance Ralph Cowan, a member of Parliament since 1962, lost his bid for the Liberal nomination in High Park riding and announced immediately that he would run for election anyway.

Mr. Cowan, 66, the controversial member from Toronto's York Humber riding, lost to riding president Walter Deacon by more than 500 votes.

In march the parliamentary caucus drummed him from its ranks for repeated, and often bitter criticism of the Pearson government.

Mr. Cowan, whose former riding disappeared in redistribution, implied that the meeting had been packed and pledged to take his campaign directly to the electorate, running as an independent Liberal.

Hikes Chances

His decision has increased the chances for both New Democrats and Conservatives in the riding.

Two other Toronto politicians nominated last week were Dalton Camp, the national president of the Conservative Party, and Phillip Givens, former mayor of Toronto.

Mr. Camp ended his waiting game by taking the Tory nomination in the Toronto riding of Don Valley. Party officials, from leader Robert Stanfield on down, have been predicting that Mr. Camp would be a candidate, but he kept them waiting for almost two weeks while he relaxed on a Caribbean holiday.

Mr. Camp's riding was created by redistribution from parts of three ridings which sent Liberals to Ottawa in the 1965 election.

In one of these ridings—Eglinton—Mr. Camp was defeated by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp by about 2,000 votes.

In Don Valley he will be opposed by a Liberal lawyer, Robert Kaplan, 31, who left his practice earlier this year to join the staff of Mr. Trudeau when he sought the national Liberal leadership.

The campaign promises to be a close one. Both candidates are well financed, and have an abundance of campaign workers.

Comeback Possibility

Mr. Givens' nomination as the Liberal candidate in York West could be the start of a political comeback for the 46 year old former mayor.

After three years as mayor, three on Toronto's board of control and nine years as a city alderman, he was defeated in the municipal election of 1966.

His riding is only a portion of the York West seat Mr. Winters won in 1965. Redistribution has carved the original riding into three constituencies and York West appears to be the only safe Liberal seat.

Of the other two ridings, Etobicoke could go to the Conservatives and Lakeshore to the New Democrats, who have nominated Terry Crier, formerly national secretary of the party.

'Unification Didn't Save A Single Cent'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Douglas Harkness, defence minister in the Diefenbaker government, says unification of the nation's armed forces was accomplished more by revolution than evolution and didn't save the Canadian taxpayer "a single cent."

Mr. Harkness told a Vancouver news conference Thursday that the way the Liberal government carried out unification wasted money.

"I would have carried it forward as an evolution instead of by revolution," said Mr. Harkness, a candidate in the new Calgary Centre riding for the June 25 federal election. "As it was done, it caused confusion and unnecessary waste of money."

He also said he still favors Canadian participation in NATO and NORAD.

"It's only by means of alliances of this kind that we can secure for Canada any measure of national security," said the former defence minister.

"The U.S. and Russia are the only people, under modern conditions, able to defend themselves and the only answer for us is to enter security alliances with like-minded nations."

* * *

RICHMOND, Ont. (CP) — External Affairs Minister Sharp said Thursday night Conservative Leader Stanfield should clarify his stand on Quebec's participation in education conferences abroad.

Provincial participation in international conferences is a matter at the heart of Canadian unity, Mr. Sharp told a Liberal nomination meeting in Grenville-Carleton riding.

The meeting in this community 10 miles south of the capital chose Ottawa lawyer Gordon Blair as Liberal candidate in the June 25 general election.

Mr. Blair defeated a member of hockey's Hall of Fame, Frank Boucher, former player, coach and general manager with New York Rangers.

Mr. Sharp said that if Mr. Stanfield "believes Canada's foreign affairs can be divided, he should say that, so the voters will know."

* * *

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) Peter Runkle was declared the Conservative candidate in Prince George-Peace River constituency for the June 25 federal election after votes were counted Thursday night from a travelling ballot box.

Mr. Runkle, 41, a Pouce Coupe chartered accountant, won the nomination over Prince George alderman Elroy Garden when the 785 votes were counted.

The Conservative Association for the vast riding sent the ballot box to Fort Nelson, Fort St. John, Dawson Creek and Chatwynd before it would be up here Thursday night.

Both candidates gave speeches in the various communities, supporters voted and the box was sealed and moved to the next.

BITTER PERSONAL ATTACK CONTINUES

Trudeau Trying to Destroy Johnson, Claims Tory Chief

Special to The Times

HALIFAX — Robert Stanfield Thursday night accused Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau of wanting to destroy Quebec's Daniel Johnson.

For the second straight night, the Conservative leader went into a sharp personal attack on Trudeau.

He spent almost all his 35-minute speech at his nomination meeting ripping into the prime minister's views on federal provincial relations and differences on international matters.

Stanfield charged Trudeau with needlessly escalating and inflating out of proportion the Ottawa-Quebec dispute about the province's overseas ambitions.

He told an audience of about 1,100 that Trudeau had so inflamed the issue he doubted if the prime minister could ever hope to bring about any agreement.

SETTLE NOTHING

Stanfield said Trudeau wanted to make an election issue out of his version of the dispute, but this would settle nothing regardless of who won seats in Quebec.

The Torry leader added it would not settle anything even if Trudeau in the process succeeded "in destroying his political enemies in the province of Quebec."

He went on: "Even if Mr. Trudeau were able to destroy Mr. Johnson as he wants to do, he would be left to face the other provincial parties in Quebec, the provincial Liberals who go beyond the position of Mr. Johnson, or the separatists who are the most extreme in their views."

Stanfield said this was the course the prime minister seemed to be flirting with.

"I cannot believe that he fully understands the consequences," the Tory leader maintained.

On Wednesday night in a speech in New Waterford, N.S., Stanfield accused Trudeau of trying to turn English-Canada against Quebec and of playing a dangerous game with the future of Canada.

But in the first attack, Stanfield made only a brief thrust.

In Halifax, he devoted the bulk of his speech to the unity question.

But an audience that did not quite fill the 1,200-seat Queen Elizabeth high school auditorium gave him more applause and response in his brief references to local matters the question of economics and regional disparity.

Stanfield was nominated unopposed for the new riding of Halifax City. He was elected to the Colchester-Hants riding in a byelection last fall after his win at the Tory convention for the party leadership, but is trying for the city riding in which he makes his home.

TRIGGERED ISSUE

Trudeau triggered the issue last week when his government issued a white paper on the subject of attendance of provinces at international conferences on education.

But, in effect, it went to the basic issue of Quebec's international ambitions, relating it to the provinces attendance at educational conferences in Gabon and Paris in which it got sovereign-state treatment.

Trudeau's white paper contended that while education was strictly a provincial responsibility in Canada, in such instances it took on aspects of international policy.

STANFIELD
. . . nominated unopposed

And he said that in foreign affairs, Canada must speak with one voice.

He offered a formula for ensuring provincial representation on such delegations to international events — even to having a provincial minister heading the Canadian delegation.

Trudeau said his white paper was intended as a working paper for the continuing constitutional conference.

He stated that Ottawa was prepared to listen to other suggestions on how this might be handled, but there was no bargaining on the principle that the federal government was the "one-voice" overseas.

His raising of the unity question has angered Premier Johnson, and played a part in bringing in the premier's former economic and constitutional advisor, Marcel Faribault, into the election as a Tory candidate.

FIRST ASSAULTS

Stanfield, who said he did not intend to campaign on personalities, has launched the first personal assaults in the still-young campaign on the issue.

Stanfield referred to his experience as premier of Nova Scotia, and of the 11 years he had in dealing with federal-provincial relations.

He said he had come to know better the particular problem of Quebec, and had heard it voiced by five different premiers from both parties — Liberal and Union National.

NEW CONTROVERSY

Stanfield told the crowd he knew the need for strong central government as well as the resentment in English-speaking Canada against any form of separatism.

The Tory leader said he regretted that the federal government had not followed up discussions following the successful constitutional conference in February.

"In the meantime, a new and bitter controversy has been allowed to develop between the prime minister of Canada and the government of Quebec," Stanfield stated.

"Day by day it continues to escalate needlessly, to some considerable extent because Canada is now engaged in a general election campaign," he added.

Stanfield maintained nothing would be settled by making it an election issue, or the subject of a referendum or provincial election in Quebec.

PERMANENT PILL EYED FOR BIRTH CONTROL

NEW YORK (AP)—A research team disclosed Thursday it is asking the Food and Drug Administration for permission to make human tests of a "permanent" contraceptive capsule.

The Population Council announced that the team, headed by Dr. Sheldon J. Segal, has tested the capsule on rabbits and rats for the last two years, and is beginning tests on monkeys and baboons.

IN SERIOUS condition in hospital today after collapsing in his Ottawa office Wednesday is Andre Laurendeau, 56, co-chairman of the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism.

U.S. SENATE VETOES GUN CONTROL MEASURE

'How Many Assassinations Do We Need?'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ignoring references of the Kennedy and King assassinations, the senate Thursday rejected proposals to prohibit mail order sales of all firearms, including rifles and shotguns.

Westerners, conservatives, and hunting-state senators teamed to crush tough gun control legislation President Johnson has sought for years. senators then turned to consideration of milder proposals.

First rejected by a 53-29 vote was an outright ban on mail order sales, sponsored by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D Mass., as an amendment to the senate's anti-crime bill.

The senate then defeated, 54 to 29, a second proposal, by Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., to ban all mail order sales of firearms but allow states an opportunity to exempt themselves from the ban on rifles and shotguns.

Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen called the Dodd proposal "just a back door approach" and said it would make a battleground out of the 50 state legislatures. "I don't propose to put that kind of a burden on the legislatures," Dirksen said.

In addition to banning mail order sale of all firearms, the Kennedy amendment would have limited over-the-counter sales of handguns to residents of the state in which the purchase was made and restricted store sales of rifles and shotguns to persons over 18.

Kennedy along with Dodd and John O. Pastore, D-R.I., made final appeals for passage of the measure. Pastore and Dodd both pointed out that President John F. Kenedy was killed by rifle shots. Sen. Kennedy did not mention his late brother..

Dodd asked: "How many presidents have to be assassinated, how many Dr. Martin Luther Kings have to be killed before we come to our senses?"

Pastore said it was "inconceivable and incongruous" to talk about stopping traffic in handguns when "a long barrel accounted for the assassination of a president in 1963."

Kennedy called strong gun control legislation one of the short-term approaches to help restore "peace, quiet, and tranquillity" to the nation's cities.

But Sen. Roman L. Hurska, R.—Neb., argued that only about 500 killings each year are with long guns and said that the nation's 15 million to 20 million hunters should not be "penalized."

Pope's Gift to Communist Chief Creates Stir in Italian Campaign

ROME (Reuters) — Some 36,000,000 Italians are eligible to vote Sunday and Monday in general elections after a campaign marked by a strong Communist bid for Roman Catholic backing.

Luigi Longo, the Italian Communist party chief, created a public controversy when he announced at a news conference last week that Pope Paul gave him a Christmas present.

Although he declined to reveal what the present was, the Vatican weekly Observatore Della Domenica said Wednesday it was a book called The Acts of the Apostles.

The Pope gave copies to other prominent Italian figures as a gesture of "personal courtesy" at Christmas, the weekly said, and accused Longo of exploiting the gesture in a political move to win Roman Catholic votes.

The Communist party has appealed for political co-operation with Catholics, noting that they are free under church teaching to back any party.

But the Vatican says the ideological differences between communism and Roman Catholicism are too wide to bridge.

The Christian Democrats, with its strong links with the church, appears to be still strongly entrenched, despite the increasing fire from the Communists, Italy's second-largest party, and from the Socialists, partners with the Christian Democrats in the centre-left coalition government.

The Christian Democrats, led by Premier Aldo Moro, hope to maintain the coalition. The party has been in power since the Second World War.

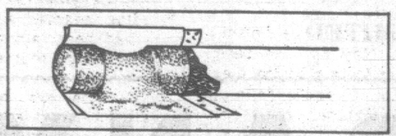
IMPERIAL TOBACCO INTRODUCES RICHMOND: WORLD'S ONLY STRICKMAN FILTER CIGARETTE

On February 28, 1968, Imperial Tobacco announced the signing of a licencing agreement with the Robert L. Strickman Foundation for the use of the Strickman filter on a Canadian cigarette. Imperial was the first tobacco company to obtain such a licence. This agreement was the culmination of six months' negotiations and research between Imperial and the Strickman scientists.



WHAT IS THE STRICKMAN FILTER?

This is a completely new type of cigarette filter. Thousands of tiny polymer granules are enclosed between conventional cellulose filters to give RICHMOND filtering efficiency unlike any other cigarette.

HOW DOES IT AFFECT TASTE? Since February, Imperial has been experimenting with many recipes of the finest Virginia tobacco to get the one best suited to the Strickman filter . . . and the one best suited to Canadian tastes. All tests now confirm that Imperial has found the right combination. RICHMOND does meet the high degree of filter efficiency specified by the Strickman Foundation. Its flavour has been approved for Canadian smokers through a rigid series of scientifically-designed taste-tests.

WHAT SHOULD YOU EXPECT FROM RICHMOND?

With RICHMOND, you can now experience the rewards of a better cigarette with the benefits of the Strickman filter. What's more, you will experience a new sensation in smoking. RICHMOND is more comfortable to smoke. Not hot. Not harsh. Not dry. In fact, the RICHMOND sensation is so comfortable all you feel is flavour. Try the world's first Strickman filter cigarette. Enjoy the new RICHMOND sensation today.

If you hope to mark your "X" on June 25, better stay in town and out of hospital. There's no absentee poll in a federal election. You turn up at the assigned polling station in your home riding, or you don't vote.

Just why Ottawa consistently refuses to make balloting provision for the registered voter who may be ill, or on an out-of-town job or even on vacation, I do not know.

But hundreds of registered civilian voters in this city — men and women who for one reason or another will be away from home on the day of decision — feel that it's high time the federal authority took a leaf from the provincial book and installed absentee stations. This complaint is by no means new, but with an election of extreme significance in the offing, it is becoming both loud and bitter.

Members of the armed forces overseas will, of course, get their chance to vote. Only hope of the absentee civilian is to cast his ballot on June 15 or 17 in the advance polls at times and in locations to be advertised.

Note too that if your name has been left off the list of registered voters, Court of Revision will sit on June 6, 7 and 8 at 715 View Street.

To qualify, you must be 21 or over, a Canadian by birth or naturalization, or a British subject with at least one year's residence in Canada.

To Petty Officer A. G. Reid of 671 Galiano Crescent, an approving nod from this corner. PO Reid, disgusted at the sewage that blemishes Esquimalt's Fleming Beach, fired off a brisk letter to the provincial Pollution Control Board.

"Having spent 20 years in the RCN," he wrote in part, "I do not consider myself a prude or anything like that, nor a crackpot. I just think it is time we spent a little more money and effort to clean up the beautiful land in which we live.

"Anything you do or can do to aid in getting this mess cleaned up will have my backing 100 per cent."

Perhaps if enough citizens make their feelings known in this matter, our government will stiffen its spine and give teeth to its last-year ban on the dumping of untreated sewage into our waterways, whether by so-called long outfall or short.

Further, I suggest that you refuse to be awed by engineering surveys which allege that long outfall disposal of raw sewage will solve our worries.

What we give to the tides in these narrow waters has a disconcerting habit of returning to plague us. Better for Victoria to cure this problem once and for all—and to holler loud and long for help from both governments. That much at least, our skookum taxes should buy us!

★

By a process of slow erosion, the Lord's Day Alliance Act has lost a good deal of its bite. Today, most of the petty restrictions derived from Puritan dogma have fallen into the discard, even though they remain on the books.

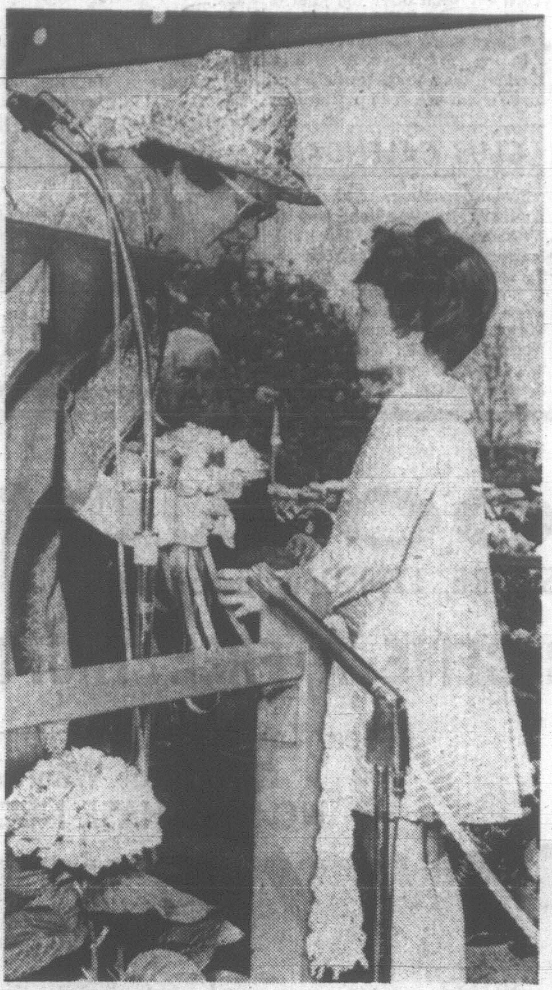
But the Sabbath more or less closed to commercial enterprise is still with us, and I think we'd be unwise to open it wide until we have a pretty solid idea what the results will be.

The question that needs answering is, just what effect will an open Sunday have on the working lives of those whom it would involve? Would they be expected to assume an extra day on an overtime (or double-time) basis, or would employers re-tool their work week by arranging shifts and adding to their staffs?

There's also organized labor to be heard from on the subject. The union trend is toward a shorter work-week. Would labor take kindly to a reversal of that move?

I ask these questions because the answers are going to be most important to the working men and women who would be caught up in any large-scale junking of the Act.

Certain of its phases are rightfully unpopular. But here, if ever, is a situation into which we should look before we leap.



BOUQUET of flowers is presented to Mrs. George Pearkes, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor, by Corinne Beverly Grills, Grade III student at Margaret Jenkins School. (Times photo.)

Queen Victoria Recalled As 'A Dear Old Lady'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

It was colorful as a bed of flowers.

More than 600 children formed a massed choir on the steps of the Legislative Buildings today for the historic IODE salute to Queen Victoria.

Their many-hued dresses and suits made a bold splash, offset by the flags, the uniforms and the soft green lawns surrounding Queen Victoria's statue.

Behind them, in their vivid green and gold uniforms, were boys and girls of the Lansdowne Secondary School Band.

Facing them, in soldierly array, were navy, army and air force cadets, Canadian Scottish Cadets, St. John Nursing Cadets, Girl Guides and Brownies.

In hot sunshine, hundreds of spectators—many of them pensioners and service veterans—joined in the observances.

PLATFORM

Making one of his last public appearances before retirement, Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes was guest of honor and faced the children from a blue, flower-decked platform.

"God bless you all," he told them. "You are growing up into an exciting world, but a difficult one, and my heart goes with you."

Because of the heat, Mr. Pearkes told the uniformed youngsters standing on the lawns to sit down if they wished. Only the Girl Guides and Brownies did so. The cadets continued standing at ease.

Mr. Pearkes recalled that Queen Victoria was born on May 24, 1819, and came to the throne when she was 19.

"I remember her as a dear old lady who had the most wonderful grey eyes, which seemed to throw out kindness to everyone. She was very kind to a small boy who was simply terrified at being in the royal presence."

EDUCATE THEM

He explained that Britain had taken colonies which could not rule themselves.

"The Empire's mission was to educate them to the point where they could. Now we see innumerable countries receiving their independence and taking on self-government.

"The British Empire has been replaced by the British Commonwealth, and we are sending out many young Canadians and Australians to help these new developing countries.

"The great concept of the British Empire still lives, but in a different form."

Mr. and Mrs. Pearkes were received with loud cheers when they arrived at the ceremonies. And the governor was introduced by Mrs. V. H. Shepperd, regent of the Victoria municipal chapter, IODE, as "a gallant soldier and a great gentleman."

"We are thankful that Mr. and Mrs. Pearkes will continue to live with us in Victoria after they leave Goverment House."

The ceremonies began with a fanfare of trumpets, announcing the march of the IODE standard bearers in their dark suits and white hats to the tune of Land of Hope and Glory.

After the standard bearers, led by Mrs. Lance Muirhead, had formed up in front of the dias, all children joined in the singing of God Save the Queen, O Canada, Land of Our Birth and O God Our Help in Ages Past.

Prayers were offered by Rev. Dr. Samuel Parsons, past-president, Greater Victoria Council of Churches.

After the ceremony, flowers were placed at the base of Queen Victoria's statue on behalf of all Victoria school children.

The youngsters then joined in a mass parade along Belleville and Government streets to Thunderbird Park.

The massed choir was conducted by Harry Bigsby, director of music for Victoria schools, and the Lansdowne Band by John Boel.

Guests on the platform included Canon Grahame Baker, president of Greater Victoria Council of Churches; officials the B.C. education department and the school board.

A director and actor with MGM for 20 years, he directed the dancing of such personalities as Betty Grable, Ann Miller, Shirley Temple, Debbie Reynolds.

Automobile Graveyard Cleanup Urged

Island municipal authorities today asked for provincial government aid in cleaning up the eyesore caused by automobile graveyards.

Approximately 50 aldermen and mayors attended the 19th annual meeting of the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities held in Saanich Municipal Hall.

A motion passed requested that "the Motor Vehicle Branch undertake, with municipal and or regional districts, the responsibility for disposition of all registered vehicles which have reached the end of their usefulness."

DISPOSAL FEE

The resolution stated financing of this function should be through the imposition of a disposal fee, collected at the time of the vehicle's original registration.

Ald. Mr. Frances Elford of Oak Bay moved the resolution.

The original resolution stated that the Motor Vehicle Branch should assume complete responsibility for the disposition of worn out cars but was amended to include municipal and regional district co-operation when reservations were expressed by Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen.

He said he didn't feel the provincial government department was the one to deal with the problem.

"We shouldn't continue to shovel responsibilities on to senior governments," he said.

MUST FACE PROBLEM

Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich concurred with Mayor Stephen but suggested an amendment.

"Municipalities must face up to this problem," he said. "Perhaps this resolution doesn't do the job, but lets not back away from the problem."

However Ald. Elford said she felt disposal of automobiles should be a provincial responsibility as they gained the benefits from them in licence and gasoline taxes.

Following passage of the automobile disposal resolution delegates quickly approved another motion requesting a change in the Municipal Superannuation Act to remove discrimination between employees.

LIBRARY GRANTS

The motion stated the act discriminates against women employees in the area of death benefits.

Victoria Ald. Robert Baird chaired the meeting which continued all afternoon.

President of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, Mayor Peter Wing of Kamloops, addressed delegates briefly prior to debate on resolutions.

Other resolutions to be considered include structure of library grants and on extending transportation privileges for the elderly and disabled in areas outside of Vancouver and Victoria.

Majority Feel Decision 'Hasty'

By JIM HUME

Bishop Remi De Roo was unable Thursday night to heal the breach created among his parishioners by the closure of St. Louis College.

For three hours and seven minutes the bishop stood alone in the face of his accusers fielding questions which ranged from gentle queries to harsh challenge.

At one point, he offered to resign.

Twice during the long session Bishop De Roo and his supporters tried to muster a solid front to back the decision to close the 104-year-old secondary school.

Twice they fell far short of the mark.

The first attempt came shortly after 11 p.m. when a woman in the close to 350 strong audience asked all those supporting the Bishop to stand.

No count was taken but a 60-40 vote in favor of the Bishop was a generous rule of thumb record.

Satisfied

A few minutes later the Bishop called for a brief stretch period and invited those satisfied with his answers to that point to leave the jammed basement of the college, soon to close.

Approximately 25 per cent of the people present accepted the invitation.

The other 75 per cent stayed to hear Bishop De Roo face another hour and fifteen minutes of questioning.

When it was all over, shortly after 12:05 a.m. Bishop De Roo remained convinced that the decision to close the College was a right decision. The majority of his audience remained convinced that the decision was hasty and in error.

One other fact emerged from the long session.

Bishop De Roo warned the highly tense congregation that the closure of the College was just the first step in a program which would result in the total closure of all Catholic schools in the area "if we do not rally and do more than talk."

Strictly Financial

The Bishop, who faced the sometimes angry meeting without the benefit of a chairman at his own request, refused to lay the blame for the closure at the feet of the provincial government which gives no financial aid to independent schools.

He said the decision was strictly financial.

"Whatever your feelings may be, I am still faced with the professional advice of our bankers and financial advisers who say we do not have the money to rebuild this school," he said. "If there is any way that anyone here can show me that that advice is unsound I am willing to go into the entire matter again."

"But," added the Bishop, "I hate to say this, but St. Louis died several years ago" because of the apathy of local Catholics.

Several times during the long night the Bishop flashed cool anger.

The first time when, by innuendo, several members of the audience had suggested that the Bishop, the senate and the priests of the area had failed to support the unsuccessful fund drive to keep the college open.

"Do not slur my clergy by general statement," snapped the Bishop. "If you have any specific complaints against specific priests, place them in writing on my desk."

Audience Challenged

On another occasion after a prolonged series of questions faulting the Bishop for the closure he challenged the audience to show proof that the decision was wrong.

"If you have any evidence that my decision was mistaken, submit the proof and I will galdly submit my resignation," he said.

"The decision to close St. Louis was one of the most painful decisions I have had to make. But I had to make it. I tried to save the diocese and I think I have."

The statement was greeted with an outburst of applause.

Williston Names New Deputy For Lands Branch

David Borthwick has been appointed the province's new deputy minister of lands, Resources Minister Ray Williston announced today.

The 48-year-old former director of lands, succeeds Robert Torrance who died suddenly last month.

Walter Robert Redel, 47, steps up to director of lands from co-ordinator and his place is filled by Axel Kinnear, 53, who has been chief of air surveys division, Mr. Williston said.

Mr. Borthwick was born in Scotland but came to New Westminster when he was four years old.

He taught school in the Peace River area, served in the army from 1940 to 1943 and graduated from University of B.C. in 1947 with a degree in agriculture.

He joined the agriculture department after graduation and switched to the lands department as an inspector two years later.

Hydrofoil Problems 'Minor' As It Makes Shipyard Run

The hydrofoil Victoria, which encountered difficulties on her inaugural run from Seattle to Victoria Wednesday, was taken to a shipyard Thursday for a thorough inspection.

"We thought it unwise to chance another crossing until we are completely confident all systems are 'go'," said Tad Kanda, assistant secretary of Northwest Hydrofoil Lines, Inc., in Seattle.

The Victoria was delayed 2½ hours leaving Seattle Wednesday by engine troubles and an hour on the return run. But the runs themselves were described as smooth and comfortable.

Kanda said the problems were minor but "time-comsuming."

Date for resumption of regular runs for the 75-passenger craft will not be known until the shipyard inspection is completed.

Initially the Victoria is scheduled to make one trip a day, leaving Seattle at 7:30 a.m. and returning from the provincial capital at 5 p.m. The trip takes about 2½ hours.

IWA To Vote Next Week

A strike vote will start next week among 28,000 members of the International Woodworkers of America at 113 B.C. coast and Vancouver Island timber companies.

Balloting must be finished by Friday, May 31. No date has been set for a start on the vote on southern Vancouver Island.

Union members are seeking a 50-cent hourly wage increase in a one-year contract and other items. The companies have made no wage proposal. The present contract expires June 14.

Negligence Charge Nets Year In Jail

'Incident Demands Deterring Effect'

A Victoria sailor was sentenced to one year's imprisonment in Supreme Court Thursday after being found guilty of criminal negligence causing death.

His driving licence in Canada was suspended for four years.

Louis Durham, 29, of 733 Wilson Street, was found guilty by a jury of four women and eight men. His car collided with another car on the Trans-Canada Highway at Goldstream last Feb. 17.

Four persons were killed — Victoria car dealer Clifford Horwood, who was driving; his wife, Pearl; Mrs. Eleanor Tait and Mrs. Martha Bannerman, both sisters of Mrs. Horwood, all travelling in a 1968 Citroen.

Durham's defence counsel, Lloyd McKenzie, QC, pleaded for a substantial fine and a very substantial suspension of his driving licence instead of a jail term.

'DOING DUTY'

But Mr. Justice J. A. Macdonald said:

"I would'nt be doing my duty if I imposed a fine only. I must have regard to the fact that four lives have been taken in this most unfortunate accident.

"The tragedy of these cases is that ordinarily good citizens find themselves under charge."

Mr. Justice Macdonald said the evidence did not suggest the degree of "flagrance" revealed in similar cases on the mainland. But he noted it was a wet, dark Saturday night and the accused had admitted driving at 60 miles an hour.

"The maximum penalty for criminal negligence causing death is imprisonment for life. I have to consider the safety of the public on the roads and along the sidewalks, and this demands a level of sentence that will have a deterring effect on others."

Mr. McKenzie said the accused was married and had two children, ages seven and three years. "He and his wife are separated because of the wife's infidelity while he was at sea. The children are looked after by his father and mother at Langley. The father was injured in an industrial accident and can work only two days a week."

TWO CHILDREN

Mr. McKenzie said Durham had served 11 years in the Royal Canadian Navy and was a leading seaman and engineer. He had been taking a 12-month engineering course and was doing well.

"But he has been warned that, if he loses any more time, he will be taken off the course. He is industrious and hard-working and has all the virtues of a good sailor.

"He will bear forever the terrible memory of this accident. Therefore I would suggest a substantial fine and a very substantial suspension of his licence."

Mr. McKenzie said Durham's ship, HMCS St. Croix, is now at sea.

Earlier, in his address to the jury, crown prosecutor E. George MacMinn said that, just before the accident, Durham entered into "a series of curves at an excessive rate of speed," and was seen to drift over the white line.

Mr. MacMinn was assisted by Brian R. D. Smith.

Canada's Own Maple Treats Pancake Fans

By PENNY SAVER

Even in the middle of summer my family can eat pancakes. And nothing goes so well on the top of a pile of pancakes as maple syrup. Being a true Saver, Jayne's husband feels the same about it as my family but he was quite disappointed to find that Jayne wouldn't make his favorite syrup. "It's not that I don't know how," she told me when I came over to offer her my recipe. "I haven't been able to find pure maple syrup here and my recipe calls for it." That was the silliest thing I'd heard from Jayne yet. Obviously she hadn't been using her eyes. I marched her right down to the store and showed her a line of maple products that made her hang her head in shame.

Pure maple syrup, made in Canada of course, comes in bottles ranging in size from two fluid ounces (two for 39 cents) to 20 fluid ounces (1.19). The delicious maple flavor is available in other forms as well. Granulated maple sugar adds a different twist to all your recipes. It comes in one-half and one pound plastic bags costing 65 cents and $1.20 respectively. Just use it like regular granulated sugar (or half and half) and taste the difference.

For morning when there is toast instead of pancakes I bought my family a can of maple butter. This 12-ounce can is 77 cents and it includes a plastic snap-on lid for storage. Just a note of warning, though, this spread needs a good stirring before it is used. One of the children suggested this maple butter might be a quick way of topping pancakes, graciously allowing that this would save Mom the hot minutes over the stove stirring the bubbling syrup.

'Sweet-Tooths' Will Love This Spread

Speaking of spreads, toast has never had it so good. One new spread on the market is a caramel butter. At present this is on a manufacturer's special of two 14-ounce tubs for 49 cents. This price will last only as long as the stock sent by the company, of course. Unfortunately no price has been set yet for the single tubs. The sweet-tooths in my family like this spread almost as much as the maple.

I like the cinnamon butter best of all. A 12-ounce tub of this spread is 39 cents and it makes an instant cinnamon toast. These butters contain the oils to take the place of the butter so are delicious straight on the hot bread. The tubs have snap-down lids to protect the contents from spoiling.

Freeze-drying is the latest thing in instant coffees. In this method fresh-perked liquid coffee is frozen in a special way to remove the water and the remaining solids (the tiny particles that make water into coffee) gathered into a lump. They are then broken into tiny chunks that actually resemble coarsely ground coffee beans. And they smell like coffee too. This coffee is more expensive than most other instants, but I found that several guests asked that I use less of the granule when I served them a 'cuppa.' I myself like strong, strong coffee and found this instant delicious black. A two-ounce jar is 69 cents and a four-ounce jar $1.19. This instant coffee disolves very easily and works well as a flavoring.

If you would like to know where I shopped for these items, please call me at 382-3131.

Norwegians to Celebrate

True to tradition, Norwegians of Victoria will celebrate their country's Independence Day Saturday.

Celebrations in Norway begin with children's parades during the day, and continue with dances and parties for grown-ups, often in national costumes, in the evening.

In Victoria, Norwegian consul general Svein Haaland will come from Vancouver to speak at a gathering at Norway House, 1110 Hillside, at 7:30 p.m.

Later a program will be presented by John Overholt, the Symes family, Invald Jensen and the Gilstein family.

The public is invited to share in the celebration.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Spot Reduce In Areas With This Exercise

Q. I lead such a very busy life, with a home and children and a part-time job, that I just cannot spend much time exercising. However, I know that I need some spot reducing and firming up. I am especially interested in firming the abdomen and hips and getting rid of some deposits of fat across my back just below my armpits. Can't you give me one exercise which will help?

Lowman

A. Yes. The following one will be helpful. Lie on your left side, head resting on your left arm, elbow bent. Swing your right leg backward as you swing your right arm forward. Now swing your leg forward as you swing your arm backward. Continue, swinging the arm and leg in opposite directions. Keep the arm and leg straight. It is important to reach as far in each direction as you can. After a while turn onto your right side and swing your left leg and arm.

Q. How can I make a receding chin appear more prominent?

A. Place a dot of rouge on your chin and blend it outward so that the effect is subtle. Also arrange your hair so that there is fullness down to a little below the level of your chinline.

Q. I am very much underweight and I can't seem to gain a pound no matter what I eat. I stuff myself every day with things like chocolate nut sundaes and malted milk shakes, but stay just the same. What's wrong?

A. Probably what's wrong is that you stuff yourself with these rich foods and are not eating a well balanced diet. It is fine to reinforce a diet which gives you all of the essential foods with such calorie-laden items. However, these should be additions to a well planned diet. If you stuff yourself with sundaes, and such, you will not have the appetite for the essentials. Vitamin dificiency can be one factor in underweight.

Q. My husband and I are both overweight and we want to reduce. Should his calorie intake be the same as mine?

No. As a general rule, because of their greater stature, men can have more food than women and still lose weight. You husband should probably have four or five hundred more calories daily than you do.

The booth will be part of a display by Community Chest agencies who have received space in the Mall for the day.

WOMEN AID POLICE

NEW YORK (AP) — Every weekend, three dozen women volunteers report to three police precinct stationhouses in New York City and offer the kind of motherly help that's outside the range of many policemen.

In the 23rd Precinct in East Harlem, the volunteers help find lost children, help families catch up with crooked salesmen and put desperate people in touch with city agencies. They aid the police in many other ways.

Under a $167,800 Ford Foundation grant to the police department, announced Sunday, the volunteers in the 23rd Precinct will become paid workers at $2 an hour, and the program will be extended to two nearby precincts.

The program will be expanded to seven days a week, and the woman receptionists will be assisted by three professional social workers. Other counsellors will be on call 24 hours a day. The programs in a Bronx precinct and one in Queens will continue on a voluntary basis.

"My first airplane may look like this," says Christine Anglin. A member of the Victoria Flying Club, Chris would like to have a plane of her own so that she can clock solo flying hours toward her instructor's licence. Her ultimate ambition is to own a plane that is fully aerobatic and to make a name for herself in this daredevil field.

Would Like to Represent Canada at International Championships

SHE INTENDS TO GO STUNT FLYING

By ELIZABETH BENNETT

Would you hire a slender, blue-eyed girl of 20 to fly you to Seattle?

The answer to this question could make a lot of difference to Christine Anglin, of 3320 Kingsley Street.

Chris is, to her knowledge, the only woman in Victoria with a commercial flying licence and one of less than a dozen in Canada. This licence, which demands 150 flying hours, a written and medical examination, enables her to fly anywhere in Canada for hire.

Her present goal is to qualify as an instructor, which demands 250 solo flying hours, and eventually she hopes to enter the field of aerobatics.

"My instructor told me on the first day, 'You'll never make a living flying.' I definitely don't have any airline ambitions, not that I'd have an opportunity anyway," she explains.

HARD TO BE CAPTAIN

"In Britain there are one or two girls who fly as captains on commercial airlines but I doubt if it will ever catch on here. The main reason given is that even if a woman did get to a position of captain most men would refuse to fly under her.

"I know I wouldn't," she smiles, "and I certainly wouldn't fly under a woman instructor."

Despite Chris' feelings on the matter, women are able to find jobs as instructors. The job is poorly paid however.

"To become a good instructor takes hours of actual instruction. They just can't raise the rates any more so instructors aren't paid what their knowledge is worth. This won't change unless the government gives subsidies."

There is a move afoot to get government backed loans, similar to student loans, to help young people with the $2,500 to $3,000 needed to gain the commercial pilot's licence.

"When you have to buy flying time at $12 to $20 an hour it adds up, though there are ways to get around it. To get into a position where you can start looking for a job you must spend the equivalent of four years university education."

BEGAN AT UNIVERSITY

Chris herself began flying in the University of Victoria Flying Club.

Her first flying experience came with American friends she met two years ago at Shawnigan Lake. They had flown their own plane up from Los Angeles and invited her to go back with them. She tried to fly part way.

"When I came back to university, I joined the flying club. That's when I started using my second term fees to pay for flying lessons."

Is there any real discrimination against women looking for jobs as flyers?

"Speaking for myself as a girl, it will get you in the door but not get you the job," Chris reports. "I think a girl has to prove herself a bit more."

Chris was offered a job on the Prairies as a demonstrator and charter pilot but turned it down to stay in Victoria and continue her lessons in her home-town.

"I know the club here inside out. I've worked in just about every office on the airport. I work a while and then fly my money away."

As for the aerobatics, Chris hopes that the novelty of being a woman will prove an advantage here.

LOTS OF AIR SHOWS

"About every two weeks there is an air show somewhere in the States. All you have to do is be good, have experience and get a name," she explains.

She hopes to be able to enter one of these shows by next summer. Already she has taken 20 or 30 hours of instruction with Jack Ellard, manager of the Victoria Flying Club, who has his own Harvard.

Harvards, affectionately known as "yellow perils" because of their color, are ex-air force trainers for aerobatics.

"For the first six hours I was scared stiff," Chris recalls. "I never thought I would go in for aerobatics, but you get used to being upside down."

Chris may not stay in Victoria for the rest of her flying career, but she certainly plans to stay in Canada.

"So far Canada hasn't put in much of a showing at the International Aerobatic Championships. It is mainly the United States and Russia. I would like to see someone from Canada do well."

Even if she never succeeds in her ambitions, Chris will keep on flying.

"One thing about this flying, you sure get around," she says. "I go crazy on a ferry now."

DEAR ABBY . . .

No 'Open Arms' For Rock Head

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Here are the facts: I have a 23-year-old son who went with a very pushy girl off and on all through college. She kept pressuring him to marry her, but he said he wanted to graduate from college first. Just for spite, in her senior year she married somebody else.

She hasn't been married three months, and already she's after my son again. She wrote, saying she still loves him, made a mistake and is "considering" divorcing her husband. She meets my son on week-ends and tells her husband she is going "home" to visit her parents.

What do you think of a girl who continues to live with her husband and sneaks around with her old boy friend? Am I being narrowminded in refusing to accept this girl with open arms when my son brings her to my home?

She has no shame. She writes love messages to him on postcards! My son says he may not marry her after all, but he is not about to turn down a good thing! What is your advice?

HIS MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I don't think you're being "narrowminded," nor do I blame you for not accepting this girl with open arms. She should use the rocks in her head to fill up the holes in your son's.

DEAR ABBY: While preparing for my wedding, a problem came up concerning my bridesmaids.

A friend of my mother asked Mums if her daughter could be a bridesmaid. Mums didn't know what to say, so she said yes.

Abby, I have known this girl all my life, but she is not yet 14, and the bridesmaids I want are between 18 and 20. Besides, this girl is not a particularly close friend of mine.

Now what do I do? The time is getting short.

STUCK IN TORONTO

DEAR STUCK: Unless you can prevail upon your mother to tell her friend that she answered before having consulted you, and therefore was not aware that all the bridesmaids had been selected, you are indeed stuck. Since "Mums" got you into it, I think it's up to "Mums" to get you out of it.

DEAR ABBY: I have a small baby. She is our first and she is beautiful, but I get no credit for her beauty whatsoever. According to my mother-in-law, our baby got all her beauty from my husband.

It's true, the baby does look more like my husband than she does me, but every time someone mentions what beautiful eyes she has, my mother-in-law says, "Yes, they're just like Ronnie's." And the same about his smile, his nose, and his dimples.

This is getting on my nerves something terrible because I was taught to respect my elders, so I can't say anything to contradict her, but it bothers me just the same. How can I handle this, Abby?

DAUGHTER-IN-LAW

DEAR DAUGHTER: Don't contradict her. When she says the baby looks just like Ronnie, say, "She certainly does. She has his features and MY fixtures."

DEAR ABBY: When I read the letter from the woman whose neighbor named her dog "Lester," which was the name of the man next door, I had to write:

Nearly 15 years ago, my father and I were living together alone, having just lost my mother about six months before.

One evening Dad heard someone calling "Junior, Junior." Since that is his nickname, he went to investigate, and discovered a neighbor woman calling her cocker spaniel.

Well, it couldn't have turned out better because she was attractive, single, and very nice. A year and a half later my father married this woman.

Of course this woman had named her dog "Junior" before she met my father, but she couldn't have made a wiser choice.

She has been a wonderful wife to Dad, and a wonderful "mother" to me, doggone it.

VICTORIA GIRL

Violinist Invited To Lead Orchestra

VIVIENNE

A 20-year-old Victoria violinist and former member of the National Youth Orchestra, Vivienne Abbott, has agreed to come home from the Netherlands, where she is a member of the Rotterdam Philharmonic, to serve as concertmaster of this year's National Youth Orchestra.

Vivienne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas R. Abbott, Oliver Street, has just completed her second season with the Rotterdam Philharmonic and had made plans to spend the summer abroad.

However, after auditioning violinists across Canada, Edmonton Symphony director Brian Priestman and Franz-Paul Decker, who will conduct the 1968 NYO, were not satisfied that they had found a capable concertmaster among those accepted, and cabled Vivienne asking her to return.

She will join her cellist brother Norman and six other Victorians in the orchestra which begins rehearsals July 8 at L'Academie de Quebec City.

Under the baton of Mr. Decker who is musical director of the Montreal Symphony and Rotterdam Philharmonic, the NYO will tour Eastern Canada in August.

They will not tour the West this year.

This is the third successive year that Victoria has had the biggest per capita representation in the orchestra of any city in Canada.

B.C. Hospital, Health Services Get More Staff

Sixty-six more positions will be added to the civil service establishment authorized in the health and hospital services department.

An order-in-council Thursday added 55 positions to the mental health services branch in the department and 11 administrative and accounting positions in BCHIS all effective June 1.

Community services for mental health will be buttressed by five medical specialists, five psychologists, five psychiatric social workers, five public health nurses, five stenographers and five clerks.

And 25 more jobs, most of them in janitorial, maintenance and laundry sections, will be created to help run the province's mental hospitals.

Lost Items Await Owners

Items turned into the Victoria city police lost and found recently include:

Papers, possibly a thesis, in the name of William Crozier; black brief case containing another thesis in the name of J. G. Burke; lady's wrist watch found in 700 block Fort; box of metal shelving; wallet in the name of William Cordick; a golf bag and clubs; black change purse containing a sum of money; birth certificate in the name of John Brown; brown purse containing the name Mrs. Turcotte; Mexican bracelet and a silver bracelet; a pearl necklace and several sets of keys.

Tiny Vickers Machine-Gun Enshrined

LONDON (CP) — Britain has decided to establish an infantry museum and the first item to be contributed is a miniature Vickers machine gun made by a Canadian Army veteran in Winnipeg.

The museum is being established at the British School of Infantry at Warminster, Wiltshire, about 90 miles west of London.

Brig. G. C. A. Gilbert, the commandant, said in an interview today he welcomed the Canadian model and hopes to get enough exhibits to illustrate the entire history of the infantryman.

The model complete in every detail was brought to Britain by Brig. James Majury, now at the Imperial College of Infantry. Majury said he came across it while visiting his brother, Dr. A. S. Majury, a Winnipeg doctor.

Capt. E C. Haines, a Winnipeg engineer, is reported to have made two models of the machine-gun that was used in both world wars, and now retired. The model to be housed in the museum took him a year to build.

"It is so finely made that it can shoot a bullet if we had a bullet that small," Majury said.

Top Stars Appear Sunday For Emmy Awards Program

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The awards season comes to an end on Sunday night when a wagon-load of Emmies—for Television Excellence—will be handed out in 90 minutes.

U.S. television viewers have been exposed to the Oscars, the Tonies, the Golden Globes and the Grammie and some have lasted two hours or more.

The Emmies, promises executive produced Greg Garrison will be wrapped up in an hour and a half.

'I think we can do it," said the producer.

"After all, we're in the entertainment business. And if television can't give its own awards in an entertaining manner, then there's something wrong."

The television academy has recruited two powerhouse emcees— Frank Sinatra, who will handle the Hollywood end of the program, and Dick Van Dyke, in charge in New York. Most of the other big names Garrison sought will be on hand.

"There have been a few sore losers who refused because they weren't nominated," said the producer. "But the big ones will be there.

"Dean (Martin) said he couldn't very well not appear since the show involves his best friend (Sinatra) and his producer (Garrison).

BOB WILL MAKE IT

"Bob Hope will be in New York doing a benefit at Philharmonic Hall, but he said he would steal 15 minutes to rush down to the Americana Hotel and appear. The fact that we have his own director, Jack Shean directing the show didnt hurt us any."

Garrison said there will be some brief entertainment and perhaps a few clips of the top shows. But otherwise he'll keep the awards coming.

Do you realize that the Oscar show ran for 28 minutes before the first award was given?" he remarked. "If six minutes go by without an award on our show, it will seem like an eternity."

One category that causes Garrison concern is the outstanding musical or variety series. Competing with the Bell Telephone Hour, Carol Burnett show, Laugh-in and the Smothers Brothers hour is the Dean Martin show, produced by Greg Garrison.

"I've always been a loser," he admitted, "and my wife always gives me the same routine in the car going home: "It's enough of an honor just to be nominated.' Baloney! This year I'd like to win!"

Big Bauble

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Richard Burton bought a bauble for his actress wife Elizabeth Taylor Thursday—a 33.19 carat diamond that cost $305,000, an auction house said. The gift, "a surprise," according to a Burton spokesman, was picked up at auction at the Parke-Bernet Galleries on Madison Avenue by an agent for Burton.

B.C. Welfare Dept. Wins High Award

The B.C. Social Welfare Department has won the continent's image-makers highest award.

The Silver Anvil award, presented by the Public Relations Society of America, has been awarded to the department for its work in community relations, Social Welfare Minister Dan Campbell announced Thursday.

Mrs. Laura Fowler of the department was in New York to attend the 24th annual award ceremonies and received the silver anvil award on behalf of the department, he said.

The citation accompanying the award praises the public relations efforts of the department between 1964 and 1967 to increase and improve its foster and adoption homes programs.

CRAZY OVER HORSES are these four young ladies of Victoria Riding Academy, and they're not alone. They will be joined by a large contingent of show riders at the academy on Cedar Hill Crossroad this weekend for three days of competition. Saturday will be taken up with junior events, Sunday with dressage and Mnoday with senior, open competitions. And right in the thick of things will be, from left: Shelly Gale on Trader Vic; Jerri Cooper on Bay Rum; Gena Ross on Heart's Content, and Linda Zabel on Lucky Me. (Times photo.)

Students Become 'Disaffected Rebels'

ANTIGONISH N.S. (CP)—The largest convocation in the history of St. Francis Xavier University was held Thursday when 614 degrees and diplomas were awarded by Most Rev. W. E. Power, university chancellor.

Dr. James A. Corry, principal of Queen's University in Kingston, told graduates nothing could be better calculated to disenchant the public with universities than sit-ins, break-ins, indecencies and violence practised by frustrated students.

Dr. Corry was one of four Canadians presented with an honorary doctor of laws degree at the convocation. Others were J. Clyde Nunn, Antigonish broadcaster and former Nova Scotia cabinet minister; John H. Colemen, Nova Scotia-born banker, and A. E. Balloch, an industrialist active in the economic and educational development of Nova Scotia.

Dr. Corry said the service role of the university is perhaps being "oversold" leaving its true purpose obscured.

'In most universities we are not responding enough to (the students') freshness and eagerness so numbers of them become disaffected rebels talking seriously about setting up anti-universities and anti-curricula," he said.

DRUMS WILL BEAT AT WEEKEND FOR CROWNING, RACES

Spirits Invited to Brentwood's Sports Festival

By HUMPHRY DAVY

The drums will beat in West Saanich over the weekend, calling on the spirits of the forest and streams to be present for the festival of the people of the Land of the Maple.

And the drums will also call upon the spirit of the great white queen—Queen Victoria—to be present for the festival in honor of her name.

Maple land is the English translation for the "Tsarlip" Indian reserve at Brentwood where a two-day regatta and sport festival is being held Saturday and Sunday.

There will be plenty to see. Indian magic—the bestowing of mystical powers through the medium of a masked dance seldom performed before non-Indians, and 11-man war canoe races, are two major attractions.

Indians representing bands from various parts of Vancouver Island, the Gulf Islands, the mainland and Washington, will participate in field sport and regatta events.

•

It's a big day for the Salish people for it is here that the young manhood of the once-powerful tribe is tested for his physical prowess.

There will be many Indian dances throughout the two-day festival but the most important one will be staged at the crowning of the Indian Princess at 1 p.m. Sunday.

It is known as the squwai-squwai dance, one of the few traditional masked dances of the Salish people with spiritual and magical overtones.

Seldom held before non-Indians, the dance is performed on special occasions—an Indian coming of age; bestowing a name on an important person or the birth of a child.

Through the medium of the dancers who are in touch with the spirit world, the person receiving a name is exhorted to remain true to the virtues of goodness, courage and loyalty.

Powers are passed on to the person receiving the name.

The dance is only performed by a society composed of family groups.

On Sunday it will be staged by the Seaward family of Nanaimo and the Harris family of Shell Bay, Chemainus.

•

On the same day at 4 p.m., 14 11-man crews will compete for the Vancouver Island war canoe championship.

The winner will be awarded the Bishop Hill Memorial Trophy.

There will also be other canoe races—singles, double paddles, as well as a women's event.

The festival opens Saturday at 11 a.m. with a soccer game and field sports at 1 p.m., followed by canoe races—similar to those being held Sunday.

Master of ceremonies is Chief Dan George, a TV and stage personality.

Chief Hummingbird and his young dancers will also give a number of performances throughout the festival.

On Saturday evening at the Brentwood Community Hall, the young people will hold a dance. Proceeds are to go towards the Chief Thunderbird Memorial—a project sponsored by the Brentwood's Woman's Institute and Saanich council.

Chief Thunderbird was an internationally-known wrestler.

Chief Philip Paul, one of the organizers of the festival, said arrangements have also been made to supply visitors with barbecued salmon and clam chowder.

Members of the Optimist Club will assist in the operation of the festival.

COWICHAN RIVER SEWER OUTLET MOVED

LAKE COWICHAN—Moving the location of the outlet for the proposed new village sewer system will cost $100,000—but has removed objections to the entire project.

Village council learned this week seven riverfront property owners on the Cowichan have withdrawn earlier objections "provided there is an alternative outfall".

When the objections were first raised last fall the village plan was altered to move the outfall farther upstream.

This only increased the number of objectors from three to seven.

The council's consulting engineers have now proposed relocating the outlet downstream of the seven properties and the project should go ahead soon.

SLIGHT RIPPLE ALONG COAST

VANCOUVER (CP) — Slight ripples in the water off the west coast of Vancouver Island were reported Thursday following a wave alert issued by the U.S. coast guard at Honolulu.

Farther down the North American coast, however, residents in Oregon and northern California left beach areas on orders from police.

The moves followed several waves that resulted from Japanese earthquakes early Thursday. The U.S. coast guard said there was no immediate estimate of the likely strength of the waves but they "could cause damage," the Search and Rescue Centre here said in relaying the warning.

At Tofino, where one wave was expected at 1:15 p.m., officials at the federal lifeboat station reported only "slight activity" at 1:30 p.m.

Aboard a Shell Oil Co. drilling rig off the Queen Charlotte Islands, officials said by radio-telephone there was no activity and "no sign of a tidal wave at all."

In Clatsop County, Ore., police ordered all clam diggers off the beaches and persons in low-lying areas were asked to leave their houses until the wave alert was cancelled.

At Crescent City, Calif., about 2,500 residents in the downtown area were reported moving away from the ocean-side.

RCMP in Port Alberni said they called off the tidal wave alert after a small wave washed ashore "with negligible effects."

Waterfront areas in the Port Alberni district were damamged by a tidal wave following the 1964 Good Friday earthquake.

PEOPLE who criticize the B.C. school system are "destroyers running amok," says Frank Beinder, president of the B.C. Trustees' Association. From Trail, Mr. Beinder was speaking to the B.C. School District Secretary-Treasurer Association meeting in Parksville. He said this province has the best system in Canada and that, because of rapid changes in society, "there is a natural time lag in education."

Courtenay, City Pupils Win Prizes

LINES HARDEN

'No Compromise' In Clerk Strike

DUNCAN — Striking clerks and Cowichan school board are still deadlocked in their wage dispute.

A Thursday night meeting between the board's chairman, Joseph Frumento, and salary committee and the Canadian Union of Public Employees was fruitless.

It appeared to harden the line between the parties.

CUPE representative Tom Smith said "The office workers will be on the picket line today and the weeks to follow until such time as the school board is prepared to recognize the unanimous conciliation board wage award is the one and only basis for settlement."

The school board rejected the 13.5 per cent award to 18 fulltime clerks. The clerks started their strike Monday morning.

Mr. Smith said that at Thursday's meeting it was pointed out the 13.5 per cent award falls far short of granting the Cowichan clerks equal pay with employees in other school districts.

He said "It was also stated that the clerical workers are being singled out by the trustees to accept sub-standard union rates when other school board employees such as teachers are being paid no less than their counterparts in other districts."

Mr. Smith said "Discrimination against the female office employees will not be tolerated to the point of conceding to the board."

A board press release said "We feel it incumbent to point out that our proposals established a wage structure substantially comparable with those paid to clerical staff employed by the leading local employers.

FRINGE BENEFITS

"When it is considered board clerks work a shorter week, 35 compared to 37½ hours, and enjoy a number of fringe benefits not normally granted such as cumulative sick leave, the board's offer (8.5 per cent) results in a very high level of salaries for clerical help in the district.

"In addition, the board also feels that employees of a school district are supported entirely by local taxes and as such school boards should follow rather than lead in establishing local salary levels."

The board statement added, "As elected and appointed representatives of the local taxpayers we feel that to accede to the demands of the union would be to abdicate our responsibility.

"However, the board was, is and will remain ready to compromise at such time as CUPE is prepared to do likewise."

Vancouver Man Fined $1,000

NANAIMO — Herbert Fred Windal, 57, of Vancouver, was find $1,000 in British Columbia Supreme Court here Thursday for dangerous driving.

Windall had originally been charged with criminal negligence in a highway accident in which Mrs. Jeannette Marie Sweeney, 22, of Gabriola Island and Richard David Hall, 17, of Victoria, died March 26.

The crown withdrew the earlier charge.

Mr. Justice David Verchere restricted Windall, a post office field officer, to driving only in his employment for two years.

Judges to Hear Insurance Appeals

Two judges of the Exchequer Court of Canada have been appointed to hear final appeals on caims for unemployment insurance benefits.

They are Mr. Justice Roderick Kerr, who will become umpire, and Mr. Justice Allison Walsh, new deputy umpire, under the Unemployment Insurance Act.

They succeed Mr. Justice J. D. Kearney and Mr. Justice Jacques Dumoulin.

Couple Returning Home

A vacationing Alberta couple, kidnapped at gunpoint for about 18 hours earlier this week, were scheduled to leave Vancouver Island today.

Howard Frank, 26, and Audrey Swanson, 24, both of Edmonton, were unharmed in the incident.

"We would just like to forget about it," said Mr. Frank as the couple prepared to leave for Miracle Beach near Campbell River and the last of their holidays.

Their ordeal began Tuesday evening in the Ivy Green campsite near Duncan when an unshaven and incoherent man threatened them with a revolver and later forced them to drive him toward Victoria.

Police stopped the car at a roadblock after Mr. Frank managed to slip a note written on toilet paper to a gasoline station attendant.

William Charles Smith, 37, of no fixed address, was remanded to Riverview mental hospital Thursday after appearing in court on a charge of kidnapping.

Youth Killed

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The Jacoby transfer bid is easy to learn. Specifically when your partner opens one no-trump, the two diamond response is a transfer to hearts and the opening bidder rebids two hearts unless he has a maximum no-trump with very good hearts in which case he may rebid three hearts. The two heart response is a spade transfer in the same manner.

The responding hand is unlimited in strength. You may transfer with a bad hand and intention of passing at the two level or you may transfer on your way to a slam.

The bidding of today's hand shows a transfer bid slam. South had almost enough to jump to three spades after North's two heart transfer. North in turn might have gone directly to four spades but he saw some slam possibilities so he forced with three clubs.

Opening lead—♠2

South's three diamond bid said, "Partner, if you are interested in a slam I have the ace of diamonds." North's jump to four spades said, "I have slight slam interest with very good spades." South's four no-trump call was Blackwood. He might have gone directly to the slam but there was some slight chance that North would only hold one ace.

Played by South there was no defence against the spade slam. South drew trumps and led a heart from dummy. If East ducked, South would have to lose a diamond eventually but wouldn't lose a heart. Actually East went up with the heart ace. This allowed South to discard two of dummy's diamonds on the king and queen of hearts.

If North played the spade slam and East happened to lead a diamond, North would have to take the finesse and lose his contract.

If South played at six no-trump, correct defence would leave him no play to make it.

Pearkes To Lead Parade

Mayor Hugh Stephen has called on the citizens of Greater Victoria to give Lieutenant - Governor George Pearkes a triumphal farewell to public life on Monday.

In a special press release this morning the mayor noted that the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes would be riding in the lead car in the Victoria Day Parade.

"This will probably be the last occasion at which our whole community is given the opportunity, before their retirement, of expressing to Mr. and Mrs. Pearkes the profound admiration and affectionate esteem in which they are held by all of us."

Mayor Stephen called on all citizens who possibly could to crowd the parade route and use a special cheer "for these two wonderful people . . . which they have earned through so many years of dedicated service to their country, to this province and, in particular, to Victoria itself."

15th Brigade Planning 52nd Reunion

Survivors of the 15th Brigade, Canadian Field Artillery, will hold their 52nd annual reunion in the Ingraham Hotel Saturday, May 25, at 6:30 p.m.

The 62nd Battery and the 15th Brigade, Ammunition Column, with a strength of 420 officers, left Victoria May 28, 1916, aboard the troopship Princess Charlotte.

In Petawawa, Ont., they joined with three other batteries — the 59th from Winnipeg, the 60th from Regina and the 61st from Lethbridge — to form the 15th Brigade.

Since their last reunion, brigade ranks have been heavily thinned and some members are in poor health.

"However, we expect some 50 veterans will answer the bugle call and be able to down their customary rum issue," says Archie Wills, president of the Brigade.

"Visitors from California, Seattle, Vancouver and up-Island points will join with local vets in recounting their experiences in some of the major battles of the First World War."

Mr. Wills will be in the chair and speakers will include Dr. William Newton, Wilbur Dawson of White Rock, and Judge J. B. Clearihue.

. . . BISHOP

the old college alive while several others asked for an extension of time to raise the cash to keep the school open, Bishop de Roo insisted that the main issue now facing Catholics was not a matter of saving the college.

"The problem is not: could we raise enough money to save St. Louis. The problem is: are we going to rally fast enough to save the rest of the schools.

'May Lose Both'

"I am not prepared to risk a new building (for the College) if we may lost both.

"It is not a question of a second chance. It is a matter of sheer impossibility. I cannot jeoparize the diocese for one institution, however precious that institution might be."

His answers failed to convince many members of the audience that all had been done that could have been done and at least one priest, Father M. J. McNamara, continued to challenge the closure decision.

Father McNamara, one of the leading organizers in the fund drive that failed, said that with money already collected or pledged, plus established assets, tatalled $440,000 towards the $670,000 required.

"Who ever had so much money to go out and build?" he asked. "If the fund drive failed it failed because it did not have the full support of the clergy or the laity. At no time did the people show the interest they are showing now.

Indifference

"I think that a mistaken ecumenism has bogged down to a treacly indifference.

"But I still don't understand why it (the College building program) was turned down."

Bishop De Roo repeated his earlier statement that the project was rejected on the advice of financial experts who warned that the diocese could be in danger if it went further into debt.

The Bishop added that even if the funds were raised to keep the physical school alive, much more money would be required to bring teacher salaries into line.

"We cannot continue to ask (The Christian Brothers of Ireland) them to work under the starvation conditions they are working under now," he said. "The way we treat our teachers is a major scandal in social justice so far as the Catholic church is concerned."

Press Not To Blame

Bishop De Roo staunchly refused to blame the local press for the dramatic presentation of the facts surrounding the St. Louis closure.

"The press in this city has been extremely kind to our church," he said. "A Bishop must learn to hear many unpleasant things as well as many pleasant things. And I would like to express by gratitude to the people who have had the courage to stand up and be outspoken when they thought something was wrong."

The Bishop said he hoped his congregation would continue to be outspoken when they felt he made bad decisions. "I am grateful, and I hope I always shall be grateful, to the people with enough feeling and sincerity to walk up to me and tell me they think I am wrong."

'Did Not Hide'

Bishop De Roo finished his three hour cross-examination at 12:14 a.m.

The principal of St. Louis, Brother Malloy, followed him to the microphone.

"A few days ago a photograph of the Bishop appeared (in the Times) with the caption 'to face accusers.'

"That phrase is of scriptural origin. The answer to that statement in the same context was 'behold the man'.

"He (the Bishop) did not hide from you. His decision was a hard one, one that I personally do not like but one I accept as a decision that had to be made.

"I ask you not to use the name of the College or the Brothers who taught here against the diocese or the Bishop. There should be no rift in the church because a decision has gone against us."

GIRL DROPPED TWO FLOORS IN RESCUE

VANCOUVER (CP)—Wayne Mitchell, 38, saved his daughter, Sharon, 4, from their blazing home Thursday, then dropped two floors to safety only minutes before the house was engulfed in flames.

Mr. Mitchell was taken to a hospital for treatment to back burns and released.

He and his wife, Linda, and three children were watching television downstairs, while Sharon slept in an upstairs bedroom.

The rest of the family fled as Mr. Mitchell dropped Sharon from a window and then jumped out himself.

Socred Chiefs Collide Head-On

By JOHN MORA

Social Credit's national president and Victoria president have collided head-on in disagreement over whether there will be a candidate named here to oppose Liberal and Conservative candidates.

Victor Smith, president of the Victoria Federal Social Credit Riding Association, this morning denied that his executive has or will call a second nomination meeting next week.

His statement contradicted national president Herbert Bruch who said Thrusday night in Nanaimo there will be 23 socred candidates contesting all B.C. seats in the June 25 election.

Mr. Bruch said a Victoria meeting earlier this week which accepted the riding executive's decision not to nominate a candidate, for undisclosed reasons, has been rescinded and another nomination meeting has been set for next week.

SECOND DECISION

Mr. Bruch was speaking at a Social Credit nomination meeting in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands where a second decision against contesting the election was expected but contractor Lorne Lee was named by acclamation in a surprise move.

Several members of the Victoria executive contacted this morning said they were unaware of a second nomination meeting being scheduled here and Mr. Smith denied one would be held

MEETING TUESDAY

Esquimalt-Saanich Social Credit Association has decided it will nominate a candidate at a meeting set for 8 p.m. Tuesday in Mount View Secondary School, secretary Ross Regan announced.

The meeting had been set for last week but was postponed.

All four local MLAs will be on the platform, Mr. Ross said. They are Works Minister Chant, Trade and Industry Minister Skillings, Mr. Bruch and John Tisdalle.

Mr. Bruch has discounted rumors that he will stand for the nomination in a switch to federal politics.

"It doesn' look probable," he told the Times when asked if he would seek a nomination in the June 25 election.

The Flying Banana Carries Tory Hopes

QUEBEC CITY — What comes from Winnipeg, is red, yellow and silver, and bears high hopes and aspirations?

It's the chartered airplane in which Bob Stanfield will cover Canada for the next six weeks in pursuit of the prime ministry.

The DC-7, four-engined prop plane was put into service for the first time this week when Stanfield flew to the Maritimes.

The aircraft is chartered from a Winnipeg company (Fyi Tansiar) and is specially set-up for electioneering.

LOFTY THINKERS

Charter flights have numbers, but there are some among the Tories who feel a name would be much better — the plane has a painted party sign by the door.

Some of the lofty thinkers, borrowing a bit from the U.S., think it should be Unity One — even though there is only one.

Others prefer the Bluenose.

And some of the irreverent go for the Flying Banana, in deference to Bob's favorite fruit.

So far, there's no decision.

The aircraft has a cabin in the fore-section complete with sleeping accommodation for the party leader — and he's going to spend a lot of time in the air in the next 40 days — and working space for his personal secretary.

Then comes a cabin with about 40-odd seats for newspapermen accompanying Stanfield — and the cost per seat for the campaign is approximately $1,000.

TFB — The Flying Banana — also will trundle party officials around on the campaign trail.

And in the rear section is a working area for staff, complete with desk set-ups and duplicating machine.

The main cabin is laid out for first-class travel, and the Tories had a look at the machines used in the U.S. presidential electioneering in planning theirs.

Stanfield's campaigning does not officially start until next Tuesday in Winnipeg — followed by a trip through all the western provinces — but by the pace he has set since Saturday in his Maritime swing, there's no difference between unofficial and official campaigning.

Libraries Closed

The Greater Victoria Public Library (the main building, Town and Country branch and Brentwood Station) will be closed on Monday for the Victoria Day holiday.

Blood Donor Clinic To Be Held Tuesday

There will be a blood donor clinic Tuesday from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m., at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort St.

WINE MAY POSSESS MEDICINAL QUALITIES

VANCOUVER (CP)—Wine may be of more use medically than is generally recognized, a conference of eye, ear, nose and throat specialists was told Wednesday.

Dr. Kenneth K. Cambon, of Vancouver, said wine has medicinal use for certain ear and throat afflictions. He spoke at a scientific session of the Pacific Coast Oto-ophthalmological wine would prevent heart disease, kill earache, sooth a wound and even cure a fear of heights.

In the Middle Ages, he said, physicians were convinced Society.

He lamented that modern physicians know little about the use of wine in medicine, though there was evidence it contains some unknown anti-bacterial agents.

WORKLOAD, LIBRARY LACK

Education Probe Hears Same Tune

A commission organized by B.C. teachers to probe the education system finds itself repeatedly hearing the same tunes.

- There is a crying lack of adequate library facilities in the province's schools.
- There is an intolerable workload on teachers.

The B.C. Teachers' Federation commission on education was in Victoria Wednesday to accept briefs and hear verbal presentations from local groups on school issues.

"We've been amazed at the number of common themes coming out," said commission secretary William Allester.

"And this is certainly one of them," he added of the libraries issue.

ISSUES 'CLEAR'

Donald MacKenzie, chairman of the hearing, said the issue is clear four months before his report is due: better school libraries are vital.

Four of the local briefs called for modern library resource centres in the schools.

The teachers' province-wide study, a sort of mini-royal commission, has already received 147 briefs plus verbal submissions and briefs are still rolling in at the rate of about 10 a week.

ASK CO-ORDINATOR

Mr. MacKenzie, former assistant superintendent of schools in Vancouver, and his fellow commissioners, Mrs. Lorill Hanney and James Carter, have already covered most parts of the province. Mr. Carter was absent Wednesday.

In local presentations, the Institute of Victoria Librarians called for a provincial coordinator of school libraries.

The commission was very aware of the need for better school libraries, said Mr. MacKenzie.

"There are not too many schools in the province that we have seen to date that are well enough stocked and staffed to meet requirements."

A major problem was lack of qualified librarians, he said.

RESOURCE CENTRE

University teacher training should include an appreciation of library resources, said the library sub-association of the Greater Victoria Teachers Association.

The local intermediate teachers group said it was imperative elementary schools be built with provision for a library resource centre.

"... Many of the current innovations are doomed to failure or at the most, to token success, because of two basic conditions which exist at the intermediate level—lack of essential resources and intolerable teacher workload."

Every elementary school should have at least one specialist in music to work or assist from kindergarten up, said the B.C. Music Educators' Association.

HOME GARDEN

A New Color Each Day

By HILDA BEASTALL

Summer blooming bulbs and corms add gay notes of color to the garden and are especially effective when planted to the front of shrubs.

Hilda

As part of a garden scheme where no bedding plants are used, these bulbs and corms produce flowers guaranteed to hold attention.

Purchased and planted in early May when they were first noted in the stores, leaves of Galtonia candicans will be pushing their way up through the soil now.

This is a strongly growing bulb, perfectly hardy if covered with four to five inches of soil, and may safely be left in the garden indefinitely for it will increase in numbers over the years.

Broad grey green leaves remain near ground level, but a straight stout stem rises to about four feet to bear in late July and early August an elongated spike of hanging white bells resembling huge snowdrops.

The plant is sometimes given the name of Summer Hyacinth from its former name of Hiacinthus candicans.

If planted where filtered light is available instead of constant strong sunlight, galtonia will remain in bloom for several weeks.

A summer plant for the sunniest spot at the edge of shrub border is Tigridia pavonia, from hot Mexican sunshine and showing in the intense scarlet, gold and pink of the different varieties.

The corms of this plant are not winter hardy so must be lifted every fall before hard frost.

Huge three petalled blooms like the flat parts of an iris spread in the sunshine from sunrise until four p.m. when they roll up.

Next day new blooms appear, so that from a planting of a dozen corms of tigridia, many dozens of these showy blossoms can be enjoyed over the summer weeks.

It becomes compelling to visit the plants each early morning before breakfast to see what gorgeous colors are ours for the day.

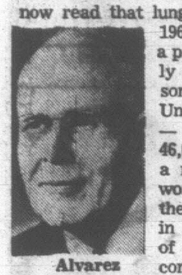
Lung Cancer Deaths Show Big Increase

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

In the last report from the American Cancer Cociety I now read that lung cancer in 1968 will kill approximately 55,000 persons in the United States — some 46,000 men and 9,000 women; and the increase in the cases of men is continuing at an alarming rate. It is now the leading cause of cancer deaths in men (not women). The rate of cancer deaths from lung disease is now more than 15 times what is was 35 years ago.



Alvarez

What is unfortunate is that it is so very hard to diagnose lung cancer in time so that the patient can be operated on and cured. I read that today in only some 5 per cent of all cases is the person being saved. Just think; there are now some 150 deaths a day just from lung cancer, and nearly all could be avoided if the men cared to avoid them. Perhaps someday some of our people will decide that they don't want to die of cancer of the lung.

* * *

If I were a smoker, I think I would quit after glancing at a graph published by the U.S. Cancer Society. There it will be seen that the incidence of cancer of the stomach has gone down remarkably since 1930. I imagine this is due to the fact that today when a man starts having symptoms suggestive of an ulcer his doctor promptly has him X-rayed to see whether the ulcer is in his stomach or in the duodenum just outside of the stomach. If it is in the duodenum, it will practically never produce cancer; but if it is in the stomach, there is a good possibility that it is already a cancer, or it will later become one. If then a surgeon operates, the patient's life can often be saved.

The incidence of cancer of the colon, the rectum and the prostate gland has remained about the same in the last 25 years; but the percentage of deaths from cancer of the lung has risen spectacularly in the years from 1930, when the deaths were around 3 per 100,000 of the male population. In 1965, the incidence was around 39 per 100,000.

* * *

The report says that the leading cause of cancer death in women is cancer of the breast. It is estimated that there will be 65,000 new cases in 1968, and probably 28,000 deaths. Nearly all of these deaths will be due to the fact that thousands of women, after finding a nodule in a breast, wait eight or nine months before going to a surgeon.

When I ask such a woman why she waited, she says, "I was scared of what the doctor might say." But this is so illogical because if the doctor were to say it wasn't cancer, then the poor woman for months would have worried greatly to no purpose, and if he were to say it was cancer and it had spread into her armpit or into her lungs, there wouldn't be much chance of her getting well with any operation.

It is interesting that in women the rate of death from cancer of the uterus has gone down markedly, due probably to the now frequent use by doctors of the Pap test. With this test a little mucus is taken from the neck of the womb; it is stained and studied under a microscope, and if certain types of cancer-like cells are seen, treatment will quickly be started. Also in women the incidence of cancer of the stomach has gone down decidely.

There are four species of true fir in Canada. These include balsam, alpine, amabilis and grand fir.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20 volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Lou Liebovich, age 16, of Rockford, Illinois, for his question:

Have the series of actinide elements any uses?

Most of these radioactive elements are man-made and the cost of producing them in pinch-sized samples is enormous.

This series of chemical elements has a column of its own on the Periodic Table. The parent of the actinide family is actinium and the other 14 elements in the group closely resemble it. Their atomic numbers range from actinium 89 to lawrencium 103. The actinides are big, unstable atoms and all of them are radioactive. They share the same types of chemical behavior because their electron patterns are so similar. Each actinide has seven electron shells with two electrons in the seventh shell and either eight, nine or 10 in the sixth shell.

Their outstanding feature is radioactivity. Their atoms are breaking apart at fixed rates into smaller and still smaller atoms. Each miniature atomic fission shoots a particle from the nucleus, releasing a quota of dynamic nuclear energy. All the actinides emit piercing rays of alpha, gamma and beta particles and they must be handled with care. But energy of any sort is power and man can use his brains to tame it and use it to suit himself. The actinide series contains the most dynamic nuclear fuels so far discovered.

Since a radioactive substance is decaying into something else, its useful life span is limited. This span is measured by the half-life unit. After each half life period, half of the radioactive substance has decayed. Half of the rest decays in the next half life. The actinides have half lives ranging from a few moments to 4½ billion years.

Detects Flaws

This staggering half life belongs to uranium, the grandfather element of the Atomic Age. Fuels refined from uranium ores yield millions of times more energy than coal and oil. Uranium and thorium are the only actinides found in usable quantities in nature. Uranium makes up less than 1-1,000 of a per cent of the earth's crust and thorium is only a little more abundant. Nuclear physicists can transmute thorium into a type of uranium for use in atomic power plants. They also can make it yield mesothorium that glows in the dark. Mesothorium now replaces costly radium on clock dials and in luminous paints.

The piercing rays of radioactive substances can detect flaws in metals and perform a wide range of otherwise impossible chores in industry. All but two of the actinides, however, are among the rarest elements known. Actinium is the earth's second rarest element. Protractinium is the third rarest, though nuclear physicists can make it at a cost of about $15,000 a gram. All the actinides teem with useful energy.

Even the rarest actinides are kept busy behind the scenes in the world of research. The energy and flying particles from tiny samples can cause changes in atomic structures and even transmute one metal into another. This research advances the science of physics. A tiny trace of einsteinium led to the discovery of lawrencium, the latest actinide. At present, these rare actinides are used for research—but they are full of promises for astonishing uses in the future.

Andy sends a 14" World Book Globe to Jo Ann Eddy, age 12, of Indianapolis, Iniana, for her question:

What exactly is the frigate bird?

A frigate was a type of ship that went to sea powered with sails and oars. It voyaged far and wide. Later types of frigate were armed with guns and used in convoys of warfaring ships. The graceful frigate bird is named for the frigate ship but the reason for this is uncertain. Perhaps it was met first by frigate crews sailing in tropical seas. The huge, dark-plumaged bird with its long swallow-tail and ten foot wingspread certainly is impressive enough to earn a name. The ever-hungry fellow may have learned to follow frigates and other sailing ships for scraps of food.

The frigate bird happens to be a belligerent character and a born looter. He lives on a diet of fish and he prefers to steal his food from hard-working sea birds such as terns and gannets and gulls. His robbing raids are successful because of his superior flying power and aerial acrobatics. He quietly watches for his chance and swoops down to grab a fish right from a gull's beak. When this fails, he often grabs the gull by the tail and shakes him until he drops his fish. Thereupon the faster frigate bird grabs the catch and flies gracefully away to dine at his leisure.

STUDENTS of Gordon Head Junior High School raised money by selling hotdogs and slaves and presented cheque for $575 to G. R. Pearkes Clinic at ceremony in school Wednesday. Shown giving cheque to campaign chairman Rear Admiral Michael Stirling (retired) are Daphne McFarland, 15, students' council president, and Doug Harris, 16, council treasurer. Students organized series of fund-raising events all year, including a penny drive and sock hop. Money will go towards piece of therapeutic equipment for clinic, for handicapped children.

'REBELLIOUS YOUTHS USED AS GUINEA PIGS'

BOSTON (AP)—A Montreal psychiatrist says adults are subconsciously using rebellious youths as guinea pigs to work out answers to their own confusion about changing values and morality.

"Adults aren't sure about these new ideas and are using the enthusiasm and idealism of these kids to test possible solutions to their quest for a new, more viable society," Dr. John R. Unwin said.

An assitant professor of psychiatry at McGill University and author of papers on the problems of youth, Unwin made his comments Thursday at the annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Association.

Election Fever at High Pitch As Alberta Candidates Named

Special to the Times

CALGARY — Confidence is when Liberals book the Calgary Stampede grandstand, capacity 20,000, for a Trudeau rally.

That has been done, even though the prime minister has not even agreed to hold a rally in Calgary.

Local organizers are taking no chances, and, if the grandstand appears to be too large as the campaign develops, they have also booked the Stampede Corral which holds only 10,000.

Optimism abounds in both the Alberta Liberal and Conservative camps. The Liberals appear to have a slight edge in outward numbers and enthusiasm. They have nowhere to go but up, winning not one of 17 seats in the last general election.

But now Edmonton headquarters reports an average of 400 memberships sold a day. "The crowds are amazing and exciting," says organizer Gerry Sinclair.

Tories As Keen

The Tories are just as keen. Total of 15,000 memberships have been bought since the election call and Tories are confident of selling at least 7.000 more. An advertising campaign is bringing "very encouraging response," says organizer E. M. (Ted) Mills.

This election looks like a straight fight between Liberals and Conservatives. There is almost no Social Credit activity and they have nominated in only four of the 19 constituencies with little hope of winning any. The NDP has 11 candidates but even less hope than Social Credit.

Crowd response and the number of candidates seeking nomination are the two big factors behind the Liberals' new enthusiasm. After all, if you can book Edmonton Gardens for a mere nominating convention, why not the stampede grandstand for the prime minister?

More than 3,000 turned out at Edmonton Gardens Thursday night when defiant former mayor William Hawrelak lost a bid for a political comeback. Liberal party brass had made it clear they did not want Mr. Hawrelak.

When he persisted, Senator Earl Hastings, campaign chairman, issued a statement, warning that "the Liberal party might withhold support for Mr. Hawrelak as a candidate." Divisions within the party were predicted. The former mayor was found guilty of gross misconduct in office by a judicial inquiry in 1959.

Mr. Hawelak led a field of five candidates in the first ballot but slipped behind on the second. The winner, businessman Donald Grey, had 812 votes to Mr. Hawrelak's 720.

Faces Veteran

Earlier in the week 1,700 turned out in Edmonton Strathcona where the nomination went to Dr. Hu Harries, widely respected dean of commerce at the University of Alberta. He will face Tory veteran Terry Nugent who came within 28 votes of losing the Conservative nomination. Dr. Harries is one of the Liberals' most promising candidates. A Social Credit candidate is in the riding and will likely take some right wing support away from Mr. Nugent.

Noel Sharp, a bassano teacher and son of External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, rode the new 18,000 square-mile Crowfoot riding of southeastern Alberta. Nearly 500 persons attended and the convention was described locally as the liveliest and biggest ever staged in the area.

The Tories are holding their own in the numbers game, particularly in rural areas.

For instance, in Killam, a town of 600, a crowd of 1,100 went through five ballots to nominate rancher Clifford Downey in Battle River constituency.

And 12,00 delegates — some travelling up to 600 miles by bus — gathered in Westlock to nominate Jack Bigg for the new Pembina riding. He was MP for Athabasca in the last house.

It was 5:15 a.m. Thursday when Don Mazankowski won the Conservative nomination for Vegreville after a marathon meeting attended by 3 000 persons. The meeting began at 8 Wednesday. The Vegreville car dealer beat off three challengers for the right to succeed retiring Frank Fane.

The Tories of Edmonton Centre got more excitement than they bargained for — a missing ballot box and a bomb scare. The box disappeared during balloting and has not been found.

Although both candidates agreed to accept the verdict with the one box missing winner Tom Chambers pulled out the following day because of "voting irregularities." Outsiders are suspected.

Party officials are considering a new convention and which Mr. Chambers has agreed to contest. Apart from this uncertainty by week's end both Conservatives and Liberals will have fielded a full slate. Whatever the campaign brings it won't be dull.

Lottery Swamped

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's city hall was swamped with "more than 1,000,000 entries" by the Wednesday midnight deadline for the first draw in Mayor Jean Drapeau's controversial voluntary tax scheme, officials said Thursday.

Expect Tax Refunds By May 31—Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Most Canadians getting income tax refunds will have them by May 31, a revenue department spokesman said Thursday.

A total of 4,243.600 returns already have been dealt with; 3,686,769 still are to be handled.

Processing now is well ahead of last year following a relatively slow start resulting from administrative problems after a new computer system was set up.

At this time last year, 4,100,500 returns had been processed. The deadline for filing returns was April 30 but some are still coming in, the spokesman said.

Club Shown Communications Net

A vivid verbal and pictorial preview of the world of satellite communications was outlined to Victoria Rotary Club Thursday.

G. F. MacFarlane, B.C. Telephone Company vice-president in charge of operations, was speaking to about 150 club members at a luncheon meeting in the Empress Hotel.

"We are standing on the edge of the most incredible leap that mankind has ever contemplated," he said.

The prepared speech was accompanied by colored slides and a film clip showing various stages in the development of telecommunications satellites.

"Today we are considerably skilled in moving the human organism around from place to place — from experience to experience," he said.

"Now in this world of change the possibility for a reversal of this trend is in sight. Instead of finding ways to move the human organism from A to B, from experience to experience, there is the interesting ability in our technology to move the experience to the human nervous system," he said.

"Our world is undergoing cataclysmic changes — right now."

Mr. MacFarlane mentioned an Ottawa white paper regarding a domestic satellite communications system to be established through co-operation between government and private business.

He said members of the Trans Canada Telephone System and the telecommunications branches of the two major railways had made a proposal to Ottawa as to the operation of such a project.

The cost of the system was estimated at $80 million for three satellites and 54 earth stations.

He said those in the telephone business were convinced their proposal for the development of an integrated system points in the right direction for Canada.

Diesel Car Rams CPR Work Train

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — A passenger and a railway employee were in fair condition in Metropolitan Hospital today after a Canadian Pacific Railways passenger car rammed a stationary work train at Walkerville Junction, Windsor, Thursday.

Six other passengers were treated for cuts and bruises.

CPR's London division superintendent, George Powell, said the accident happened when the self-contained rail diesel passenger car collided with a work train of 19 cars.

Police Persuaded Youth To Tell About Beating

VANCOUVER (CP) — James Cannan, 20, who has testified he was beaten, whipped and subjected to indecent acts, said Thursday he did not report to police what happened.

Police came to him three days after he was freed by his abductors, Cannan said at a preliminary hearing into charges of kidnapping and indecent assault against 10 men.

He testified that police told him they were anxious to break up a group known as the Satan's Angels motorcycle gang and showed him pictures and various records. He subsequently decided to make a statement to police.

Under cross-examination Thursday he testified he had been in Vancouver three months and although he followed the hippies in many of his interests, he had $400 he had saved from a previous job.

He said he asked a man who offered him a job as a butler how much it paid, but that the man did not look like a prospective employer and "I also realized he was a dangerous person and I thought it better to talk to him."

Earlier in the hearing, Denis Lorne Gaba, testifying under protection of the Canada Evidenct Act, said he and a group were in the cafe and offered Canna the job as butler.

Gaba, a Crown witness, was charged along with the others but the charges were subsequently stayed.

Detroit Goes Six Months Without Papers

By A. F. MAHAN

DETROIT AP) — The Detroit newspaper strike has lasted six months as of Thursday with neither unions nor publishers showing signs of changing their positions.

The American Newspaper Publishers Association lists a 230-day shutdown of the Terre Haute (Ind.) Star and Tribune in 1964-65 as the longest ever. But these newspapers combined have less than a 10th the circulation of either The News or The Free Press.

Within the last week, negotiations between the publishers and two of the four striking unions have broken off. No talks are scheduled with the other two unions on strike.

The most optimistic predictions are that the more than 1,000,000 Detroit residents who have been without their regular papers since mid-November won't get them back for another two weeks. Some sources predict neither paper will resume publication in the next two months.

The 13 unions still without contracts—nine are not on strike—have at last a unofficial understanding that none will go back until all do.

The strike has touched the lives of the citizens of Detroit as well as those of the strikers and the publishers.

The regular paycheque for the most of the 4,300 persons employed by the papers stopped when the strike started.

Mayor Jerome P. Cavanagh feels that the absence of the two dailies has done much to allow rumors and fears of racial unrest to go uncontrolled in the wake of last July's racial riot. To calm fears, the city and the county have set up rumor control centres which citizens can call to check what they've heard.

The papers will find when they resume publication that many customers have strayed and that their losses have exceeded their $500,000 insurance —$10,000 a day for 50 days.

CIRCULATION FELL

During a 134-day strike by pressmen in 1964, for example, News circulation fell to 683,834 in 1965 from 707,418 daily when the strike began while The Free Press dropped to 509,410 from 521,257.

The strike that started it all erupted at midnight Nov. 15 when the Teamsters union went on strike at The News in support of new contract demands.

Two days later The Free Press shut down voluntarily. The newspapers operate under an agreement that a strike against one is a strike against both.

Twice Teamsters at The News voted down settlements negotiated by their representatives. Final agreement didn't come until March 15.

The strike then was 121 days old, the contracts of the 13 other unions with which the newspapers deal had expired and four of them had proclaimed themselves officially on strike and started picketing.

The publishers settled with the Teamsters on a three-year contract, effective at the resumption of publication, and carrying pay increases of $11 weekly the first year, $10 the second, and $9 the third.

Through the first week of May the newspapers offered this same $30 three-year package to at least four of the remaining 13 unions. Spokesmen for most of these and the others indicated this was acceptable, if agreements can be reached on contract termination date and overtime.

Some major advertisers are known to have informed publishers they are unhappy with November and December contract expiration dates because of the chance that strikes again will snuff out their advertising campaigns for Thanksgiving and Christmas business.

The unions prefer these months so publishers will have big advertising losses.

Publishers insist the new contracts be for three years from the date publication is resumed. Unions insist they cover the three years from the old expiration dates of Nov. 15 and Dec. 1, 1967.

KOREA SITUATION GRIM COMMISSION TOLD

PANMUNJOM (AP) — The United Nations command warned North Korea today that miscalculation of the situation in Korea may bring about serious consequences to both sides.

Maj.-Gen. Gilbert H. Woodward, of the United States Army, told the 270th meeting of the Joint Military Armistice Commission that there now "exists a grim possibility of miscalculation".

He made the statement after enumerating a series of border incidents that he said were initiated by North Korea

Kosygin In Prague For Talks

PRAGUE (UPI)—Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin arrived unexpectedly tonight by plane for talks with leaders of the reformist Czech regime "on questions interesting to both sides."

Kosygin was the latest in a series of Kremlin visitors to Prague where Communist Party chairman Alexander Dubcek was leading his country on an independent Communist path.

Soviet Defence Minister Andrei A. Grechko arrived today to see whether Czechoslovakia had any plans for pulling out of the Warsaw Pact alliance of Soviet bloc ntions.

Grechko said merely that he wanted to "get acquainted with the new leadership," according to official Czech sources.

STUDENT UNREST

Delaware College Closed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Delaware State College was closed today after about 200 students Thursday seized control of the administration building—prompting Governor Charles L. Terry to order National Guard units onto the campus.

A committee of trustees, faculty and students was formed to hear grievances from the predominantly Negro student body of 900 who demanded the resignation of college President Dr. Luna I. Mishoe.

The latest, and most serious, of a series of protests at the state college in Dover prompted about 100 students at the university of Delaware in Newark to take over the student centre in a sympathy demonstration.

The Delaware student unrest was only a part of the continuing fever of student ferment which has gripped campuses across the U.S.

STUDENTS ARRESTED

Marquette University in Milwaukee was threatened with the resignations of three theologians if the 13,000-student Roman Catholic University did not meet student demands to hire a Negro administrator. Police arrested seven students of a total of about 100 who staged a sit-in at the student union building.

Dr. Henry King Stanford, president of the University of Miami, promised scholarships for Negroes and new courses on Negro history in an effort to cool distrurbances there. An activist group at the 16,159-student university staged a sit-in in Stanford's office Tuesday to back their demands.

Students at Florida State University in Tallahassee called a one-week halt to their sit-in to protest alleged censorship. The student action resulted in the resignation of President John Champion Tuesday. The board of regents rejcted his resignation Thursday and ordered an administration investigation of the protest.

New Mexico State University agreed to meet with members of the campus civil rights action committee to discuss a list of demands and proposals including the hiring of six Negro professors.

COMPROMISE SOLUTION

Pact to Halt Bombing Expected at Paris Talks

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

PARIS (AP) — Informed French and U.S. diplomats expect a compromise deal between the United States and North Vietnam to end the bombing of the North in spite of the apparet stalemate in the Paris peace talks which resume Saturday.

The North Vietnamese appear at present to be trying to rally world opinion against the United States to pressure it into ending military action against North Vietam without any compensating move by the Communists.

The appeal for support has been sounded this week by Ambassador Xuan Thuy in Paris and by Hanoi Radio.

To counter this manoeuvre U.S. spokesman cite what they consider the unacceptably high military price the United States would have to pay to end the bombing under present conditions. They are driving for restoration of a buffer zone to cut off North Vietnamese troop movements across the North-South border.

Thousands of truck loads of men and supplies a month could pour into South Vietnam without interruption, they say, if attacks were stopped without North Vietnamese de-escalation.

Reconnaissance flights over the North would be stopped, cutting off vital information. Artillery shelling and aerial bombing of the southern border area of the North would be halted while North Vietnamese troops massed there could move South at any time.

U.S. Ambassador W. Averell Harriman in an interview Thursday linked restoring a buffer zone between North and South with ending the rest of the bombing and "all other acts of war" against the North.

Harriman was asked in an ABC-television interview whether he was encouraged by North Vietnams willingness so far to talk here about subjects other than ending the bombing of the North.

He said they had not talked about anything in such a way that "we can get at the subject and agree to it" but had thrown out ideas "in a propaganda way."

"They have criticized our violation of the demilitarized zone" Harriman continued, "when the facts are they are the ones that violated first."

"It is that sort of thing that they are doing, and they have got to indicate specifically they are ready to re-establish the zone before we can negotiate

BABY'S SURVIVAL AT STAKE

Mothers Answer Appeal for Milk

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — Messages have been pouring in from women across North America offering breast milk to a Spokane baby whose life depends on it. "It's all just so wonderful," said 20-year-old Betty Madson, whose three-month-old son Richard can survive only on human milk.

Mrs. Madson, unable to provide the milk, and her husband Lawrence Madson Jr., 21, issued the appeal for breast milk earlier this week. An adequate temporary supply now appears available.

"You never think people like this are around until something like this happens to you," Mrs. Madson said.

Richard, who weighs eight pounds nine ounces has, since shortly after birth, rejected all nourishment but human milk. Nothing else will work, said Mrs. Madson.

Richard has been in hospital here and in Seattle for most of his young life, but now is at home. Mrs. Madson said Richard consumes 36 ounces daily and likely will continue to improve as long as the milk supply lasts.

Student Unity Bid Rebuffed

PARIS (UPI) — Forty thousand Communist - led workers today struck and seized the huge state-owned Renault automobile factory in the Paris suburbs.

But they rejected efforts by rebellious Paris students to link their own revolution with that of the workers.

The students had wanted to move their revolt of the universities into a joint effort with workers in the factories and they appeared stunned by the union's cautious attitude.

The communist-led General Labor Confederation appeared fearful that student entry into the sprawling plant would result in police retaliation.

The government called up thousands of police today and 10,000 gendarme reservists — French equivalent of the national guard.

SIX PLANTS

So far striking workers have occupied the Renault plant, Sud-Aviation aircraft plants and half a dozen other factories throughout the country, but the strikes have been peaceful.

The CGT decision to rebuff the students emphasized the Communist party's careful handling of the great student and labor crisis shaking France.

It was the first break of solidarity between students and workers since student protest rallies against obsolete teaching methods served as the fuse for a massive explosion of pentup anti-government discontent.

The massive Renault plant straddling the Seine River in suburban Billancourt is considered the barometer for labor peace. A strike at the nationalized works usually spreads rapidly into other industrial sectors.

Other militant workers struck two factories in Lyon, struck Paris newspapers and virtually closed the nation's largest airport in Paris in sympathy with agitating students who have struck and occupied universities throughout France.

The students, elated by successful seizures of the Sorbonne University and the national Odeon Theatre in Paris, organized a sympathy parade to the Renault factory to join with the striking workers. It was to be the first formal link-up of the revolting students with the labor force of France.

DEFY WARNING

Students and workers defied a grave warning by Premier George Pompidou Thursday night that the agitators aimed at "destroying the nation" and that the government would crush any attempt to spread "anarchy" in France.

Pompidou notified President Charles de Gaulle, on an official visit to Romania, of the worsening situation that began with student unrest over archaic conditions at the University of Paris and snowballed into a torrent of discontent against the 10-year-old de Gaulle regime and the "establishment" in general.

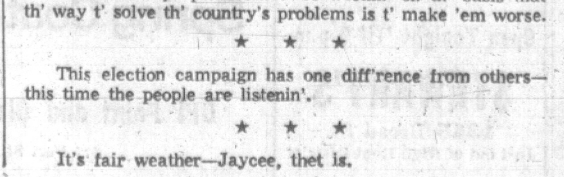
Underlining the seriousness of the crisis, Pompidou called an emergency meeting at his Matignon Palace office with Defence Minister Pierre Messmer, Interior Minister Christian Fouchet and top commanders of the police and gendarmerie, France's national guard.

EXPLOIT UNREST

Labor unions attempted to exploit the unrest that erupted in the Sorbonne University with street demonstrations for educational reforms.

In Lyon, workers struck and occupied the Rhodiaceta synthetic textile factories, one of France's largest plants. More than 10,000 workers struck the Berleit truck factory.

Orly airfield in Paris was almost paralyzed with only a few airplanes taking off without guidance of the struck control tower.



Th' French people seem t' be workin' on th' basis that th' way t' solve th' country's problems is t' make 'em worse.

POOR POUR IN AT RAPID RATE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the Poor People's Campaign by the hundreds are pouring into the U.S. capital once again, setting the stage for a hectic weekend that promises to give campaign officials enormous housing headaches before Monday.

The caravans that the field staff of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference organized around the U.S. weeks ago are converging on Ressurection City, U.S.A., which at this stage of construction hasn't room for them all.

Officials estimate they have housing ready for 700 persons in the plywood and plastic shantytown.

Five hundred campaigners, mostly from Mississippi and Alabama, are living there now. The SCLC temporarily placed 340 more who arrived Thursday from Chicago in Washington churches.

Another 700 due to arrive today from a caravan that began in Boston will be housed in suburban Maryland churches, officials said.

They aren't yet sure where to send the 1,000 persons set to arrive Saturday from a midwestern caravan that was halted for two days in Pittsburgh to gain construction time.

And there is a group due in Sunday from the South.

Month-Long Drive On Reds Base Ends

PHY BAI (AP) — The month-long drive by U.S. and South Vietnamese troops through the A Shau Valley of South Vietnam officially ended today. North Vietnamese troops are believed moving back into the area, their biggest supply and staging base in South Vietnam.

Lt.-Gen. William L. Rosson, the U.S. commander of the big invasion into the North Vietnamese stronghold southwest of Hue, said his forces turned up a fourth of the Communist supplies stockpiled inside the 25-mile-long valley.

PM GOES MAINSTREETING

Meet-the-People Campaign By Trudeau Starts Saturday

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Prime Minister Trudeau starts out to "meet the people" in his election campaign Saturday with a flying visit to Toronto, and goes to Winnipeg next week.

The Liberal party has chartered a stretched-out DC-9 jet from Air Canada for between $40,000 and $45,000 for the duration of the five-week campaign.

The word from his campaign organizers to date is that the prime minister plans few if any mass rallies or major policy speeches. Instead he will hold press conferences, making important announcements at such conferences, visiting shopping centres and generally mingling with the people.

The stretched-jet has 78 economy seats and 16 first class. The first class section will contain desks and possibly a bed for the prime minister. Liberal aides and the press will occupy the economy section.

Informal Chats

Mr. Trudeau goes west to Winnipeg next Thursday. He plans to hold a major press conference in Winnipeg in the morning and "tour the area" in the afternoon. No key speeches are scheduled for Winnipeg but he will be "mainstreeting" as John Diefenbaker described his campaign technique of dropping into specific areas in a city to walk a city block shaking hands and chatting informally. Thursday night Mr. Trudeau takes his campaign jet back to Ottawa.

Today the prime minister opens the annual Ottawa tulip festival and makes a quick tour of the flower beds. The masses of tulips now present a colorful picture in the nation's capital.

In Montreal

This afternoon Mr. Trudeau was to fly by helicopter to Montreal to participate in the official opening of the 1968 version of man and his world with Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson and Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau.

The prime minister, after two hours on the grounds at Expo, flies back to Ottawa.

Sunday and Monday Mr. Trudeau will spend in Ottawa on official business and working on his campaign plans.

Tuesday of next week he'll fly to Wiarton in the DC-9 campaign plane and then tour southern Ontario by car and bus. That night he makes a "non-political" speech to the Kitchener chamber of commerce on the state of the economy. He jets back to Ottawa to spend the night.

Wednesday the prime minister will attend the cabinet and later his own nomination meeting in the Montreal riding of Mount Royal.

Press Charged

Thursday he flies to Winnipeg. A spokesman for the prime minister said today it was not definitely decided whether the prime minister would fly from Montreal direct to Winnipeg Wednesday night or return to Ottawa Wednesday night and fly out to Winnipeg Thursday morning. Friday next week, he will be back in Ottawa.

Following the policy established in the last general election the Liberals—like the Conservatives — are charging the press $1,000 to have a seat on the campaign plane throughout the election tour. Commercial rates will be charged for those taking flights on segments of the campaign tour.

Mr. Trudeau plans to spend at least one day each week back in Ottawa during the next five weeks, an aide said.

If you hope to mark your "X" on June 25, better stay in town and out of hospital. There's no absentee poll in a federal election. You turn up at the assigned polling station in your home riding, or you don't vote.

Just why Ottawa consistently refuses to make balloting provision for the registered voter who may be ill, or on an out-of-town job or even on vacation, I do not know.

But hundreds of registered civilian voters in this city — men and women who for one reason or another will be away from home on the day of decision — feel that it's high time the federal authority took a leaf from the provincial book and installed absentee stations. This complaint is by no means new, but with an election of extreme significance in the offing, it is becoming both loud and bitter.

Members of the armed forces overseas will, of course, get their chance to vote. Only hope of the absentee, however, is to cast his ballot on June 15 or 17 in the advance poles, at times and in locations to be advertised.

Note too that if your name has been left off the list of registered voters, Court of Revision will sit on June 6, 7 and 8 at 715 View Street.

To qualify, you must be 21 or over, a Canadian by birth or naturalization, or a British subject with at least one year's residence in Canada.

To Petty Officer A. G. Reid of 671 Galiano Crescent, an approving nod from this corner. PO Reid, disgusted at the sewage that blemishes Esquimalt's Fleming Beach, fired off a brisk letter to the provincial Pollution Control Board.

"Having spent 20 years in the RCN," he wrote in part, "I do not consider myself a prude or anything like that, nor a crackpot. I just think it is time we spent a little more money and effort to clean up the beautiful land in which we live.

"Anything you do or can do to aid in getting this mess cleaned up will have my backing 100 per cent."

Perhaps if enough citizens make their feelings known in this matter, our government will stiffen its spine and give teeth to its proposed ban on the dumping of untreated sewage into our waterways, whether by so-called long outfall or short.

Further, I suggest that you refuse to be awed by engineering surveys which allege that long outfall disposal of raw sewage will solve our worries.

What we give to the tides in these narrow waters has a disconcerting habit of returning to plague us. Better for Victoria to cure this problem once and for all—and to holler loud and long for help from both governments. That much at least, our skookum taxes should buy us!

★

By a process of slow erosion, the Lord's Day Alliance Act has lost a good deal of its bite. Today, most of the petty restrictions derived from Puritan dogma have fallen into the discard, even though they remain on the books.

But the Sabbath more or less closed to commercial enterprise is still with us, and I think we'd be unwise to open it wide until we have a pretty solid idea what the results will be.

The question that needs answering is, just what effect will an open Sunday have on the working lives of those whom it would involve? Would they be expected to assume an extra day on an overtime (or double-time) basis, or would employers re-tool their work week by arranging shifts and adding to their staffs?

There's also organized labor to be heard from on the subject. The union trend is toward a shorter work-week. Would labor take kindly to a reversal of that move?

I ask these questions because the answers are going to be most important to the working men and women who would be caught up in any large-scale junking of the Act.

Certain of its phases are rightfully unpopular. But here, if ever, is a situation into which we should look before we leap.

Queen Victoria Recalled As 'A Dear Old Lady'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

It was colorful as a bed of flowers.

More than 600 children formed a massed choir on the steps of the Legislative Buildings today for the historic IODE salute to Queen Victoria.

Their many-hued dresses and suits made a bold splash, offset by the flags, the uniforms and the soft green lawns surrounding Queen Victoria's statue.

Behind them, in their vivid green and gold uniforms, were boys and girls of the Lansdowne Secondary School Band.

Facing them, in soldierly array, were navy, army and air force cadets, Canadian Scottish Cadets, St. John Nursing Cadets, Girl Guides and Brownies.

In hot sunshine, hundreds of spectators—many of them pensioners and service veterans—joined in the observances.

PLATFORM

Making one of his last public appearances before retirement, Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes was guest of honor and faced the children from a blue, flower-decked platform.

"God bless you all," he told them. "You are growing up into an exciting world, but a difficult one, and my heart goes with you."

Because of the heat, Mr. Pearkes told the uniformed youngsters standing on the lawns to sit down if they wished. Only the Girl guides and Brownies did so. The cadets continued standing at ease.

Mr. Pearkes recalled that Queen Victoria was born on May 24, 1819, and came to the throne when she was 19.

"I remember her as a dear old lady who had the most wonderful grey eyes, which seemed to throw out kindness to everyone. She was very kind to a small boy who was simply terrified at being in the royal presence."

EDUCATE THEM

He explained that Britain had taken colonies which could not rule themselves.

"The Empire's mission was to educate them to the point where they could. Now we see innumerable countries receiving their independence and taking on self-government.

"The British Empire has been replaced by the British Commonwealth, and we are sending out many young Canadians and Australians to help these new developing countries.

"The great concept of the British Empire still lives, but in a different form."

Mr. and Mrs. Pearkes were received with loud cheers when they arrived at the ceremonies. And the governor was introduced by Mrs. V. H. Shepperd, regent of the Victoria municipal chapter, IODE, as "a gallant soldier and a great gentleman."

"We are thankful that Mr. and Mrs. Pearkes will continue to live with us in Victoria after they leave Goverment House."

The ceremonies began with a fanfare of trumpets, announcing the march of the IODE standard bearers in their dark suits and white hats to the tune of Land of Hope and Glory.

After the standard bearers, led by Mrs. Lance Muirhead, had formed up in front of the dias, all children joined in the singing of God Save the Queen, O Canada, Land of Our Birth and O God Our Help in Ages Past.

Prayers were offered by Rev. Dr. Samuel Parsons, past-president, Greater Victoria Council of Churches.

After the ceremony, flowers were placed at the base of Queen Victoria's statue on behalf of all Victoria school children.

The youngsters then joined in a mass parade along Belleville and Government streets to Thunderbird Park.

The massed choir was conducted by Harry Bigsby, director of music for Victoria schools, and the Lansdowne Band by John Boel.

Guests on the platform included Canon Grahame Baker, president of Greater Victoria Council of Churches; officials the B.C. education department and the school board.

Sister City To Join Procession

Victoria's sister city of Palm Springs, Calif., will be represented by one of its more renowned residents in Monday's Victoria Day parade.

Astride a horse will be Roy Randolph who has directed the famous Desert Circus in Palm Springs for the past 18 years. The circus is an annual event and includes a parade, held a few weeks ago; attended by Miss Victoria, Margaret Vickers.

Mr. Randolph was born an orphan on an Indian reserve. He was raised by the famous Will Rogers and by movie actor Leo Carillo.

A director and actor with MGM for 20 years, he directed the dancing of such personalities as Betty Grable, Ann Miller, Shirley Temple, Debbie Reynolds.

Automobile Graveyard Cleanup Urged

Island municipal authorities today asked for provincial government aid in cleaning up the eyesore caused by automobile graveyards.

Approximately 50 aldermen and mayors attended the 19th annual meeting of the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities held in Saanich Municipal Hall.

A motion passed requested that "the Motor Vehicle Branch undertake, with municipal and or regional districts, the responsibility for disposition of all registered vehicles which have reached the end of their usefulness."

DISPOSAL FEE

The resolution stated financing of this function should be through the imposition of a disposal fee, collected at the time of the vehicle's original registration.

Ald Mrs. Frances Elford of Oak Bay moved the resolution.

The original resolution stated that the Motor Vehicle Branch should assume complete responsibility for the disposition of worn out cars but was amended to include municipal and regional district co-operation when reservations were expressed by Victoria Mayor Hugh Stephen.

He said he didn't feel the provincial government department was the one to deal with the problem.

"We shouldn't continue to shovel responsibilities on to senior governments," he said.

MUST FACE PROBLEM

Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich concurred with Mayor Stephen but suggested an amendment.

"Municipalities must face up to this problem," he said. "Perhaps this resolution doesn't do the job, but lets not back away from the problem."

However Ald. Elford said she felt disposal of automobiles should be a provincial responsibility as they gained the benefits from them in licence and gasoline taxes.

Following passage of the automobile disposal resolution delegates quickly approved another motion requesting a change in the Municipal Superannuation Act to remove discrimination between employees.

LIBRARY GRANTS

The motion stated the act discriminates against women employees in the area of death benefits.

Victoria Ald. Robert Baird chaired the meeting which continued all afternoon.

President of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities, Mayor Peter Wing of Kamloops, addressed delegates briefly prior to debate on resolutions.

Other resolutions to be considered include structure of library grants and on extending transportation privileges for the elderly and disabled in areas outside of Vancouver and Victoria.

Majority Feel Decision 'Hasty'

By JIM HUME

Bishop Remi De Roo was unable Thursday night to heal the breach created among his parishioners by the closure of St. Louis College.

For three hours and seven minutes the bishop stood alone in the face of his accusers fielding questions which ranged from gentle queries to harsh challenge.

At one point, he offered to resign.

Twice during the long session Bishop De Roo and his supporters tried to muster a solid front to back the decision to close the 104-year-old secondary school.

Twice they fell far short of the mark.

The first attempt came shortly after 11 p.m. when a woman in the close to 350 strong audience asked all those supporting the Bishop to stand.

No count was taken but a 60-40 vote in favor of the Bishop was a generous rule of thumb record.

Satisfied

A few minutes later the Bishop called for a brief stretch period and invited those satisfied with his answers to that point to leave the jammed basement of the college, soon to close.

Approximately 25 per cent of the people present accepted the invitation.

The other 75 per cent stayed to hear Bishop De Roo face another hour and fifteen minutes of questioning.

When it was all over, shortly after 12:05 a.m. Bishop De Roo remained convinced that the decision to close the College was a right decision. The majority of his audience remained convinced that the decision was hasty and in error.

One other fact emerged from the long session.

Bishop De Roo warned the highly tense congregation that the closure of the College was just the first step in a program which would result in the total closure of all Catholic schools in the area "if we do not rally and do more than talk."

Strictly Financial

The Bishop, who faced the sometimes angry meeting without the benefit of a chairman at his own request, refused to lay the blame for the closure at the feet of the provincial government which gives no financial aid to independent schools.

He said the decision was strictly financial.

"Whatever your feelings may be, I am still faced with the professional advice of our bankers and financial advisers who say we do not have the money to rebuild this school," he said. "If there is any way that anyone here can show me that that advice is unsound I am willing to go into the entire matter again."

"But," added the Bishop, "I hate to say this, but St. Louis died several years ago" because of the apathy of local Catholics.

Several times during the long night the Bishop flashed cool anger.

The first time when, by innuendo, several members of the audience had suggested that the Bishop, the senate and the priests of the area had failed to support the unsuccessful fund drive to keep the college open.

"Do not slur my clergy by general statement," snapped the Bishop. "If you have any specific complaints against specific priests, place them in writing on my desk."

Audience Challenged

On another occasion after a prolonged series of questions faulting the Bishop for the closure he challenged the audience to show proof that the decision was wrong.

"If you have any evidence that my decision was mistaken, submit the proof and I will galdly submit my resignation," he said.

"The decision to close St. Louis was one of the most painful decisions I have had to make. But I had to make it. I tried to save the diocese and I think I have."

The statement was greeted with an outburst of applause.

Williston Names New Deputy For Lands Branch

David Borthwick has been appointed the province's new deputy minister of lands, Resources Minister Ray Williston announced today.

The 48-year-old former director of lands, succeeds Robert Torrance who died suddenly last month.

Walter Robert Redel, 47, steps up to director of lands from coordinator and his place is filled by Axel Kinnear, 53, who has been chief of air surveys division, Mr. Williston said.

Mr. Borthwick was born in Scotland but came to New Westminster when he was four years old.

He taught school in the Peace River area, served in the army from 1940 to 1943 and graduated from University of B.C. in 1947 with a degree in agriculture.

He joined the agriculture department after graduation and switched to the lands department as an inspector two years later.

Hydrofoil Problems 'Minor' As It Makes Shipyard Run

The hydrofoil Victoria, which encountered difficulties on her inaugural run from Seattle to Victoria Wednesday, was taken to a shipyard Thursday for a thorough inspection.

"We thought it unwise to chance another crossing until we are completely confident all systems are 'go'," said Tad Kanda, assistant secretary of Northwest Hydrofoil Lines, Inc., in Seattle.

The Victoria was delayed 2½ hours leaving Seattle Wednesday by engine troubles and an hour on the return run. But the runs themselves were described as smooth and comfortable.

Kanda said the problems were minor but "time-comsuming."

Date for resumption of regular runs for the 75-passenger craft will not be known until the shipyard inspection is completed.

Initially the Victoria is scheduled to make one trip a day, leaving Seattle at 7:30 a.m. and returning from the provincial capital at 5 p.m. The trip takes about 2½ hours.

IWA To Vote Next Week

A strike vote will start next week among 28,000 members of the International Woodworkers of America at 113 B.C. coast and Vancouver Island timber companies.

Balloting must be finished by Friday, May 31. No date has been set for a start on the vote on southern Vancouver Island.

Union members are seeking a 50-cent hourly wage increase in a one-year contract and other items. The companies have made no wage proposal. The present contract expires June 14.

Negligence Charge Nets Year In Jail

'Incident Demands Deterring Effect'

A Victoria sailor was sentenced to one year's imprisonment in Supreme Court Thursday after being found guilty of criminal negligence causing death.

His driving licence in Canada was suspended for four years.

Louis Durham, 29, of 733 Wilson Street, was found guilty by a jury of four women and eight men. His car collided with another car on the Trans-Canada Highway at Goldstream last Feb. 17.

Four persons were killed — Victoria car dealer Clifford Horwood, who was driving; his wife, Pearl; Mrs. Eleanor Tait and Mrs. Martha Bannerman, both sisters of Mrs. Horwood, all travelling in a 1968 Citroen.

Durham's defence counsel, Lloyd McKenzie, QC, pleaded for a substantial fine and a very substantial suspension of his driving licence instead of a jail term.

'DOING DUTY'

But Mr. Justice J. A. Macdonald said:

"I would'nt be doing my duty if I imposed a fine only. I must have regard to the fact that four lives have been taken in this most unfortunate accident.

"The tragedy of these cases is that ordinarily good citizens find themselves under charge."

Mr. Justice Macdonald said the evidence did not suggest the degree of "flagrance" revealed in similar cases on the mainland. But he noted it was a wet, dark Saturday night and the accused had admitted driving at 60 miles an hour.

"The maximum penalty for criminal negligence causing death is imprisonment for life. I have to consider the safety of the public on the roads and along the sidewalks, and this demands a level of sentence that will have a deterring effect on others."

Mr. McKenzie said the accused was married and had two children, ages seven and three years. "He and his wife are separated because of the wife's infidelity while he was at sea. The children are looked after by his father and mother at Langley. The father was injured in an industrial accident and can work only two days a week."

TWO CHILDREN

Mr. McKenzie said Durham had served 11 years in the Royal Canadian Navy and was a leading seaman and engineer. He had been taking a 12-month engineering course and was doing well.

"But he has been warned that, if he loses any more time, he will be taken off the course. He is industrious and hard-working and has all the virtues of a good sailor.

"He will bear forever the terrible memory of this accident. Therefore I would suggest a substantial fine and a very substantial suspension of his licence."

Mr. McKenzie said Durham's ship, HMCS St. Croix, is now at sea.

Earlier, in his address to the jury, crown prosecutor E. George MacMinn said that, just before the accident, Durham entered into "a series of curves at an excessive rate of speed," and was seen to drift over the white line.

Mr. MacMinn was assisted by Brian R. D. Smith.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The Jacoby transfer bid is easy to learn. Specifically when your partner opens one no-trump, the two diamond response is a transfer to hearts and the opening bidder rebids two hearts unless he has a maximum no-trump with very good hearts in which case he may rebid three hearts. The two heart response is a spade transfer in the same manner.

The responding hand is unlimited in strength. You may transfer with a bad hand and intention of passing at the two level or you may transfer on your way to a slam.

The bidding of today's hand shows a transfer bid slam. South had almost enough to jump to three spades after North's two heart transfer. North in turn might have gone directly to four spades but he saw some slam possibilities so he forced with three clubs.

South's three diamond bid said, "Partner, if you are interested in a slam I have the ace of diamonds." North's jump to four spades said, "I have slight slam interest with very good spades." South's four no-trump call was Blackwood. He might have gone directly to the slam but there was some slight chance that North would only hold one ace.

Played by South there was no defence against the spade slam. South drew trumps and led a heart from dummy. If East ducked, South would have to lose a diamond eventually but wouldn't lose a heart. Actually East went up with the heart ace. This allowed South to discard two of dummy's diamonds on the king and queen of hearts.

If North played the spade slam and East happened to lead a diamond, North would have to take the finesse and lose his contract.

If South played at six no-trump, correct defence would leave him no play to make it.

Pearkes To Lead Parade

Mayor Hugh Stephen has called on the citizens of Greater Victoria to give Lieutenant-Governor George Pearkes a triumphal farewell to public life on Monday.

In a special press release this morning the mayor noted that the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pearkes would be riding in the lead car in the Victoria Day Parade.

"This will probably be the last occasion at which our whole community is given the opportunity, before their retirement, of expressing to Mr. and Mrs. Pearkes the profound admiration and affectionate esteem in which they are held by all of us."

Mayor Stephen called on all citizens who possibly could to crowd the parade route and use a special cheer "for these two wonderful people . . . which they have earned through so many years of dedicated service to their country, to this province and, in particular, to Victoria itself."

Stanfield's Silent Treatment

IT IS UNFORTUNATE FOR CONservative Leader Stanfield that in recruiting a very able Quebec spokesman and possible future French-language lieutenant in the person of Mr. Marcel Faribault, he has added him to the Tory campaign in the full light of Mr. Faribault's opinions on provincial sovereign rights in dealing with foreign countries. Mr. Faribault's sentiments on this point are those of Quebec Premier Johnson, but they are not those of Mr. Stanfield's English-speaking party. In seeking to gain a badly needed foothold in Quebec, Mr. Stanfield has seriously embarrassed and compromised a great many members of his party.

In an effort to smooth this over, the Tory leader urges that the whole matter of provincial rights abroad—and particularly those of Quebec which are at issue—be kept out of the election campaign and reserved for the forthcoming constitutional talks between the federal government and the provinces. But there is little chance of that at this stage in the campaign, for Prime Minister Trudeau has rightly seen the point as a vital one in regard to Canada's viability as a federation—and it is, moreover, one which cannot be shelved until Canadians can conveniently get around to meeting on it.

Incidents which are not challenged by the federal government would inevitably be built into precedents, as Mr. Trudeau has pointed out; and it is fatuous for Mr. Stanfield to pretend, as he has in various speeches, that the present controversy with Quebec over the status of delegations abroad is in the same category with other relationships which some provinces have had from time to time with foreign authorities. The main difference is that the Quebec incidents have been designed by General de Gaulle and Mr. Johnson with the definite idea of creating precedents. Quebec participation in the educational conference in Gabon and Paris had a second purpose as a means to a constitutional end.

The federal White Paper on Federalism and International Conferences on Education makes it very plain that Ottawa welcomes provincial participation in conferences abroad so long as the delegations are under federal auspices and "speak, act and vote on behalf of Canada". Very wide provincial powers are envisaged in such delegations, but as Mr. Trudeau told 1,300 applauding French-speaking Chamber of Commerce members in Montreal this week: when foreign countries want to approach Canada "there is one address—Ottawa." The functions of nationhood cannot be splintered among a number of provinces, he said, if the nation is to survive. "In international law there are great countries and there are small countries but there are no half-countries."

It is this approach which Mr. Stanfield has chosen to denigrate as conjuring up visions, speaking nonsense and assuming a ridiculous position. He fears that with public discussion of the issue "the gulf will become wider, the attitudes on both sides more rigid, and the climate inflamed," as he told a Halifax audience Thursday night.

But the Conservative Leader, through such arguments, cannot stem public discussion of a vital national question, still less prevent it becoming a major campaign issue. He cannot hide the embarrassment of Mr. Faribault's unacceptable policies behind a cloak of silence. Even his own supporters across the country must have heard—and be wondering.

Turbulence on the Weather Map

GRANTED THAT THE SOVIET Union's leaders face a difficult and touchy task in attempting to manage the changed situation resulting from the wave of liberalization washing over East European countries, one should have thought they would have refrained from a vicious attack on the late Thomas Masaryk, first president of Czechoslovakia and generally regarded as the father of his country.

The attack in the newspaper Sovietskaya Rossiya charged that Masaryk subsidized murderers and spies in Russia during and after the civil war and accused him of "bloody crimes against the Soviet and Czechoslovak people." Despite the fact that he died in 1935, the newspaper claimed that Masaryk was responsible for loss of Czech independence in the Munich Pact of 1938 because he had earlier refused a treaty with Russia which would have permitted free passage of Soviet troops through Czechoslovakia to Poland—a troop movement route still of some significance 30 years later.

The attack on Masaryk seems to be part and parcel of the Soviet technique for dealing with the Czechs: apparent acceptance of their right to manage their own affairs, coupled with bitter criticism. The end result may well be to deepen the estrangement between the two countries as well as to provoke greater independence by Romania and Yugoslavia. Reports from Romania, where French President de Gaulle has been visiting, state that already there is talk of reviving the pre-war "Little Entente" of France, Czechoslovakia, Romania and Yugoslavia.

The enthusiastic reception given President de Gaulle by the Romanians may be taken as further evidence not only of the rising spirit of independence in the Soviet bloc, but also the very considerable danger which exists that there may be a point at which Russia will feel it must react with force in order to retain credibility as the leader of the Communist world. The French president is probably the only leader of a major Western country who could get away with urging a Soviet bloc country to look westward for trade and cultural ties. But although the Russians certainly do not want to antagonize France, they cannot much appreciate what they must regard as unwarranted interference in their sphere of influence.

So Little Time, So Much To Do

PRESIDENT JOHNSON, WITH others who have studied the matter, consider the job of president in the United States too big for one man to handle. He has suggested, as one means of freeing the chief of state from his multitudinous duties, allocation of at least some ceremonial functions to an "executive vice-president".

The idea has merit not only in the United States but wherever chief elected officials are subjected to so many calls on their time that there are not sufficient hours in the day to meet them and anyone who tries invites physical collapse. The problem reaches down to heads of councils at the municipal level where invitations from organizations deserving consideration can usurp the time and energy a public servant should conserve to meet the pressing responsibilities of his office—as Victoria's own conscientious mayor well knows.

As the situation now stands, an invitation declined may be an affront to the prospective host. But surely the time has arrived when an official stand-in should be an acceptable replacement for the original guest of honor.

". . . Mr. Ho? . . . I've told them your demands and the session will continue as soon as the laughter dies down. . . ."

Control of Schools

Many Humanists and other loyal citizens, in this area, think it is about time that an un-Canadian Activities Commission should be set up to investigate, not only the interference of a certain foreign power in the affairs of the province of Quebec, but also the control of schooling in a large segment of the population of British Columbia, by the ruler of another foreign state, the potentate of the Vatican in Italy.

It is quite evident that such control exists over the welfare of many Canadian children, when we see by the Times of the 14th instant that a disagreement among the officials of a local school, St. Louis College, can only be solved by a decision of the Pope after petition sent to him by a group of Canadian parents.—Harold V. O'Reilly.

Why Not Ignore Them?

The headline in your newspaper "HIPPIE GATHERING IGNORED". Why don't you do the same?

They are not really news you know.

Why not tell us about the other kinds of youth — in the same sized headlines; in the same prominent position in your newspaper; and (dare I say it) in the same admiring terms so often used by your reporters in describing the element called "Hippie" — F. G. Cope, 1677 Hollywood Cres.

MR. BALL'S OVERSIGHT

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

A Prevailing Canadian Desire to Remain Canadian

ANYONE who knows George W. Ball not only as an American statesman but as a great citizen of the world would expect his written credo to be an important book. So it is. "The Discipline of Power" inspects the state of humanity perhaps more profoundly than any book published since the last war. But ignoring his fast survey of mankind at large, I venture to think that the author is mistaken in assuming that eventually Canada will join the United States because the whole economic and political logic of the continent must compel this union.

Hutchison

Some angry Canadians are saying that Mr. Ball does not understand their country, or else that he and other powerful Americans are secretly plotting to seduce it where their ancestors failed, in two invasions, to conquer it. Actually, as I can testify after many talks with him, Mr. Ball understands the facts of Canada much better than most natives do and our country has no stronger champion in Washington. Nor has the United States any more candid critic than its newly-appointed ambassador to the United Nations.

Yet a Canadian friend is bound to remind him that while he understands all the facts, and can project them ahead to inevitable conclusions, only the imponderables, or non-facts, will count in the end. The conclusions are by no means inevitable because they depend mainly on the developing Canadian character which no native or foreigner can calculate.

Not By Economics Alone

Mr. Ball is too wise to suppose that economic forces alone decide the course of human events. He is not an upside-down Marxist like many businessmen who hate Communism and accept its basic premise. He argues, however, that Canadians will not always be satisfied with a living standard somewhat lower than that of their neighbors. Therefore, they will seek entry into the United States at some point to get their full share of its riches.

Mr. Ball will forgive a Canadian who believes that he has misinterpreted both the facts and the non-facts.

Factually it is obvious that Canadians, on average, are not as rich as Americans and cannot be until they produce an equal volume of goods per man-hour. The figures show the gap plainly enough but are they the true measurement of a living standard?

Surely the true measurement is the average happiness not the income of the human being and by that measurement would Mr. Ball claim that his own people are more fortunate and live better than Canadians? His book, with its frank and almost brutal summary of the American crisis on many fronts, gives a negative answer to that question. So, every day, does the news of American civilization, at home and abroad.

Silent Feelings

All the vital facts, or non-facts, of life are forever immeasurable, of course, except by the silent feelings of individual men, the only reliable measurement of anything important. By the measurement of the mind and heart instead of the stomach the Canadian must conclude that he is the most fortunate creature on this pitiable planet. And if a secret poll of Canadians could be taken undoubtedly fewer of them than in any former time would wish to become Americans.

There is nothing particularly heroic in this attitude. For the most part Canadians are thinking and acting out of sheer selfishness and a horror of inheriting their neighbors' grievous problems. Yet neither the magnitude of the United States' responsibilities, nor Canada's dependence on its markets, capital and defensive system prevents some Canadians from damning the nation most essential and most friendly to them. A few Canadian politicians have made a career of anti-Americanism, though not much of a career.

In strict truth Canadians say that their nation was built in defiance of continental geography, economics and the historic imperatives of power to establish certain indefinable values. On the whole their improbable experiment has succeeded but we often forget that it could not have succeeded if the United States had acted like all the great powers of the past and absorbed Canada long ago peacefully or by war.

The two decisive factors still govern the continent. Canada wishes to remain independent. The United States has no wish to possess Canada against it will. But the balance of the old equation has changed. The Canadians' will to be Canadian has greatly increased.

Not Very Clear

This may not be clear to Americans, since it is not very clear yet to many troubled Canadians. When the affairs of Canada appear to be in confusion, when we have grossly mismanaged our economy, above all, when we have not solved our primary, inescapable problem of race and culture, any foreigner is likely to think that we are in a bad mess, as bad a mess, indeed, as that of our neighbors. He is likely to think, too, that we must be eager to escape it by abandoning our experiment (as if that were an escape).

The non-fact, on the contrary, is that all the commotion in Canada, the brawl of politics and, most vividly, the emergence of a new phenomenon named Trudeau, mean precisely the opposite. They mean that the thing we call Canadianism, for lack of a better word, is more vigorous than it ever was before now and more determined to survive.

Here, as Mr. Ball will observe, we encounter an apparent paradox.

Most thoughtful Canadians realize that the world cannot go on long the way it is going now with new and prickly nationalities springing up every fortnight from the wilds of Africa to the civilized banks of the St. Lawrence. The doctrine of unrestricted nationalism, the absence of any effective world authority and international law, will finally demoralize if it does not destroy the human species.

Nevertheless, the Canadians who most ardently deplore nationalism and advocate some kind of world government usually are the most ardent nationalists, the strongest opponents of union with the United States. But this is not a real paradox after all.

No Unbalanced Marriage

Such Canadians would be prepared to accept a world authority or, short of that, to enter some multilateral grouping of like-minded nations but they oppose a bilateral marriage to the United States simply because a one-sided bargain between unequal partners would smother Canada altogether.

Well, an American may reply, why not? What is the use of defying logic and fighting geography when the struggle must be hopeless? To that legitimate question there are four good answers.

First, the struggle is not hopeless since it has succeeded better than we had any reason to hope or expect in earlier times. Second Canadians enjoy their separate way of life and that alone is the best possible reason to maintain it. Third, with their long experience, they can give their half of the continent better management than any inexperienced foreigners can provide. Fourth, and most valid of all reasons, Canada has a lesson to teach North America and the world, provided that the supreme Canadian problem is solved.

Could Be A Model

If we can fairly govern a dual society Canada will be a model for mankind. If we can ensure a good life for people of all racial origins it will not matter if our living standard, so-called, is a little lower statistically than the American standard. And if we can succeed in our primary task the American people will not discount and disparage Canada, they will envy and even try to imitate us.

We have this chance, unique in the contemporary world, but Mr. Ball thinks that we shall surrender it out of greed and appetite. I believe he is wrong in his prophecy but he is certainly right in believing that the non-facts which must settle Canada's future are no stronger than the ordinary Canadian's will to enforce and master them. Where is the future to be decided — in the stomach, or in the mind and heart? A good neighbour, Mr. Ball has done us a useful service in posing the final question.

SPECIAL REPORT FROM PARIS

By WILLIAM R. FRYE

American Gains in the Propaganda War

THERE is one war which, it is widely agreed, the United States is winning handily. It is the propaganda war which encompasses and profoundly influences the Vietnam peace talks here. The contrast between the effectiveness of American propaganda blockbusters and North Vietnamese firecrackers is so vivid as to be almost embarrassing. Over the long run, some observers think, it could backfire and stir sympathy for Hanoi.

Frye

W. Averell Harriman, the American negotiator, and his astute staff have adopted a posture of serious, constructive interest in peace, responding to North Vietnamese criticism — if at all — in a more-in-sorrow-than-in-anger tone, sometimes almost apologizing for digressing into the area of invective.

Xuan Thuy, Hanoi's representative, by contrast, does not apologize for invective. He marches into it with flags flying and trumpets blaring. His adjectives are lurid and his verbs explosive.

Observers here think Harriman has much more accurately judged the temper of world opinion. The world is deathly tired of name-calling over Vietnam, they believe, and eager for progress toward peace.

The contrast was illustrated Wednesday when Harriman urged Thuy to agree now on restoration of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) to its original and proper status. Thuy replied by charging that the United States was the only party violating it — a falsehood so blatant and obvious that observers were astonished he had thought it might be persuasive.

Western observers assume Thuy is stonewalling until the United States agrees to halt all its bombings and "other acts of war" against North Vietnam. If so, he is taking a licking in the process.

He has not succeded in focussing attention on the bombing halt. By simply talking, with an air of serious intent, about other subjects Harriman has broadened the agenda — and Thuy has followed him down many of the paths he has mapped out. Thus if Thuy came to Paris, as he presumably did, thinking he could muster overwhelming world pressure for a total bombing halt, he is being disillusioned. And this fact could significantly affect the course of the negotiations.

The respective press spokesmen are also unevenly matched. Nguyen Thanh Le, a deputy editor of the Hanoi paper Nhan Dan, holds his briefings almost stimultaneously with those of William J. Jorden, a New York Times alumnus.

Le was told this schedule would lose him much of his most influential audience, but he has stuck rigidly to it, apparently too proud to set a later hour and thus admit he had less drawing power. North Vietnam could not appear second best in anything.

Jorden simply had to make his sessions informative enough so correspondents could not afford to miss them, and Le was dead. Papers with one-man bureaus are getting Le's ideas filtered through second-hand fill-ins.

Candid Persuasiveness

Jorden has a colorless, matter-of-fact, sometimes disarmingly candid manner that is persuasive. His remarks, delivered in a tone reminiscent of the late Senator Joseph McCarthy (whom he does not resemble in any other respect), are skilfully nuanced.

Le is mercurial, emotional, an obvious propagandist working hard at his job. The rigidities, the aggressiveness and the habit of overstatement that the Russians began to shed in the 1950s, and which the Chinese still manifest, undercut his credibility.

Members of the American delegation have been available informally to the press. Harriman relaxes in the Crillon hotel press centre, has meals with newsmen, invites some to cocktail parties for backgrounding, and gives impromptu interviews.

The North Vietnamese have shut themselves up in the Lutitia hotel and, except for a handful of selected correspondents whom they know, rarely see anyone.

Looking Back

From the Times, May 17, 1908.

It is a long time since Oak Bay has put on such gala attire as that assembled on the opening of the newly formed Oak Bay Boating Club yesterday.

Over one hundred craft, sailing, power and rowing, were in the bay near Turkey Head and many of them were flying the colors of the new club. The scene was a striking one and it marks the return of Oak Bay to her old-time popularity as a resort for those on pleasure bent.

the old college alive while several others asked for an extension of time to raise the cash to keep the school open, Bishop de Roo insisted that the main issue now facing Catholics was not a matter of saving the college.

"The problem is not: could we raise enough money to save St. Louis: The problem is: are we going to rally fast enough to save the rest of the schools.

'May Lose Both'

"I am not prepared to risk a new building (for the College) if we may lost both.

"It is not a question of a second chance. It is a matter of sheer impossibility. I cannot jeoparize the diocese for one institution, however precious that institution might be."

His answers failed to convince many members of the audience that all had been done that could have been done and at least one priest, Father M. J. McNamara, continued to challenge the closure decision.

Father McNamara, one of the leading organizers in the fund drive that failed, said that with money already collected or pledged, plus established assets, tatalled $440,000 towards the $670,000 required.

"Who ever had so much money to go out and build?" he asked. "If the fund drive failed it failed because it did not have the full support of the clergy or the laity. At no time did the people show the interest they are showing now.

Indifference

"I think that a mistaken ecumenism has bogged down to a treacly indifference.

"But I still don't understand why it (the College building program) was turned down."

Bishop De Roo repeated his earlier statement that the project was rejected on the advice of financial experts who warned that the diocese could be in danger if it went further into debt.

The Bishop added that even if the funds were raised to keep the physical school alive, much more money would be required to bring teacher salaries into line.

"We cannot continue to ask (The Christian Brothers of Ireland) them to work under the starvation conditions they are working under now," he said. "The way we treat our teachers is a major scandal in social justice so far as the Catholic church is concerned."

Press Not To Blame

Bishop De Roo staunchly refused to blame the local press for the dramatic presentation of the facts surrounding the St. Louis closure.

"The press in this city has been extremely kind to our church," he said. "A Bishop must learn to hear many unpleasant things as well as many pleasant things. And I would like to express by gratitude to the people who have had the courage to stand up and be outspoken when they thought something was wrong."

The Bishop said he hoped his congregation would continue to be outspoken when they felt he made bad decisions. "I am grateful, and I hope I always shall be grateful, to the people with enough feeling and sincerity to walk up to me and tell me they think I am wrong."

'Did Not Hide'

Bishop De Roo finished his three hour cross-examination at 12:14 a.m.

The principal of St. Louis, Brother Malloy, followed him to the microphone.

"A few days ago a photograph of the Bishop appeared (in the Times) with the caption 'to face accusers.'

"That phrase is of scriptural origin. The answer to that statement in the same context was 'behold the man'.

"He (the Bishop) did not hide from you. His decision was a hard one, one that I personally do not like but one I accept as a decision that had to be made.

"I ask you not to use the name of the College or the Brothers who taught here against the diocese or the Bishop. There should be no rift in the church because a decision has gone against us."

GIRL DROPPED TWO FLOORS IN RESCUE

VANCOUVER (CP)—Wayne Mitchell, 38, saved his daughter, Sharon, 4, from their blazing home Thursday, then dropped two floors to safety only minutes before the house was engulfed in flames.

Mr. Mitchell was taken to a hospital for treatment to back burns and released.

He and his wife, Linda, and three children were watching television downstairs, while Sharon slept in an upstairs bedroom.

The rest of the family fled as Mr. Mitchell dropped Sharon from a window and then jumped out himself.

Socred Chiefs Collide Head-On

By JOHN MIKA

Social Credit's national president and Victoria president have collided head-on in disagreement over whether there will be a candidate named here to oppose Liberal and Conservative candidates.

Victor Smith, president of the Victoria Federal Social Credit Riding Association, this morning denied that his executive has or will call a second nomination meeting next week.

His statement contradicted national president Herbert Bruch who said Thursday night in Nanaimo there will be 23 socred candidates contesting all B.C. seats in the June 25 election.

Mr. Bruch said a Victoria meeting earlier this week which accepted the riding executive's decision not to nominate a candidate, for undisclosed reasons, has been rescinded and another nomination meeting has been set for next week.

SECOND DECISION

Mr. Bruch was speaking at a Social Credit nomination meeting in Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands where a second decision against contesting the election was expected but contractor Lorne Lee was named by acclamation in a surprise move.

Several members of the Victoria executive contacted this morning said they were unaware of a second nomination meeting being scheduled here and Mr. Smith denied one would be held

MEETING TUESDAY

Esquimalt-Saanich Social Credit Association has decided it will nominate a candidate at a meeting set for 8 p.m. Tuesday in Mount View Secondary School, secretary Ross Regan announced.

The meeting had been set for last week but was postponed.

All four local MLAs will be on the platform, Mr. Ross said. They are Works Minister Chant, Trade and Industry Minister Skillings, Mr. Bruch and John Tisdalle.

Mr. Bruch has discounted rumors that he will stand for the nomination in a switch to federal politics.

"It doesn' look probable," he told the Times when asked if he would seek a nomination in the June 25 election.

The Flying Banana Carries Tory Hopes

QUEBEC CITY — What comes from Winnipeg, is red, yellow and silver, and bears high hopes and aspirations?

It's the chartered airplane in which Bob Stanfield will cover Canada for the next six weeks in pursuit of the prime ministry.

The DC-7, four-engined prop plane was put into service for the first time this week when Stanfield flew to the Maritimes.

The aircraft is chartered from a Winnipeg company (Fyi Tansiar) and is specially set-up for electioneering.

LOFTY THINKERS

Charter flights have numbers, but there are some among the Tories who feel a name would be much better — the plane has a painted party sign by the door.

Some of the lofty thinkers, borrowing a bit from the U.S., think it should be Unity One — even though there is only one.

Others prefer the Bluenose.

And some of the irreverent go for the Flying Banana, in deference to Bob's favorite fruit.

So far, there's no decision.

The aircraft has a cabin in the fore-section complete with sleeping accommodation for the party leader — and he's going to spend a lot of time in the air in the next 40 days — and working space for his personal secretary.

Then comes a cabin with about 40-odd seats for newspapermen accompanying Stanfield — and the cost per seat for the campaign is approximately $1,000.

TFB — The Flying Banana — also will trundle party officials around on the campaign trail.

And in the rear section is a working area for staff, complete with desk set-ups and duplicating machine.

The main cabin is laid out for first-class travel, and the Tories had a look at the machines used in the U.S. presidential electioneering in planning theirs.

Stanfield's campaigning does not officially start until next Tuesday in Winnipeg — followed by a trip through all the western provinces — but by the pace he has set since Saturday in his Maritime swing, there's no difference between unofficial and official campaigning.

Libraries Closed

The Greater Victoria Public Library (the main building, Town and Country branch and Brentwood Station) will be closed on Monday for the Victoria Day holiday.

Blood Donor Clinic To Be Held Tuesday

WINE MAY POSSESS MEDICINAL QUALITIES

VANCOUVER (CP)—Wine may be of more use medically than is generally recognized, a conference of eye, ear, nose and throat specialists was told Wednesday.

Dr. Kenneth K. Cambon, of Vancouver, said wine has medicinal use for certain ear and throat afflictions. He spoke at a scientific session of the Pacific Coast Oto-ophthalmological wine would prevent heart disease, kill earache, sooth a wound and even cure a fear of heights.

He lamented that modern physicians know little about the use of wine in medicine, though there was evidence it contains some unknown anti-bacterial agents.

WORKLOAD, LIBRARY LACK

Education Probe Hears Same Tune

A commission organized by B.C. teachers to probe the education system finds itself repeatedly hearing the same tunes.

- There is a crying lack of adequate library facilities in the province's schools.
- There is an intolerable workload on teachers.

The B.C. Teachers' Federation commission on education was in Victoria Wednesday to accept briefs and hear verbal presentations from local groups on school issues.

"We've been amazed at the number of common themes coming out," said commission secretary William Allester.

"And this is certainly one of them," he added of the libraries issue.

ISSUES 'CLEAR'

Donald MacKenzie, chairman of the hearing, said the issue is clear four months before his report is due: better school libraries are vital.

Four of the local briefs called for modern library resource centres in the schools.

The teachers' province-wide study, a sort of mini-royal commission, has already received 147 briefs plus verbal submissions and briefs are still rolling in at the rate of about 10 a week.

ASK CO-ORDINATOR

Mr. MacKenzie, former assistant superintendent of schools in Vancouver, and his fellow commissioners, Mrs. Lorill Hanney and James Carter, have already covered most parts of the province. Mr. Carter was absent Wednesday.

In local presentations, the Institute of Victoria Librarians called for a provincial co-ordinator of school libraries.

The commission was very aware of the need for better school libraries, said Mr. MacKenzie.

"There are not too many schools in the province that we have seen to date that are well enough stocked and staffed to meet requirements."

A major problem was lack of qualified librarians, he said.

RESOURCE CENTRE

University teacher training should include an appreciation of library resources, said the library sub-association of the Greater Victoria Teachers Association.

The local intermediate teachers group said it was imperative elementary schools be built with provision for a library resource centre.

"... Many of the current innovations are doomed to failure or at the most, to token success, because of two basic conditions which exist at the intermediate level—lack of essential resources and intolerable teacher workload."

Every elementary school should have at least one specialist in music to work or assist from kindergarten up, said the B.C. Music Educators' Association.

Railway Merger Blocked by Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — A three-judge federal court blocked indefinitely the merger of the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railroads — called the Northern Lines.

The merger was approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission last Nov. 30.

The court set a schedule for filing briefs with final papers to be filed by July 1.

Corporate Profits Set Mark

WASHINGTON (AP) — Corporate profits in the U.S. soared to a record annual rate of $88,800,000,000 during the first quarter of this year, the commerce department has reported.

This was the third straight quarterly advance and was $3,700,000,000 above the previous record high for the fourth quarter of last year.

The first-quarter pace was even higher than the Johnson administration had anticipated for all of calendar 1968.

At the same time, the department reported an eight-per-cent jump in housing starts during April, more than offsetting a March decline. This would indicate that tightening credit conditions have not yet caught up with the pace of construction.

But the department said new building permits issued during April —frequently an indicator of future construction activity—declined.

Named Chairman

TORONTO (CP) — G. Allan Burton, president of Simpson's Ltd., was appointed chairman of the board at a director's meeting today.

He is the fifth chairman appointed since the Robert Simpson Co. was established in 1872. As president and chairman, he succeeds the late Edgar G. Burton as chief executive officer.

Canada Eyes New York Gold Market

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is eyeing the obvious advantages of the New York market for the subsidized gold now piling up at the Mint, a finance department spokesman said this week.

The stockpiling of the gold has been going on since March when Canada went along with a decision of the gold-pool countries to cease trading in gold between central banks and the public.

The Mint continues to buy gold at a subsidized price from Canadian mines whose production costs exceed $26.50 an ounce. To get the subsidy, the mines must sell their gold to the Mint.

The finance department spokesman said the New York market buys gold at the London market price and adds about 35 cents an ounce as the cost of shipping from Europe to the United States. Canada's cost of shipping gold to the U.S. obviously would be much lower.

Before Canada can start selling itss gold in the private market, however, it must improve its refining methods.

Gold is refined at the Mint now but its purity of 99½ per cent is below that required by industry.

A question still to be settled is whether the Mint will continue in its refining or whether the work will be done elsewhere.

Treasury Bills
